APPENDIX IV.

[Note.—Appendices IV and V are intended merely to show the principal leave and pension rules in the Civil Service Regulations at present applicable to officers appointed to the Indian Forest Service by the Secretary of State from the United Kingdom, without going into minute details, and do not profess to deal with every case that may arise. The rules are subject to alteration, and any disputed question must be decided with reference to the authorised text of the Civil Service Regulations for the time being.]

Leave.

Long Leave.

1. Furlough and special leave with allowances (see paragraph 5) are admissible to an aggregate maximum amount of six years during an officer's service. The amount of furlough "earned" is one-fourth of an officer's active service, and the amount "due" is that amount less any enjoyed.

2. Furlough without medical certificate can, if due, be generally taken after eight years' active service, and again after intervals of not less than three years' continuous service. It is limited to two years at a time.

3. Furlough on medical certificate may be granted (a) to an officer who has rendered three years' continuous service, for not more than two years, but capable of extension up to three years; and (b) to an officer who has not rendered three years' continuous service, up to one year in any case, and up to such longer period, if any (but not exceeding two years in all), as the officer may have furlough "due" to him.

4. The allowances admissible during furlough are:—

(1) During the first two years of furlough without medical certificate and during so much of furlough with medical certificate as may be "due"—half average salary, subject to certain maximum and minimum limits.

(2) After the expiration of the period for which the foregoing allowances are admissible—one quarter of average salary, subject to certain maximum and minimum limits.

5. Special leave may be granted at any time for not more than six months, with intervals of six years' service; allowances, calculated as during furlough, are given during the first six months only, whether taken in one or more instalments.

* The officer holding this appointment draws in addition to the pay of his grade a minimum local allowance of Rs. 200 a month.

† Those appointments are allotted to the various provinces as follows:—Burma, 66; Madras, 32; Bombay, 28; Central Provinces, 24; United Provinces, 20; Punjab, 12; Bengal, 12; Assam, 13; and Bihar and Orissa, 6; and 4 Imperial Instructors at Dehra Dun.

‡ Until he has passed the prescribed Departmental examinations, an Assistant Conservator is liable to stoppage of increments of pay. On passing the examinations he will resume drawing pay under the time scale at the rate to which his length of service entitles him.

§ These draw a local allowance of Rs. 150 a month in addition to their grade pay, with the exception of the President, Forest Research Institute and College, in whose case the allowance is at the rate of Rs. 200 a month. Of these 10 appointments, the four posts of Imperial Instructors have been sanctioned for five years from 1912, for the present.

Note.—Under the improved scale of salary shown above, no Exchange Compensation Allowance is granted.

Short Leave.

6. Privilege leave is a holiday which may be granted to the extent of one-eleventh part of the time that an officer has been on duty without interruption; and it may be accumulated up to three months, earned by 33 months' duty. During privilege leave, the officer retains a lien on his appointment, and receives the salary which he would have received if on duty. An interval of not less than six months must elapse between two periods of absence on privilege leave.

Privilege leave may be prefixed to furlough, special leave or extraordinary leave without allowances. The whole period of leave thus taken in combination is known as combined leave. Combined leave may not be granted for a period of less duration than six months, nor, except on medical certificate, may it be extended beyond two years.

7. Subsidiary leave in India for a minimum of 10 days, usually with half average salary, is granted to an officer proceeding on or returning from leave out of India, or on retirement, to enable him to reach the port of embarkation or to rejoin his appointment. It is admissible only at the end and not at the beginning of combined leave.

8. Short leave is also granted to enable officers to appear at examinations, etc.

9. Extraordinary leave without allowances may be granted in case of necessity, and, except in certain specified cases, only when no other kind of leave is by rule admissible. It may be granted in continuation of other leave.

General Rules.

10. Leave of absence can never be claimed as of right, and is given or refused at the discretion of Government.

11. When leave allowances other than privilege leave pay are paid at the Home Treasury, or in a Colony where the standard of currency is gold, rupees are converted into sterling at the rate of exchange fixed for the time being for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and Indian Treasuries, unless any other rate has been exceptionally authorised. But for the present the rate of conversion is subject to a minimum of 1*s.* 6*d.* to the rupee. Privilege leave pay when issued from the Home Treasury (this is only admissible when privilege leave is combined with other leave) is converted at 1*s.* 4*d.* to the rupee.

APPENDIX V.

(See Note under Appendix IV.)

PENSIONS AND PROVIDENT FUND.

1. An officer of the Indian Forest Service is eligible for a pension on voluntary retirement after completing 20 years' qualifying service or attaining the age of 55 years. If at an earlier date he is compelled to retire from the service through ill-health, not occasioned by irregular or intemperate habits, he becomes eligible for an invalid pension or a gratuity according to the length of his service.

The amount of pension or gratuity is regulated as follows :—

After a service of less than 10 years, an invalid gratuity not exceeding one month's emoluments for each completed year of service.

After a service of not less than 10 years an invalid pension not exceeding the following amounts :—

Years of Completed Service.	Maximum Limit of Pension.
10	Rs. 1,000 a year.
11	1,400 „
12	1,800 „
13	2,200 „
14	2,600 „
15
17	3,000

Years of Completed Service.	Scale of Pension. Sixtieths of Average Emoluments.	Maximum Limit of Pension.*
20 to 24	30	Rs. 4,000 a year.
25 and above		„ 5,000

Officers who have shown special energy and efficiency during an effective service of three years as Inspector-General of Forests or Conservator may, at the discretion of the Government of India, be allowed an additional pension of Rs. 1,000 a year subject to the condition that the officer must not retire voluntarily before the completion of a total qualifying service of 28 years.

Subject to certain prescribed conditions, rupee pensions are now issued to pensioners residing in countries where the Indian rupee is not legal tender at the rate of exchange of 1*s.* 9*d.* the rupee.

2. A General Provident Fund has also been established on the following basis : —

(a) The contribution is compulsory up to 6¼ per cent. on salaries, with voluntary contributions of not more than a further 6¼ per cent. Subscriptions on leave of any kind are optional.

(b) Compound interest on such payments is annually credited by Government to each officer subscribing, the rate being at present 4 per cent. per annum.

(c) The sum which thus accumulates to the credit of an officer is his absolute property, subject to the rules of the Fund, and is handed over to him, unconditionally, on quitting the service ; or, in the event of his death before retirement, to his legal representatives or such other person or persons as under and subject to the rules of the Fund for the time being in force, may be entitled thereto.

(d) Other forms of life insurance will, however, if they fulfil certain conditions, be accepted in lieu of the contributions in (a).

APPENDIX VI.

General Physical Requirements.

[Note.—These Regulations are published for the convenience of candidates and in order to enable them to ascertain the probability of their coming up to the required physical standard. But it must be clearly understood that the Secretary of State reserves to himself an absolute discretion to reject as unfit any candidate whom he may consider, after hearing the opinion of his medical advisers, to be physically disqualified for the public service ; and that his discretion is in no respect limited by these Regulations.

1. A candidate must be in good mental and bodily health, and free from any physical defect likely to interfere with efficient performance of duty.

2. In the examination of candidates the Medical Board will apply the following table of correlation of age, height, and chest girth : —

Age.	Height without Shoes.	Chest.
		Girth when expanded.	Range of Expansion.
	Inches.	Inches.	Inches.
19 to 20	62½ and under 65	35	2
	65 „ 68	35	2
	68 „ 70	35½	2
	70 „ 72	36	2
	72 and upwards	36½	2½
21 and upwards	62½ and under 65	35	2
	65 „ 68	35½	2
	68 „ 70	36	2
	70 „ 72	36½	2½
	72 and upwards	37	2½

3. Measurement of Height.—The candidate will be placed against the standard with his feet together, and the weight thrown on the heels, and not on the toes or outside of the feet. He will stand erect without rigidity, and with the heels, calves, buttocks, and shoulders touching the standard ; the chin will be depressed to bring the vertex of the head level under the horizontal bar, and the height will be noted in parts of an inch to eighths. No fixed limit of height is imposed.

4. Measurement of Chest.—The candidate will be made to stand erect with his feet together, and to raise his hands above his head. The tape will be carefully adjusted round the chest the posterior upper edge touching the inferior angles of the shoulderblades, and its anterior lower edge the upper part of the nipples. The arms will then be lowered to hang loosely by the side, and care will be taken that the shoulders are not thrown upwards or backwards so as to displace the tape. The candidate will then be directed to empty his chest of air as much as possible. This is best done by continuous whistling with the lips as long as sound can be produced. The tape is carefully gathered in during the process, and when the minimum measurement is reached it is recorded. The candidate will then be directed to inflate his chest to its utmost capacity. This maximum measurement will likewise be noted. The girth with the chest fully expanded and the range of expansion between the minimum and the maximum will then be recorded.

5. The hearing must be good.

6. The speech without impediment.

7. The teeth in good order, i.e., decayed or broken teeth must be properly stopped or crowned, and deficient teeth replaced by artificial teeth where necessary for effective mastication.

8. The chest must be well formed, the lungs and heart sound.

9. Rupture, hydrocele, varicocele, varicose veins in a severe degree, or other condition likely to cause inefficiency will disqualify a candidate, unless such condition is cured by operation.

10. The limbs, feet, and toes must be well formed and developed, with free and perfect motion of all the joints.

11. A candidate must have no congenital malformation or defect likely to interfere with efficiency.

12. A candidate must not be the subject of chronic skin disease.

13. Evidence of previous acute or chronic disease pointing to an impaired constitution will disqualify.

14. Candidates may, if they wish it, undergo a preliminary examination as to their physical fitness by the Medical Board, which meets at the India Office every Tuesday, under the following conditions :—

(a) Applications must be addressed to the Under Secretary of State, India Office, Whitehall, London, accompanied by a fee of two guineas.

(b) Candidates must pay their travelling expenses

(c) It must be understood that the opinion of the Medical Board, which will be communicated by the Board to the candidate at the end of the examination, is solely for the candidate's own information and is not an official finding. The Board, if they consider a candidate unfit, will exercise their discretion as to informing him of the particular grounds on which their opinion is based. No further information can in any case be given as to the Medical Board's opinion which will be confined solely to the physical fitness of the candidate; and any question as to the eligibility of the candidate, if found physically fit, to be admitted to the particular Indian service which he desires to enter, should be addressed in writing to the Under Secretary of State.

(d) Candidates considered to be unfit by the Medical Board at this preliminary examination are not bound to accept its opinion, but may, at their own risk, continue their studies, with the knowledge that they will have to submit themselves for a final medical examination by the Medical Board prior to their appointment.

(e) As the preliminary examination by the Medical Board is held solely for the candidate's information, a candidate who is informed after such an examination that he is physically fit will have on that account no claim to be accepted as physically fit when he presents himself for the final medical examination, upon which alone his acceptance or rejection will depend. Candidates may be considered fit for the service at the preliminary examination, but may be found at the final examination to be unfit, either on account of some physical defect which did not exist or passed undetected at the preliminary examination, or for other reasons.

Regulations as to the Standard of Vision for the Indian Forest Service.

1. If myopia in one or both eyes exists, a candidate may be passed, provided the ametropia does not exceed 2·5 D, and if with correcting glasses, not exceeding 2·5 D, the acuteness of vision in one eye equals $\frac{6}{9}$ and in the other $\frac{6}{6}$, there being normal range of accommodation with the glasses.

2. Myopic astigmatism does not disqualify a candidate for service, provided the lens or the combined spherical and cylindrical lenses required to correct the error of refraction do not exceed —2·5 D; the acuteness of vision in one eye, when corrected, being equal to $\frac{6}{6}$, and in the other eye $\frac{6}{9}$, together with normal range of accommodation with the correcting glasses, there being no evidence of progressive disease in the choroid or retina.

NOTICES.

THE PATENT OFFICE, 1, COUNCIL HOUSE STREET, CALCUTTA.

Public room, open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

1. All communications relating to applications for patents and for registration of designs under the Indian Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), or in continuation of applications under the Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888) should be addressed to the Controller of Patents and Designs, 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. Documents sent by post should be carefully packed.

2. Directions for the guidance of inventors and others are given in the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911 (price 10 annas), and in the Indian Patents and Designs Rules, 1912 (price 2 annas). These should be consulted before an application is made to the Controller.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs nor their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. Applications for patents in countries other than India should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

4. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

5. Trade and property marks and names are not registered and medicines are not patented under the Indian Patents and Designs Act. There is no provision of Law in British India for their registration.

6. Printed Specifications of applications, which have been accepted, are published within about three weeks after acceptance has been notified in the Gazette of India. These specifications can be purchased at the Patent Office at a uniform price of 8 annas per copy; and may be seen free of charge, together with other publications of the Patent Office, at the following places:—

HISTORICAL RECORD OF THE IMPERIAL VISIT TO INDIA, 1911.

This book, which has been compiled by the Government of India from the official records, contains a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911, including lists of the persons taking part in all the various celebrations and ceremonies at which Their Imperial Majesties were present, as well as a large number of illustrations, portraits of Ruling Princes and others, coloured Persian and Sanscrit texts, maps, plans, etc.

The book has been published by Mr. John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, W., and copies are now procurable from all the principal booksellers.

There are two editions—a popular one in a cloth binding, price Rs. 7-8-0, and a very limited edition de luxe, price Rs. 250, which has been subscribed for. As the popular edition is strictly limited, and a considerable portion of it has been absorbed in requisitions already received and in the requirements of libraries, schools, etc., it will probably be exhausted very soon after publication. Those who have not yet ordered copies but require them are therefore advised to order at an early date. Application should be made to the Superintendent, Government Printing, India, Calcutta.

CHIEF COMMISSIONER, DELHI.

NOTIFICATION.

Dated Delhi, the 3rd February 1915.

No. 738-R. & A.—With reference to Notification No. 9037-R. & A., dated the 19th December 1914, and in exercise of the power conferred by section 155 (1) (d) of the Punjab Land Revenue Act, 1887, XVII of 1887, the Chief Commissioner is pleased to make the following rules :—

RULES FOR THE COPYING AGENCY AT DELHI.

Persons entitled to, or permitted to, obtain copies of records and records of which copies may be given.

1. In these rules "Record" includes any portion of the record and any document, map, plan or other paper attached to, or forming part of the record of any suit or appeal, enquiry or trial, or other proceedings in any civil, criminal or revenue court, or office.

2. (i) A copy of a record shall be granted in the manner prescribed by these rules to any person, who, under the law for the time being in force, or under these rules, is entitled to receive it, and a copy may be so granted to any person permitted by these rules or otherwise to obtain one.

(ii) A plaintiff or a defendant who has appeared to the suit and a party to a criminal complaint shall at any stage of the suit or complaint obtain copies of the records of the suit including exhibits which have been put in and finally accepted by the court as evidence.

N.B.—A party, who has been ordered to file a written statement, shall not obtain a copy of a written statement filed by another party until he has first filed his own.

(iii) A stranger to a suit, on application, shall be granted, after decree, copies of the plaint, written statements, affidavits and petitions filed in the suit, but shall not be granted copies of any such documents before decree without the previous sanction of the court concerned. He shall also obtain copies of judgments, decrees or orders at any time after they have been passed or made, but he shall not obtain copies of exhibits, put in as evidence, without the consent of the person by whom they were produced.

(iv) Any person may, on application, obtain a copy of a record of right, annual record, khasra, girdawari, or of the record of distribution of an assessment over the holdings of an estate, or of an entry in a register of mutations.

(v) Copies of the orders passed by competent authority on proceedings under the Land Revenue and Tenancy Acts shall be granted to applicants. But copies of reports and recommendations made by Revenue Officers to their superior officers, in connection with such proceedings, shall not be granted unless in the opinion of the officer by whom the orders was passed they are necessary for the understanding of his order.

(vi) Copies of the final order passed on the muafis sanctioned by competent authority may be granted by the Deputy Commissioner. But copies of recommendations submitted for sanction shall not be granted unless they have been approved and are necessary for the understanding of the sanction.

(vii) In cases regarding the reduction of lambardars a copy of the Chief Commissioner's order may be given by the Deputy Commissioner.

(viii) Except with the previous sanction of the Chief Commissioner, copies of documents shall not be granted to any person not otherwise entitled to them, with whom there is any likelihood of any suit arising.

(ix) Official letters are privileged documents, to copies of which no person has any claim whatever. Should it be desirable to grant a copy of a letter or of an extract of a letter received by a subordinate from a superior officer, reference should in every case be made to the superior officer for permission.

(x) Subject to the above limitations, every person shall be entitled to a copy of a public document as defined in section 70 of the Evidence Act. In case of doubt the head of the office shall decide what are public documents, and what are not, on the question being referred to him. Copies of private documents on records and files of Government and public offices shall not be granted without the previous sanction of the head of the office.

II.—APPLICATIONS FOR COPIES OF RECORD.

3. An application for a copy of a record may be made in person or by post and may be made by any person authorised by another to act in his behalf The full name, parentage and address of the applicant shall be given in the application.

Note.—The authority need not necessarily consist of a formal power of attorney, but the officer authorised to receive and deal with applications for copies must satisfy himself, in such manner as he considers sufficient that the person applying is either himself entitled to the copy applied for or has in fact been authorised to act for a person who is so entitled.

4. Only one application need be made for copies of papers concerning a single cause, or matter, which are in the same record, e.g., if copies are required of four separate papers in one record, only one application is necessary.

5. Each application, not being an application referred to in rule 17 hereinafter, must by law have a one-anna court-fee stamp affixed to it. In the case of applications presented in person this stamp shall be affixed before presentation. In the case of unstamped applications received by post the stamp will be affixed as hereinafter provided.

6. Applications for copies including requisitions received on behalf of prisoners in jail will be received by the officer in charge of the copying agency or by the copying agent.

Provided that an application for a copy of a record of the Chief Court, or of a Divisional, District, or Session Court, or of an office or court of the Chief Commissioner made to a lower court or office in which the record may be at the time of the application, shall not be complied with without the permission of the superior court or officer concerned.

III.—PROCEDURE ON RECEIPT OF APPLICATION.

7. In the case of personal application—

The assistant copying agent shall—

If the copy can be given—

(1) Make the necessary entries in the Register "A" as hereinafter provided and cancel the court-fee stamp according to law.

(2) Endorse on the reverse of the application the following :—

(a) The time and date of receipt of application ;

(b) An order to the record-keeper to issue the record, or, in the case of pending records, a requisition for the sanction of the court concerned ; and

(c) Name of copyist to whom the application will be allotted.

(3) Have these endorsements initialled by the copying agent.

(4) Put up the application to the officer in charge for final sanction and distribution to copyists.

If there appears to be reason that the copy should not be given, take the order of the officer in charge, and if sanction is refused, note accordingly in the column of remarks in Register A annexed to these rules.

8. In the case of applications by post the assistant shall, if necessary procure from the copying agent and affix the court-fee stamp and proceed as in section 7.

Note.—The copying agent will provide all such court-fee stamps from his imprest.

9. Copies shall ordinarily be prepared—

In the case of ordinary copies within three working days.

In the case of urgent copies by the next day.

The following scales of fines for delay in the preparation of copies shall be strictly enforced :—

For 1 day's delay over and above 3 days	. ¼ of the copying fee.
For 2 days' delay „ „ „	. ½ of the copying fee.
For 3 days' delay „ „ „	. ¾ of the copying fee.
For 4 days' delay or more „ „	. the whole of the copying fee.

(The 3 days to be calculated from the date on which the copyist receives the file.

In the case of urgent copies, if the copy is not prepared by the next day the urgent fees shall ordinarily be forfeited.

The copying agent shall calculate the fines and note the amount of the fine on the application.

The officer in charge shall satisfy himself that the fine has been correctly calculated, and in the absence of any reasonable excuse on the part of the copyist concerned shall sanction the fine and intial the entry.

10. A register (in Form "A" annexed to these rules) shall be maintained in which every application for a copy of a record including jail requisitions shall, if sanctioned be forthwith entered under the orders of the officer in charge. Separate registers shall be kept for English and for Vernacular copies.

11. Whenever owing to faulty or insufficient information in the application, it is reported by the record office to be impossible to trace a record or part of a record the application shall be returned to the applicant (or in case of jail requisitions to the Superintendent, Jail), with a request for fuller or correct information.

12. In the case of personal applications, when the copy is ready and the fees authorised hereinafter have been calculated and noted on the copy—

(a) The copy shall be delivered to the applicant on payment of the fees due.

(b) If an applicant fails to appear to claim his copy within 7 days after the copy is ready for issue and in all other cases where it is so desired by the applicant the copy will be sent to him per V. P. P.

13. In the case of applications made by post the copies shall be sent to applicants per V. P. P.

When the copy, to be sent per V. P. P., is ready and the fees calculated and noted the copying agent shall enter "by post" in column 14 of Register A and obtain the attestation of the officer in charge in that Column. He shall then proceed to despatch the copy by V. P. P. as hereinafter provided.

14. When copies have to be sent by V. P. post the copying agent shall, as soon as the copy is struck off Register A, enter it in Register C. He shall then despatch the copy by V. P. post for an amount to include the sum due on account of—

(1) copying fees including urgent fee, if any,
(2) court-fee stamp of one-anna, if any,
(3) postal charges,
(4) value payable post commission,
(5) special searching fee if any, and
(6) an agency fee of two annas.

He shall pay the Government dues, searching fees, postal charges and value payable commission from his imprest and enter the amounts disbursed, as also the agency fee, in Register C.

One register each in Forms C and D alone shall be maintained. The copying agent's imprest shall be recouped when necessary by contingent bills signed by the officer in charge.

15. If charges due on V. P. P. packets are not recovered at the end of three months, the Deputy Commissioner may draw the amount on a contingent bill under Budget head 32—Miscellaneous Petty Establishments and recoup the copying agent. If subsequently recovered the sum shall be credited to head XXV—Miscellaneous Provincial sub-head Miscellaneous, detailed head Copying Agency Account. Each case of a refused packet shall be entered in Register C.

16. All sanctioned applications for copies shall, when the copies have been delivered to the applicant, be sent to the record-keeper to be filed with the record concerned.

17. The following copies shall be given free of cost :—

Copies applied for—

(1) By prisoners in jail, whether through the jail authorities or by power of attorney,
(2) By the Government Advocate, and
(3) By, or on behalf of, any branch of Government.

Note.—The cost of these copies will be borne by Government by payments from contingencies at the following rates :—

ENGLISH COPIES.

	Rs.	A.	P.
"For the first 200 words or under	0	4	0
"For every additional 100 wards or under	0	1	0

VERNACULAR COPIES.

"For the first 200 words or under	0	3	0
"For every additional hundred words or under	0	1	0

IV. FEES.

18. (I) The following shall be the scale of consolidated copying fees, including the former record office fees :—

	English. As.	Vernacular. As.
First 200 words or under	8	4
Every additional 100 words or fraction thereof	4	2

These rates include the cost of paper, which will be supplied by Government. The amount of paper used for each copy will be entered in the appropriate column in Register A in order to check waste.

(II) For field maps, boundary maps and tabular work a special fee will be fixed by the officer in charge, but this fee should always be a multiple of 2 annas.

(III) Fees for "urgent" copies will be as follows :—

When the ordinary copying fee is less than one rupee per copy double the ordinary copying fee.

When the ordinary copying fee is one rupee or over per copy an additional fee of Re. 1.

(IV) Search fees should not ordinarily be required as it is the duty of the record room staff to find records readily. But if the officer in charge considers that, owing to the defective information supplied by the applicant, the search for the document has involved an unreasonable amount of trouble to the record room staff he may, on the application of the record room staff impose a search fee of eight annas which will be recovered by the copying agent from the applicant and credited at the end of the month direct under "Law and Justice" or "Land Revenue" as the case may be, as a record office receipt.

V. COPYISTS.

19. (I) For the preparation of copies the Deputy Commissioner shall engage a sufficient number of persons qualified to make copies of records. The number of persons so engaged should be strictly limited to actual requirements for the work of copying in either the English or the Vernacular language as the case may be.

(II) Persons engaged as copyists should be—

(b) Competent to write fast and well in English or Urdu, as the case may be, and (c) In the case of English copyists thoroughly efficient typewriters.

20. The authority engaging a copyist may, at any time and without assigning any reason for so doing, dispense with his services.

21 (A) A register of candidates for the post of copyists shall be kept by the officer in charge and the names of all candidates shall be entered therein after due examination by the officer in charge as to their fitness and character.

(B) There will be two classes of copyists viz., Class A and Class B.

All copyists when first engaged will be placed in Class B and will be promoted to Class A on becoming efficient.

Promotions to and reduction from Class A shall be made by the officer in charge, whose orders shall in all cases be final.

The total monthly sum available for the pay of the copyists shall be so divided among the copyists that each copyist in Class B shall receive only three-fourths of the pay of each in Class A.

VI.—MANNER OF MAKING COPIES.

22 (I) Every copy under these rules shall be headed by a short description of the record with the name of the estate, tehsil and district to which it relates. In the case of a judgment or an order it shall have a heading containing the following particulars :—

(a) The court or office by which the case was decided with the name and powers of the presiding officer and in an appellate case the name and official designation of the officer whose order was appealed against and the date of that order ;

(b) The date of the institution and of the decision of the suit, proceeding or appeal, as the case may be ;

(c) The names and description of the parties ;

(d) The subject matter of the suit or proceeding, and the estate, tehsil and district in which situate.

(II) Every copy shall be prepared :—

(a) In a good legible hand or in clear typewriting as the case may be ;

(b) Upon water marked paper except in the case of copies of the documents noted in rule 27 below, which shall be prepared on printed forms supplied from the Deputy Commissioner's stock, no charge being made for them ;

(c) With ink of good quality ; and (d) In the case of copies made in Urdu in the Nastalik style.

(III) Marginal reference shall be made to the paging of the original.

(IV) Where more than one copy of the same record is ordered to be prepared at the same time the duplicating process shall be used when possible.

23. The copies supplied shall be limited to the records applied for.

24. Copyists shall in no circumstances be allowed access to the record room itself. Files will be given to them by the record room staff, and no files or parts of files are to be removed by the copyists from the copying room. An assistant deputed for this purpose by the officer in charge will be responsible for the safe custody and careful handling of all files given to copyists.

25. If copies are required of documents in the custody of the Sadar Qanungo, the copyists shall prepare the copy in the Sadar Qanungo's office. Such documents must not be removed from the custody of the Sadr Qanungo.

26. When copies of revenue and other records are supplied on printed forms in accordance with rule 22 (II) (b), the copying fee will be calculated on written matter only.

27. The following are among documents of which copies shall be given on such forms :—

(a) Decrees,

(b) Notices of ejectment,

(c) Charges,

(d) Headings of " opening sheets " in Judicial records,

(e) extracts from jamabandis, mutation registers, khasra girdwaris, settlement records, etc., and any other documents at the discretion of the Deputy Commissioner.

28. A copy of a copy shall never be granted unless expressly asked for as such, as, for instance, in order to call in question the correctness of the copy granted. The fact that it is so required shall be entered in the heading.

29. In granting copies of records, if the copies cover more than one sheet of paper the separate sheets shall be stitched together in book form.

30. After the copy has been made, and before it has been revised and attested, the following particulars shall be endorsed thereon, in the case of copies made in the English language, in English, and in the case of copies made in Urdu, in Urdu—

(a) The number of the application in the register,
(b) The date of presentation of the application for a copy,
(c) The number of words copied,
(d) Fees due—
  (1) Copying fee,
  (2) Urgent fee, if any,
  (3) Searching fee, if any,
  (4) Agency fee,
(e) The name of the copyist,
(f) The date on which the copy was completed by the copyist,
(g) Cause of delay, if any, and (h) The applicant's name.

VII.—Supervision and Attestation.

31. (i) An Assistant Commissioner or Extra Assistant Commissioner shall be placed in immediate charge of the copying agency under the Deputy Commissioner.

(ii) The officer in charge shall in addition to other duties herein prescribed—
(a) Examine the registers frequently.
(b) Supervise the work of the attestation officers, the copying agent and his assistants.
(c) Be responsible for the proper distribution of copies to all copyists.
(d) Check the imprest account of the copying agent on the first of the month.
(e) Prepare the annual budget.

(iii) The Head Clerk shall be responsible for the attestation and revision of all English copies.

(iv) The copying agent shall—
(a) Be responsible for the attestation and revision of all Vernacular copies in the manner prescribed in rule 31 (v) hereafter.
(b) Supervise the work of his assistants and the copyists under the direction of the officer in charge.
(c) Be responsible for procuring the records from the record room and for restoring them to the record room when no longer required. It is undesirable to allow copyists inside the record room.
(d) Examine any records or parts of records regarding which copyists are in doubt; deciding the doubtful point himself or reporting it for decision to the officer in charge if necessary.
(e) At the time a copy is delivered to an applicant or despatched by V. P. post endorse thereupon the date of such delivery or despatch and duly cancel the court-fee labels affixed to it, if any.

(v) (i) The revising and attesting officer, before attesting a copy, shall—
(a) Personally compare every such copy with the original record from which it has been made;
(b) Attest every alteration made in such copy by initialling the same;
(c) Examine and initial the endorsements made upon the copy in accordance with these rules;
(d) Examine the headings and form of the copy, and see that they are in accordance with the law and the rules and directions applying to such copy;
(e) See that the copy is written on the prescribed quality of paper with ink of good quality and in neat, legible handwriting; and (f) See that the fees have been properly calculated and noted on the copy.

(ii) When the copy is found to be in all respects correct and ready for delivery to the applicant, he shall endorse thereupon the following words:—

"Certified to be a true copy" and shall sign and date the endorsement, and subscribe his official designation, below which he shall endorse the following words:—

"Authorised by section 76 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872."

He shall then cause the proper seal to be affixed to the copy. If the copy comprises more than one sheet of paper, he shall see that the sheets are properly paged and shall endorse the word "attested" on every such sheet, entering his initials and the date thereunder.

(iii) In the event of any copy being found to be unfit for issue by reason that it—
(a) Has not been clearly and neatly written;
(b) Is not in the prescribed form or on paper of the prescribed quality;

(c) Was so incorrect that the revision has rendered it unfit for issue; (d) Does not conform to these rules and orders; and (e) Is otherwise open to objection;
he shall forthwith write the word "cancelled" across the copy, have it initialled by the officer in charge and a fresh copy shall be made without further charge.

32. Out of the $\frac{1}{8}$th fees credited under head XXV—Miscellaneous to meet the expenses of the copying agency (vide rule 33) shall be paid the salaries of the copying agent, the assistant copying agent, and such other establishment as may be sanctioned for the copying agency and the Head Clerk of the Deputy Commissioner's Office or such other officer as may be appointed to attest English copies shall receive $\frac{1}{10}$th the fees received for attesting English copies, subject to a maximum of Rs. 100 per mensem.

The balance after the abovenamed sums have been paid shall be available for the contingent expenses of the agency.

VIII.—Accounts.

33. Sums due on account of—
(a) Copying fees;
(b) Urgent fees;
(c) Search fees;
(d) Agency commission;
(e) Miscellaneous;
shall be paid into the treasury on the morning of the next working day for each day's transactions and shall be credited to head XXV—Miscellaneous Provincial, sub-head Miscellaneous, Copying Agency Account. Out of the amount so paid into the treasury on account of (a) and (b)—
(i) $\frac{7}{8}$th shall be paid to the copyists;
(ii) $\frac{1}{8}$th shall be credited to Government; and
(iii) $\frac{1}{8}$th plus any sums paid under (c) (d) and (e) shall be credited under head XXV—Miscellaneous to meet the expenses of the copying agency.

34. At the close of each day after copies have been delivered either to the applicant or for despatch by post the daily totals shall be written up in Register "B" and the total sums due to Government for copying fees and urgent fees on all copies so entered shall be paid into the treasury as above, the amount due for copies to be despatched by post being advanced from the copying agent's imprest. The treasury receipt for the amount paid in shall be pasted into Register "B."

35. The total amount of copying fees for Vernacular and for English copies during the month shall be made out separately, and $\frac{7}{8}$ths of each total calculated. A separate monthly bill for English and Vernacular copying fees shall then be drawn. Each bill shall bear a certificate signed by the officer in charge to the effect that the amount drawn does not exceed $\frac{7}{8}$th of the copying fees credited during the month to English and Vernacular copyists respectively. The sums so drawn shall be divided in the proportion laid down in rule 21 (B) amongst the English and the Vernacular copyists.

36. A separate monthly bill shall be drawn as above for the attestation fees of English copies.

This bill shall bear a certificate signed by the officer in charge to the effect that the sum drawn does not exceed $\frac{1}{10}$th of the copying fee credited during the month for English copies, and that the usual income tax deductions have been made and credited to Government.

37. At the close of each month the copying agent shall draw on a contingent bill from the head "Miscellaneous" and credit by transfer to the appropriate head Land Revenue or Law and Justice the record office fees of $\frac{1}{8}$th of the copying fees including urgent fees received.

38. The pay of establishment shall be drawn on the usual establishment bill forms and other contingent charges shall be drawn in the ordinary way. The usual contingent register shall be maintained. The imprest shall not be used for payments other than those on behalf of applicants for copies.

39. Although the transactions of the copying department are brought on the general accounts and budgeted for in the ordinary way, Government does not claim any income from copying fees other than the $\frac{1}{8}$th share credited under Land Revenue or Law and Justice as record fees and does not admit any expenditure on the copying agency in excess of the remaining $\frac{1}{8}$ths. The Deputy Commissioner is authorised to spend on Miscellaneous contingent expenditure of the agency any balances in excess of the amount of the Agent's imprest, accruing under the sum detailed as item (iii) in rule 33. An account of income and expenditure shall be kept. This account shall be in the following form:—

Receipts.

Balance on Copying and Urgent fees
Agency fees
Other items
Total

Charges.

Establishment, permanent . . . . . .
Do. temporary . . . . . .
Copyists . . . . . .

Other items.
Record fees.
Balance.
Copying Agent's advance Rs.

The income from copying and urgent fees, etc., will be that given in column 12 of Register "B," other items will include recoveries made under rule 15.

The charges include—

(a) the pay of the copying agent, his assistants and chaprasis employed,

(b) copyists' fees and fees for attestation,

(c) articles for the use of the copyists such as stationery and office furniture,

(d) hot and cold weather charges,

(e) purchase of typewriters and accessories and charges for repair to same,

(f) expenditure incurred on copies when the amount cannot be recovered,

(g) record office fees credited by transfer to Land Revenue and Law and Justice.

The account shall be balanced each month. A consolidated account for the year shall be prepared after 31st March in each year in the same form and shall be submitted to the Chief Commissioner for information, not later than 15th May with a certificate that the receipts and charges for each month have been attested by the Treasury Officer.

The contingent expenditure must not reduce the balance below the amount of the copying agent's advance.

40. All sums deducted under rule 9 from the remuneration of copyists shall be paid into the treasury to the credit of Government.

41. Early in October the officer in charge shall prepare a budget of receipts and expenditure for the ensuing year and submit it to the Deputy Commissioner. The latter shall submit it to the Chief Commissioner not later than 10th November.

IX.—Registers.

42. The following register shall be maintained :—

Register A—or register of applications. Columns 1-7 shall be written up for each application as soon as orders have been passed for a copy to be prepared. Columns 8-13 shall be completed as soon as the copy is ready for delivery. When any copy so entered is sent to the applicant by V. P. post, a note that it has been so sent shall be made in the column of remarks.

Register B—or register of daily receipts.

Register C—or register of copies sent by V. P. post.

Entries in columns 1-6 shall be written up as soon as the copy is ready for despatch, and columns 7-12 when the sums due are received or the packet is returned as the case may be.

Register D—or imprest register.
Register E—or register of pending files.
Register F—or register of applications returned to applicants.
Register G—or register of leave granted to copyists.

X.—Translation.

43. The Deputy Commissioner as occasion arises may appoint any person to carry out the work of translation in addition to his own duties, provided he does the work out of office hours.

44. The fee for translation shall be four times the fee payable for an ordinary copy of the document of which a translation is required.

45. The translator shall be paid $\frac{3}{4}$ths of this fee which shall be drawn as provided for in the case of copyists; $\frac{1}{4}$th of the fees shall be credited to Government and $\frac{1}{4}$th to the Copying Department as in the case of copies.

46. The Deputy Commissioner may order that any translation be specially attested and may name the person by whom the work shall be done.

The fees for attestation shall be the same as those for the attestation of English copies.

47. The Deputy Commissioner shall pass orders for the translation of any document required by or on behalf of any department of the Public Service.

48. In all other respects the procedure in the case of translation shall be that for copies.

Note.—Against all entries in Registers the word "Translation" shall be noted in the column of remarks.

No. 774-C. & I.—In exercise of the powers conferred on him by section 58 (2) (e) of the Punjab Excise Act, I of 1914, as applied to the Delhi Province, the Chief Commissioner is pleased to make the following rules for the grant of licenses for the vend by wholesale and by retail of excisable articles other than cocaine, and to declare that they shall come into force at once :—

1. Unless the Chief Commissioner otherwise directs licenses shall be given for a period of one year from the 1st April to the 31st of March.

2. All licenses, other than licenses granted for fairs or other special occasions, shall, unless it is otherwise provided, determine on the 31st March next following the grant.

3. Temporary licenses may be given to provide for the sale of liquor on special occasions in such cases and on such occasions as the Chief Commissioner may prescribe.

4. The number of liquor and drug shops which may be licensed in any area shall be the number which the Collector considers necessary to meet the reasonable requirements of the population. Shops should neither be so sparse as to give the licensee of any one shop a practical monopoly in the particular area, nor so numerous as to provoke excessive competition.

5. No license for the sale of liquor or drug shall be given unless either there is an ascertained demand for such liquor or drugs in the locality concerned, or it is granted to contract the illicit supply of liquor or drugs in that locality.

6. Licenses for the vend of liquor or drugs may not be given to—

(a) any person who has been finally convicted of any non-bailable offence by a Criminal Court ;

(b) any person whether a former licensee or not, who has been convicted or reasonably suspected of committing or conniving at the commission of, any offence under the Excise or Opium Acts. A list of such persons shall be maintained by the Collector ;

(c) any person who holds either directly or through an agent an excise or opium license in a Native State, or in the case of country spirit licenses, in the United Provinces.

7. No license for the retail vend of foreign liquor or country spirit may be given to any manufacturer of spirit or any person connected in interest with such manufacturer.

No. 775-C. & I.—In exercise of the powers conferred on him by section 58 (2) (f) of the Punjab Excise Act, I of 1914, as applied to the Delhi Province, the Chief Commissioner is pleased to make the following rules prescribing the procedure to be followed and the matters to be ascertained before any license is granted for the retail vend of liquor for consumption on the premises, and to declare that they shall come into force at once :—

1. When it is proposed to open a shop for the retail vend of liquor on any premises where there has been no such shop in the preceding year the Collector shall take all reasonable steps to ascertain the opinion of persons who reside or have property in the neighbourhood and are likely to be affected by the proposal.

2. The Collector will post notice of the proposal at or near the site proposed for the new shop, and will cause the proposal to be made known in the neighbourhood by beat of drum.

3. Where there is an advisory committee, the Collector will summon the committee to meet, and will lay the proposal before the members of the committee for their opinion. The proceedings of the committee will be public and will be recorded.

4. The Collector will also ask for the opinion of the Superintendent of Police if he is not a member of the advisory committee.

5. If the site of the proposed shop is near a railway station, or any large factory, mill, or workshop, the Collector will ask for the opinion of the railway authorities or commercial firm concerned.

6. If any objection is preferred to the proposal, the Collector, or a gazetted officer deputed by him, will enquire into it. The enquiry will, if possible, be made on the spot. If it is not possible to make an enquiry on the spot, an enquiry will be made in a formal proceeding at which evidence tendered for or against the proposal will be recorded. The date and place of the enquiry will be published in the notice prescribed above.

7. The final report, together with the opinion of the advisory committee (if any), will be forwarded by the Collector to the Chief Commissioner whose decision shall be final.

No. 776-C. & I.—In exercise of the powers conferred on him by section 58 (2) (g) of the Punjab Excise Act, I of 1914, as applied to the Delhi Province, the Chief Commissioner is pleased to make the following rules prohibiting the sale of liquor to certain persons and classes of persons, and to declare that they shall come into force at once :—

A licensee shall not sell liquor—

(1) to any soldier of the rank of non-commissioned officer or under when in uniform or when not in uniform if the licensee knows, or has reason to believe, that he is such soldier ;

(2) to any person whom the licensee knows, or has reason to believe, to be a member of the family of such soldier ;

(3) to any person whom the licensee knows, or has reason to believe, to be a camp-follower (the term "camp-follower" including all classes of followers—other than private servants—whether on or off duty, who have a right to be in cantonments) :

Provided that in premises specially approved under section 28 of the Act by the Officer Commanding a cantonment such liquor as is approved by the officer commanding in consultation with the Collector, and is specified in the license of the vendor, may be sold to any such soldier, member of family, or camp-follower ;

Provided also that at any railway refreshment room or dak bungalow and in any railway dining car—

(a) troops and camp-followers under the command of an officer may be supplied, subject to the consent of such officer ; and

(b) soldiers and their families travelling in small parties, not under the command of an officer, may be supplied with a reasonable quantity, if the men are sober ; and

Provided, further, that the restrictions laid down in sub-clauses (1), (2) and (3) of this clause shall not apply to the sale of liquor to a native soldier or a member of his family or a camp-follower when he is absent on leave from his regiment ;

(4) to any person whom he knows, or has reason to believe, to be a policeman, excise officer, or railway servant on duty ;

(5) to any person in the custody or under the escort of Police ;

(6) to any insane person.

No. 777-C. & I.—In exercise of the powers conferred on him by section 58 (2) (i) of the Punjab Excise Act, I of 1914, as applied to the Delhi Province, the Chief Commissioner is pleased to make the following rule (prohibiting the employment, by any license holder, of certain persons and classes of persons to assist in his business), and to declare that it shall come into force at once :—

No licensee shall employ to assist him in his business in any capacity whatsoever, any person whose employment the Collector has in his discretion forbidden and no licensee shall employ any person suffering from an infectious or contagious disease.

No. 778-C. & I.—In exercise of the powers conferred on him by section 14 of the Punjab Excise Act, I of 1914, as applied to the Delhi Province, the Chief Commissioner is pleased to declare that an appeal shall lie from an original or appellate order of an Excise Officer as follows, namely :—

(a) to the Collector when the order is made by an Excise Officer below the rank of Collector ;

(b) to the Chief Commissioner when the order is made by a Collector.

Provided that when an original order is confirmed on first appeal, a further appeal shall not lie.

No. 779-C. & I.—In accordance with the provisions of section 58 (2) (c) of the Punjab Excise Act, I of 1914, as applied to the Delhi Province, the Chief Commissioner is pleased to make the following rules prescribing the time and manner of presenting and the procedure for dealing with appeals from orders of Excise Officers :—

(1) Every memorandum of appeal must be presented within one month from the date of the order appealed against.

(2) Every memorandum of appeal shall be accompanied by the order appealed against, in original, or by an authenticated copy of such order unless the omission to produce such order or copy is explained to the satisfaction of the appellate authority.

No. 782-Education.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 3 (3) of the Ancient Monuments Preservation Act, 1904, VII of 1904, the Chief Commissioner is pleased to confirm Notification No. 8752-Education, dated the 9th of December 1914, which declared the undermentioned monuments to be protected monuments within the meaning of the Act :—

FORM B.

NOTICE UNDER SECTION 6 OF THE TALUKDARS LOAN REGULATION (II OF 1911).

Whereas Bhumia Nathu Singh of Niaran, in the District of Ajmer, has applied for a loan under this Regulation, all persons having claims against the said Bhumia Nathu Singh or his immoveable property are called upon to submit a statement of the same in writing in Form C below, to the Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwara, within 6 months from the date of the publication of this notice.

Every claim against the applicant or his immoveable property (other than a claim on the part of the Government) not submitted to the Commissioner in compliance with this notice, shall, save in the cases provided for by Sections 6 and 13 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, be deemed for all purposes and on all occasions to have been duly discharged, unless in any suit or proceeding instituted by the claimant or by any person claiming under him in respect of any such claim, it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that he was unable to comply with the directions contained in this notice.

Every claim so admitted by the Court shall, notwithstanding any law, contract, decree or award to the contrary, cease to carry interest after the expiry of 6 months from the date of the publication of this notice.

2. With effect from the date of the publication of this notice, the consequences prescribed in Sections 7, 8, 16, 17 and 18 of the Regulation, a copy of which is published herewith, shall also ensue.

Copy of Sections 7, 8, 16, 17 and 18.

7. With effect from the date of the publication of a notice under Section 6, Sub-Section (1), the following consequences shall ensue, namely :—

(a) the applicant shall be incompetent to transfer or create any charge on, or interest in, his property or any part thereof, or to enter into a contract which may involve him in any pecuniary liability ; and

(b) all suits and proceedings in any Civil Court in respect of any claim against the applicant shall be stayed, and no fresh suit or proceeding shall be instituted in respect of any such claim in any Civil Court.

8. Nothing in section 7, clause (a), shall—

(a) apply to debts due for liabilities incurred to Government,

(b) apply to debts or liabilities which are incurred for necessaries for the maintenance of the applicant or his family, or for the due observance of funeral and other ceremonies to the extent approved by the Commissioner, or

(c) affect the capacity of the applicant to enter into a contract of marriage, provided that he shall not incur in connection with such contract of marriage any pecuniary liability except such as the Commissioner, having regard to the personal law to which he is subject, and his rank and circumstances, may, in writing, declare to be reasonable.

16. (1) No suit shall be brought in any Civil Courts against any Talukdar upon any promise made after he has repaid a loan under this Regulation, to pay any debt contracted during the period between the grant and the repayment of such loan, or upon any ratification made after such loan has been repaid of any promise or contract made during such period, whether there is or is not any new consideration for such promise or ratification.

(2) Nothing in Sub-Section (1) shall apply to the debts or liabilities specified in Section 8.

17. (1) If any Talukdar to whom a loan has been granted under this Regulation—

(a) infringes any condition imposed under Section 13, Sub-Section (1), clause (b), or

(b) attempts to do any act, which, under Section 7, clause (a), he is incompetent to do, the Chief Commissioner may, by order in writing, declare such Talukdar to be disqualified from managing his own property, and such Talukdar shall be deemed to be a landholder who is disqualified to manage his own property within the meaning of the Ajmer Government Wards Regulations, 1888, and the Court of Wards shall thereupon assume the superintendence of the property of such Talukdar.

(2) The Court of Wards shall withdraw its superintendence from any property of which it has assumed superintendence under Sub-Section (1) as soon as all instalments of the loan have been repaid to Government with the interest thereon.

18. In each of the following cases, namely :—

(a) when a loan made under Section 13 has been repaid to Government with the interest thereon, or

(b) when the amount so lent with interest has been recovered by the management of the property under Section 17, or

(c) when an order rejecting an application has been passed under Section 13, the Commissioner shall notify, in the Gazette of India and in such other manner as the Chief Commissioner may, by special or general order, direct, that the Talukdar has ceased to be subject to the disabilities mentioned in Section 7, with effect from the date of the publication of such notification.

A. T. HOLME, I.C.S.,
Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwara.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL, REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

Dated the 1st February 1915.

No. 1164-L. A.—The following agreement made under section 41 of the Land Acquisition Act, I of 1894, is published for general information.

J. H. KERR,
Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Agreement executed by the Comilla Central Co-operative Bank, Limited, desiring to acquire land under section 41 of the Land Acquisition Act.

Agreement made this 19th day of December 1914 between the Comilla Central Co-operative Bank, Limited, a Co-operative Society incorporated under the Act (Act II of 1912) relating to Co-operative Societies and having its registered office at Kandirpar within the town and Municipality of Comilla, District Tippera (hereinafter called the Company), of the one part and the Secretary of State for India in Council (hereinafter called the Secretary of State) of the other part.

Whereas for the purpose of the construction of an office building and out-houses, etc., the company has applied to the Government of Bengal for the acquisition under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 of the piece or parcel of land containing 1 bigha 1 cottah and 2 chitaks or thereabout, situate in the village of Kandirpar within the town and Municipality of Comilla, District Tippera and more particularly described in the schedule and delineated in the plan* hereunto annexed.

And whereas the said Government of Bengal being satisfied by an enquiry held under section 40 of the said Act that the proposed acquisition is needed for the aforesaid purpose and that the said work is likely to prove useful to the public, has consented to acquire on behalf of the Company the said piece of land.

And whereas the said Government of Bengal has required the Company under the provisions of section 41 of the abovementioned Act to enter into the agreement with the Secretary of State hereinafter contained. Now this indenture witnesseth that it is hereby agreed and declared as follows:—

1. On demand the Company shall and will pay to the said Government of Bengal all and every compensation in respect of the land which will be acquired for the Company tendered, paid or awarded or to be tendered, paid or awarded by the Collector under the Land Acquisition Act 1894, or by the Court to which a reference under part III of the said Act may be made, or by the Court or Courts to which an appeal from the award of the said Court may be preferred and all costs, charges and expenses of the proceedings in the aforesaid Courts or otherwise incidental to the proposed acquisition or payable in respect thereof under the provisions of the said Act.

2. On demand made by the said Collector the obligations of the company, under the last preceding clause not being thereby limited, the company shall and will deposit with the said Collector such sum or sums of money as in his discretion the said Collector may in anticipation estimate to be necessary for the purposes mentioned in the last preceding clause.

3. On payment by the Company of all demands under the foregoing 1st clause, or in the discretion of the said Government of Bengal (on deposit by the Company of all estimated amounts as provided in the 2nd clause), but not before possession shall have been taken under the provisions of the above-mentioned Act, the Secretary of State shall make over possession of the said land to the Company and shall execute and do all such acts and deeds as may be necessary and proper for effectually vesting the same in the Company.

4. The said land shall be held by the Company for the purposes of such building and outhouses, etc., as is hereinbefore mentioned and without the sanction in writing of the said Government of Bengal first had and obtained for no other purpose whatsoever.

5. The said building and outhouses, etc., shall be completed (and fully equipped in all respects ready for use) within three years from the date on which possession of the said land shall have been given to the Company.

6. Should the said building and outhouses, etc., not be completed (and fully equipped in all respects ready for use) within the period stated in the last preceding clause or within such further period as in its discretion may be prescribed or allowed by the said Government of Bengal or should the said land at any time thereafter cease for a period of eighteen consecutive months, to be held and used, or cease to be required for the purpose or purposes provided for in the foregoing fourth clause then and in any such case, the said Government may summarily re-enter upon and take possession of the said land, and thereupon the interest of the Company in the said land shall absolutely cease and determine.

* Not printed and published herewith, but may be inspected in the office of the Collector of Tippera.

7. On taking such possession the said Government may sell or otherwise deal with the said land as it may think proper. Should the said Government sell the said land, the said Government after deducting the expenses incurred in connection with the said taking of possession and with such sale shall pay the proceeds to the Company. Should the said Government, on taking possession, decide not to sell the land, it shall repay to the Company all sums received from the company in respect of all and every compensation as provided in the foregoing first clause (less the Statutory allowance of 15 per cent.) but will not repay any sums paid and received on account of costs, charges and expenses.

8. The office shall be open to the reasonable use of all the bond fide members of the Company during the office hours of the Company and at all hours to those who have business to transact with the Company as regards admission of members into the Company, applications for loans, deposit and withdrawal of money and also to those making enquiries relating thereto.

Provided that the Company may make rules fixing and regulating its hours of business, a copy of which shall be affixed to a conspicuous place on the premises but any rules framed by the Company in restriction of the general right of admission shall be inoperative against the public unless assented to in writing by the Secretary of State or his accredited agents, the Government of Bengal.

Provided also that nothing herein contained shall be construed to confer on the public the right to make use of the premises for individual profit or gain except with the permission of the Company first had and obtained.

9. Should any dispute or difference arise touching or concerning the subject matter of this agreement or any covenant clause or thing herein contained the same shall be referred to the said Government of Bengal and the opinion and decision of the said Government upon such dispute or difference shall be final and conclusive and binding on the parties hereto.

In witness whereof (the said company) has caused its seal to be affixed and the Secretary of State for India in Council hath hereunto set his hand and seal the day and year first above written.

The seal of the abovenamed company has hereto been affixed in the presence of

NOTIFICATION.

AGRICULTURE.

Delhi, the 11th February 1915.

No. 302-C.—The following Colonial Office Circular despatch communicating the decision of the Secretary of State for the Colonies to authorise the Imperial Institute to undertake in future for an appropriate fee researches, investigations, analyses, etc., required by private individuals and firms, is published for general information:—

No. 2, dated the 11th September 1914.

SIR,

I have the honour to inform you that my attention has been directed to the yearly increasing demands which are being made on the Imperial Institute by private individuals and firms for reports on technical subjects and especially on the composition and value of raw materials.

2. In the past it has generally been impossible to accede to such requests for investigations from private individuals and firms owing to the pressure of other work. At the same time the conduct of such investigations seems to me to be a legitimate function of the Institute, and I have been given to understand that the demand for such reports would be considerably extended if it were known throughout His Majesty's Possessions that the Institute was prepared to undertake for individuals special reports of the kind indicated in paragraph 8 of the Earl of Elgin's Circular despatch of the 31st of July 1906.

3. The Institute, however, is now so completely occupied with the scientific, technical, and commercial researches demanded by the Agricultural, Mines, and other technical departments of the Governments of those parts of His Majesty's dominions which contribute to its funds that it is impossible to undertake investigations on any considerable scale for private individuals and firms without adding to the technical staff, and therefore to the general expenses, of the Institute. But, having decided to meet what I believe to be a growing demand for such work. I am authorising the Imperial Institute to undertake in future for an appropriate fee researches, investigations, analyses, etc., required by private individuals and firms, either in this country or any of His Majesty's oversea dominions.

4. It will be left to the authorities of the Institute to decide in the case of each application whether or no the request for researches, etc., is one with which the Imperial Institute can properly comply.

5. Any reports which may be supplied under this arrangement will become the property of those who pay for them and will not be communicated either by the Imperial Institute or by any Government to other persons, or published without the consent of those concerned.

6. As it is undesirable that the Imperial Institute should compete with the professional expert, I propose that only special investigations, etc., should be undertaken, i.e., on subjects of a technical character with which the Imperial Institute is exceptionally qualified to deal, especially those relating to the production and utilization of materials which occur in the British Empire or which might be introduced into British countries and are considered likely to be of value to British commerce or trade.

7. It may be useful if I refer to some of the more important matters with which the Imperial Institute is in a special position to deal:—

(a) Investigations as to the value of new or little known raw materials for commercial purposes.

(b) Chemical analyses, assays and valuations of raw materials, such as fibres, rubbers, oil-seeds, waxes, food-stuffs, tanning materials, essential and fixed oils, gums, resins, drugs, tobaccos, soils, minerals, ores, waters, fuels, etc., etc.

(c) The technical testing of rubber, timbers, cottons, fibres, cements, and other materials.

(d) Identifications of vegetable and mineral substances.

8. I am informed that the Managing Committee are not prepared at present to suggest any actual scale of fees which could meet the variety of cases which are likely to occur. The fee must be arranged between the Institute and the individuals or firms who require investigations to be made. The matter will be in the hands of the Director, who will from time to time report to the Managing Committee the fee proposed in any special case in which this cannot be determined by ordinary practice.

9. I believe that the adoption of the plan I have indicated will increase the usefulness of the Imperial Institute to the manufacturing and industrial communities of all countries of the Empire: and, as it will doubtless be of importance to the residents of the Colony-Protectorate under your government, I shall be glad if you will take steps to make the arrangement I have sanctioned widely known, either by publishing this despatch in whole or part in the Official Gazette or in such other way as may seem to you to be most effective.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient, humble servant,

L. HARCOURT.

L. J. KERSHAW,

Secretary to the Government of India.

War Office,

9th September 1914.

THE following despatch has been received by the Secretary of State for War from the Field-Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, British Forces in the Field :—

7th September 1914.

MY LORD,

I have the honour to report the proceedings of the Field Force under my command up to the time of rendering this despatch.

1. The transport of the troops from England both by sea and by rail was effected in the best order and without a check. Each unit arrived at its destination in this country well within the scheduled time.

The concentration was practically complete on the evening of Friday, the 21st ultimo, and I was able to make dispositions to move the Force during Saturday, the 22nd, to positions I considered most favourable from which to commence operations which the French Commander-in-Chief, General Joffre, requested me to undertake in pursuance of his plans in prosecution of the campaign.

The line taken up extended along the line of the canal from Conde on the west, through Mons and Binche on the east. This line was taken up as follows :—

From Conde to Mons inclusive was assigned to the Second Corps, and to the right of the Second Corps from Mons the First Corps was posted. The 5th Cavalry Brigade was placed at Binche.

In the absence of my Third Army Corps I desired to keep the Cavalry Division as much as possible as a reserve to act on my outer flank, or move in support of any threatened part of the line. The forward reconnaissance was entrusted to Brigadier-General Sir Philip Chetwode with the 5th Cavalry Brigade, but I directed General Allenby to send forward a few squadrons to assist in this work.

During the 22nd and 23rd these advanced squadrons did some excellent work, some of them penetrating as far as Soignies, and several encounters took place in which our troops showed to great advantage.

2. At 6 A. M., on August 23rd, I assembled the Commanders of the First and Second Corps and Cavalry Division at a point close to the position, and explained the general situation of the Allies, and what I understood to be General Joffre's plan. I discussed with them at some length the immediate situation in front of us.

From information I received from French Headquarters I understood that little more than one, or at most two, of the enemy's Army Corps, with perhaps one Cavalry Division, were in front of my position; and I was aware of no attempted outflanking movement by the enemy. I was confirmed in this opinion by the fact that my patrols encountered no undue opposition in their reconnoitring operations. The observation of my aeroplanes seemed also to bear out this estimate.

About 3 P. M. on Sunday, the 23rd, reports began coming in to the effect that the enemy was commencing an attack on the Mons line, apparently in some strength, but that the right of the position from Mons and Bray was being particularly threatened.

The Commander of the First Corps had pushed his flank back to some high ground south of Bray, and the 5th Cavalry Brigade evacuated Binche, moving slightly south: the enemy thereupon occupied Binche.

The right of the 3rd Division, under General Hamilton, was at Mons, which formed a somewhat dangerous salient; and I directed the Commander of the Second Corps to be careful not to keep the troops on this salient too long, but, if threatened seriously, to draw back the centre behind Mons. This was done before dark. In the meantime, about 5 P.M., I received a most unexpected message from General Joffre by telegraph, telling me that at least three German Corps, viz., a reserve corps, the 4th Corps and the 9th Corps, were moving on my position in front, and that the Second Corps was engaged in a turning movement from the direction of Tournay. He also informed me that the two reserve French divisions and the 5th French Army on my right were retiring, the Germans having on the previous day gained possession of the passages of the Sambre between Charleroi and Namur.

3. In view of the possibility of my being driven from the Mons position, I had previously ordered a position in rear to be reconnoitred. This position rested on the fortress of Maubeuge on the right and extended west to Jenlain, south-east of Valenciennes on the left. The position was reported difficult to hold, because standing crops and buildings made the siting of trenches very difficult and limited the field of fire in many important localities It nevertheless afforded a few good artillery positions

When the news of the retirement of the French and the heavy German threatening on my front reached me, I endeavoured to confirm it by aeroplane reconnaissance; and as a result of this I determined to effect a retirement to the Maubeuge position at daybreak on the 24th

A certain amount of fighting continued along the whole line throughout the night, and at daybreak on the 24th the 2nd Division from the neighbourhood of Harmignies made a powerful demonstration as if to retake Binche. This was supported by the artillery of both the 1st and 2nd Divisions, whilst the 1st Division took up a supporting position in the neighbourhood of Peissant Under cover of this demonstration the Second Corps retired on the line Dour-Quarouble-Frameries. The 3rd Division on the right of the Corps suffered considerable loss in this operation from the enemy, who had retaken Mons.

The Second Corps halted on this line, where they partially entrenched themselves, enabling Sir Douglas Haig with the First Corps gradually to withdraw to the new position; and he effected this without much further loss, reaching the line Bavai-Maubeuge about 7 P.M. Towards midday the enemy appeared to be directing his principal effort against our left.

I had previously ordered General Allenby with the Cavalry to act vigorously in advance of my left front and endeavour to take the pressure off.

About 7-30 A.M. General Allenby received a message from Sir Charles Fergusson, commanding 5th Division, saying that he was very hard pressed and in urgent need of support. On receipt of this message General Allenby drew in the Cavalry and endeavoured to bring direct support to the 5th Division.

During the course of this operation General De Lisle, of the 2nd Cavalry Brigade, thought he saw a good opportunity to paralyse the further advance of the enemy's infantry by making a mounted attack on his flank. He formed up and advanced for this purpose, but was held up by wire about 500 yards from his objective, and the 9th Lancers and 18th Hussars suffered severely in the retirement of the Brigade.

The 19th Infantry Brigade, which had been guarding the Line of Communications, was brought up by rail to Valenciennes on the 22nd and 23rd. On the morning of the 24th they were moved out to a position south of Quarouble to support the left flank of the Second Corps.

With the assistance of the Cavalry Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien was enabled to effect his retreat to a new position; although, having two corps of the enemy on his front and one threatening his flank, he suffered great losses in doing so.

At nightfall the position was occupied by the Second Corps to the west of Bavai, the First Corps to the right. The right was protected by the Fortress of Maubeuge, the left by the 19th Brigade in position between Jenlain and Bry, and the Cavalry on the outer flank.

4. The French were still retiring, and I had no support except such as was afforded by the Fortress of Maubeuge; and the determined attempts of the enemy to get round my left flank assured me that it was his intention to hem me against that place and surround me. I felt that not a moment must be lost in retiring to another position.

I had every reason to believe that the enemy's forces were somewhat exhausted, and I knew that they had suffered heavy losses. I hoped, therefore, that his pursuit would not be too vigorous to prevent me effecting my object.

The operation, however, was full of danger and difficulty, not only owing to the very superior force in my front, but also to the exhaustion of the troops.

The retirement was recommenced in the early morning of the 25th to a position in the neighbourhood of Le Cateau, and rearguards were ordered to be clear of the Maubeuge-Bavai-Eth Road by 5-30 A.M.

Two Cavalry Brigades, with the Divisional Cavalry of the Second Corps, covered the movement of the Second Corps. The remainder of the Cavalry Division with the 19th Brigade, the whole under the command of General Allenby, covered the west flank.

The 4th Division commenced its detrainment at Le Cateau on Sunday, the 23rd, and by the morning of the 25th eleven battalions and a Brigade of Artillery with Divisional Staff were available for service.

I ordered General Snow to move out to take up a position with his right, south of Solesmes, his left resting on the Cambrai-Le Cateau Road south of La Chaprie. In this position the Division rendered great help to the effective retirement of the Second and First Corps to the new position.

Although the troops had been ordered to occupy the Cambrai-Le Cateau-Landrecies position, and the ground had, during the 25th, been partially prepared and entrenched, I had grave doubts—owing to the information I received as to the accumulating strength of the enemy against me—as to the wisdom of standing there to fight.

Having regard to the continued retirement of the French on my right, my exposed left flank, the tendency of the enemy's western Corps (II.) to envelop me, and, more than all, the exhausted condition of the troops, I determined to make a great effort to continue the retreat till I could put some substantial obstacle, such as the Somme or the Oise, between my troops and the enemy, and afford the former some opportunity of rest and re-organisation. Orders were, therefore, sent to the Corps Commanders to continue their retreat as soon as they possibly could towards the general line Vermand-St. Quentin-Ribemont.

The Cavalry, under General Allenby, were ordered to cover the retirement.

Throughout the 25th and far into the evening, the First Corps continued its march on Landrecies, following the road along the eastern border of the Forêt De Mormal, and arrived at Landrecies about 10 o'clock. I had intended that the Corps should come further west so as to fill up the gap between Le Cateau and Landrecies, but the men were exhausted and could not get further in without rest.

The enemy, however, would not allow them this rest, and about 9-30 P.M. a report was received that the 4th Guards Brigade in Landrecies was heavily attacked by troops of the 9th German Army Corps who were coming through the forest on the north of the town. This brigade fought most gallantly and caused the enemy to suffer tremendous loss in issuing from the forest into the narrow streets of the town. The loss has been estimated from reliable sources at from 700 to 1,000. At the same time information reached me from Sir Douglas Haig that his 1st Division was also heavily engaged south and east of Maroilles. I sent urgent messages to the Commander of the two French Reserve Divisions on my right to come up to the assistance of the First Corps, which they eventually did. Partly owing to this assistance, but mainly to the skilful manner in which Sir Douglas Haig extricated his Corps from an exceptionally difficult position in the darkness of the night, they were able at dawn to resume their march south towards Wassigny on Guise.

By about 6 P.M. the Second Corps had got into position with their right on Le Cateau, their left in the neighbourhood of Caudry, and the line of defence was continued thence by the 4th Division towards Seranvillers, the left being thrown back.

During the fighting on the 24th and 25th the Cavalry became a good deal scattered, but by the early morning of the 26th, General Allenby had succeeded in concentrating two brigades to the south of Cambrai.

The 4th Division was placed under the orders of the General Officer Commanding the Second Army Corps.

On the 24th the French Cavalry Corps, consisting of three divisions, under General Sordêt, had been in billets north of Avesnes. On my way back from Bavai, which was my "Poste de Commandement" during the fighting of the 23rd and 24th, I visited General Sordêt, and earnestly requested his co-operation and support. He promised to obtain sanction from his Army Commander to act on my left flank, but said that his horses were too tired to move before the next day. Although he rendered me valuable assistance later on in the course of the retirement, he was unable for the reasons given to afford me any support on the most critical day of all, viz., the 26th.

At daybreak it became apparent that the enemy was throwing the bulk of his strength against the left of the position occupied by the Second Corps and the 4th Division.

At this time the guns of four German Army Corps were in position against them, and Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien reported to me that he judged it impossible to continue his retirement at daybreak (as ordered) in face of such an attack.

I sent him orders to use his utmost endeavours to break off the action and retire at the earliest possible moment, as it was impossible for me to send him any support, the First Corps being at the moment incapable of movement.

The French Cavalry Corps, under General Sordêt was coming up on our left rear early in the morning, and I sent an urgent message to him to do his utmost to come up and support the retirement of my left flank; but, owing to the fatigue of his horses he found himself unable to intervene in any way.

There had been no time to entrench the position properly, but the troops showed a magnificent front to the terrible fire which confronted them.

The Artillery, although outmatched by at least four to one, made a splendid fight, and inflicted heavy losses on their opponents.

At length it became apparent that, if complete annihilation was to be avoided, a retirement must be attempted; and the order was given to commence it about 3-30 P.M. The movement was covered with the most devoted intrepidity and determination by the Artillery, which had itself suffered heavily, and the fine work done by the Cavalry in the further retreat from the position assisted materially in the final completion of this most difficult and dangerous operation.

Fortunately the enemy had himself suffered too heavily to engage in an energetic pursuit.

I cannot close the brief account of this glorious stand of the British troops without putting on record my deep appreciation of the valuable services rendered by General Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien.

I say without hesitation that the saving of the left wing of the Army under my command on the morning of the 26th August could never have been accomplished unless a commander of rare and unusual coolness, intrepidity, and determination had been present to personally conduct the operation.

The retreat was continued far into the night of the 26th and through the 27th and 28th on which date the troops halted on the line Noyon-Chauny-La Fere, having then thrown off the weight of the enemy's pursuit.

On the 27th and 28th I was much indebted to General Sordêt and the French Cavalry Division which he commands for materially assisting my retirement and successfully driving back some of the enemy on Cambrai.

General D'Amade also, with the 61st and 62nd French Reserve Divisions, moved down from the neighbourhood of Arras on the enemy's right flank and took much pressure off the rear of the British Forces.

This closes the period covering the heavy fighting which commenced at Mons on Sunday afternoon, 23rd August and which really constituted a four days' battle.

At this point, therefore, I propose to close the present despatch.

I deeply deplore the very serious losses which the British Forces have suffered in this great battle; but they were inevitable in view of the fact that the British Army—only two days after a concentration by rail—was called upon to withstand a vigorous attack of five German Army Corps.

It is impossible for me to speak too highly of the skill evinced by the two General Officers commanding Army Corps; the self-sacrificing and devoted exertions of their Staffs; the direction of the troops by Divisional, Brigade and Regimental Leaders; the command of the smaller units by their officers; and the magnificent fighting spirit displayed by non-commissioned officers and men.

I wish particularly to bring to your Lordship's notice the admirable work done by the Royal Flying Corps under Sir David Henderson. Their skill, energy and perseverance have been beyond all praise. They have furnished me with the most complete and accurate information which has been of incalculable value in the conduct of the operations. Fired at constantly both by friend and foe, and not hesitating to fly in every kind of weather, they have remained undaunted throughout.

Further, by actually fighting in the air, they have succeeded in destroying five of the enemy's machines.

I wish to acknowledge with deep gratitude the incalculable assistance I received from the General and Personal Staffs at Headquarters during this trying period.

Lieutenant-General Sir Archibald Murray, Chief of the General Staff; Major-General Wilson, Sub-Chief of the General Staff; and all under them have worked day and night unceasingly with the utmost skill, self-sacrifice, and devotion, and the same acknowledgment is due by me to Brigadier-General Hon. W. Lambton, my Military Secretary, and the Personal Staff

In such operations as I have described the work of the Quartermaster-General is of an extremely onerous nature. Major-General Sir William Robertson has met what appeared to be almost insuperable difficulties with his characteristic energy, skill and determination, and it is largely owing to his exertions that the hardships and sufferings of the troops—inseparable from such operations—were not much greater.

Major-General Sir Nevil Macready, the Adjutant-General, has also been confronted with most onerous and difficult tasks in connection with disciplinary arrangements and the preparation of casualty lists. He has been indefatigable in his exertions to meet the difficult situations which arose.

I have not yet been able to complete the list of officers whose names I desire to bring to your Lordship's notice for services rendered during the period under review; and, as I understand it is of importance that this despatch should no longer be delayed, I propose to forward this list, separately, as soon as I can.

I have the honour to be,
Your Lordship's most obedient Servant,
(Signed) J. D. P. FRENCH, Field-Marshal
Commander-in-Chief,
British Forces in the Field.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 11th February 1915, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The disturbance referred to in last week's report occasioned further rain in the United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces, and as it advanced eastwards carried widespread rain into northeast India and even into Upper Burma, where rainfall is most unusual at this time of year. It ceased to affect the Indian area on the 8th; but another disturbance entered northwest India on the 6th, and passed eastwards across the country. It was associated with a deep depression, which apparently formed over the west Punjab on the 7th, and heavy precipitation resulted in the western Himalayas and widespread rain in the North-West Frontier Province, the Punjab, the United Provinces and the northern and eastern districts of northeast India. Unlike its predecessor it was not accompanied by low pressure conditions over Gujarat and Rajputana, and consequently rainfall did not extend into Rajputana, Central India or the Central Provinces. In consequence of these disturbances unusually wet weather prevailed during the week over almost the whole of northern India.

2. Burma.—Nearly general rain fell on the 6th over the province north of Yamethin.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—There was nearly general rain on the 5th throughout the division, and on the 4th in Bihar and Chota Nagpur.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Rainfall was nearly general on 4th in the United Provinces, Central India and the east of the Central Provinces, and on the 9th in the west of the United Provinces.

Northwest India.—Precipitation occurred at nearly every station on the 4th in the east and north Punjab and Kashmir, on the 6th in the North-West Frontier Province, on the 7th in the Punjab, Kashmir and North-West Frontier Province, and on the 8th in the east and north Punjab and Kashmir. Falls of rain were reported from Bikaner and Kotah.

The Peninsula.—Local rain fell on the north Madras coast on the 5th. A few scattered falls of rain occurred during the week in other parts of the division.

3. The chief amounts of precipitation were as follows :—

4th February 1915.—Hazaribagh 1·96″, Patna 1·15″, Gaya 1·93″, Benares 1·32″, Bareilly 8·75″, Roorkee 2·72″, Dehra Dun 2·18″, Mussooree 2·91″, Sutna 1·23″, Pendra 1·67″, Simla 1·16″, Ludhiana 1·35″, and Hanamkonda 0 91″.

5th „ Cuttack 1·00″, Ranchi 0·95″, Hazaribagh 1·25″, Lucknow 1·14″, Masulipatam 1·00″ and Waltair 1·26″.

7th „ Mussooree 2·82″, Rawalpindi 1·58″, Murree 3·27″, Srinagar 0·94″, Sonamarg 3·22″, Peshawar 2·17″, Cherat 5·24″, Parachinar 1·40″, Bikaner 1·35″ and Trivandrum 1·62″.

8th „ Mukteswar 2·15″, Mussooree 3·18″, Dehra Dun 1·11″, Bareilly 1·50″, Agra 1·04″, Delhi 1·23″, Montgomery 1·28″, Srinagar 1·22″ and Sonamarg 2·78″.

9th „ Sonamarg 0·90″.

10th „ Silchar 0·98″, Cherrapunji 1·66″ and Narayanganj 1·12″.

4. The rainfall of the week was 20 per cent. or more in defect in the Bay Islands, Lower Burma, Baluchistan, Sind, Gujarat, Berar, the Central Provinces West, the Bombay Deccan, Hyderabad North and Madras Southeast. No rain fell in Mysore, but the absence of rainfall there is a normal feature at this time of year. In all the remaining divisions rainfall was 20 per cent. or more in excess.

The rainfall from the 4th December to date is 20 per cent. or more in excess over by far the greater part of the country. It is 20 per cent. or more in defect in Assam, the Punjab Southwest, Baluchistan, Sind and Mysore; and is within 20 per cent. of the normal in Orissa, Kashmir, Central India East and Madras Southeast.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 6th February 1915.

Burma.—Light rain fell in six districts of Lower Burma and slight showers were received in three districts of Upper Burma and the Northern Shan States. Threshing and winnowing of winter rice has been nearly completed. Agricultural operations in connexion with spring rice and miscellaneous crops are proceeding. Standing crops are generally doing well. The price of unhusked rice has fallen slightly at Rangoon.

Assam.—The weather was seasonable. Harvesting of mustard, pressing of sugarcane, hoeing and pruning of tea and ploughing of land for rice and jute are in progress. The outturn of mustard is moderate to poor. The price of common rice has risen slightly. Cattle disease is reported from three districts. Fodder is insufficient in parts of Kamrup.

Bengal.—General rain fell throughout the Province, facilitating ploughing operations for the autumn crops and doing some good to the standing spring crops. Threshing of winter rice is nearly over. Harvesting of the spring crops and pressing of sugarcane continue. Prospects of standing crops are generally reported to be satisfactory. Cattle disease is reported from fourteen districts. The average price of common rice has fallen by about 1·3 per cent as compared with that of the previous week.

Bihar and Orissa.—General rain was received over the Province, the fall being mostly light to moderate. Pressing of sugarcane and harvesting of the early spring crops continue. The recent rain has been beneficial to the late spring crops but has proved somewhat injurious to pulses which are ready for harvesting. The average price of common rice has risen as compared with that of the previous week. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from fourteen districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is good.

United Provinces.—Good and general rain has fallen throughout the Provinces and proved beneficial to standing crops which are doing well. Slight damage to crops by hail, rain, frost and insects is reported from some parts of the Provinces. Pressing of sugarcane and preparation of lands for cane and extra crops are in progress. Prospects are favourable. Agricultural stock is in good condition. Cattle disease is reported from thirteen districts. Fodder and water are sufficient. Markets are full except in Mainpuri and Hardoi where stocks have run low. Prices are rising generally.

Punjab.—Good rain fell in all the reporting districts except in the west where more rain is urgently required. It has greatly benefited wheat and other standing crops. Prospects of the spring harvest are now good. Pressing of sugarcane and harvesting of toria continue, with yield generally average to good. Ploughing for and sowing of extra spring crops are in progress and are normal. Cattle are generally healthy and fodder and water are sufficient. Prices of food grains are generally at scarcity rates.

North-West Frontier Province.—Sufficient rain fell all over the Province except in Dera Ismail Khan. The weather is cloudy at Bannu and bright elsewhere. Standing crops both on irrigated and unirrigated areas are fair. Harvesting of sugarcane continues in Bannu and gur is still being made in Peshawar. The condition of cattle is generally good Fodder and water are procurable. Prices of wheat and maize are high in Peshawar.

Jammu.—Good rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 7¾ to 12 and maize from 10 to 24 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is good. Cattle disease is reported in the Jammu tahsil. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—Heavy rain fell is Muzaffarabad and heavy snow in the Valley. Cattle disease is reported in Uttarmachhipura and Sripartabsinghpura. Prices are rising in Baramulla and are normal elsewhere. Fodder and water are sufficient.

Rajputana.—The weather is cloudy and cold. General rain fell throughout Rajputana and Ajmer-Merwara, the maximum fall being 420 cents in Marwar. Standing crops are in good condition. The rain has proved immensely beneficial to crops in the Eastern Rajputana States and has done good in Tonk and Alwar. Prospects are fair to good. Crops have suffered from hailstorms in Partabgarh, Karauli, Dungarpur and Bharatpur and from insects in Tonk. Fodder and water are generally sufficient. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices are stationary but are rising in a few places.

Central India.—The rainfall was general in Gwalior, Indore, Bhopal and Baghelkhand slight in Bundelkhand and the Southern States and nil in Malwa. The fall was sufficient throughout except in Bundelkhand. The weather is cool. Picking of cotton has been finished in Indore and Malwa. Harvesting of autumn crops is in progress. Standing crops are generally good Crops have been damaged in the Garrauli and Lughasi States of Bundelkhand for want of rain, in parts of Dhar by rats and in parts of Barwani and Alirajpur by hail. Cattle disease prevails in the Nagod State of Baghelkhand and in parts of Alirajpur. The fodder supply is sufficient throughout. Prices are rising in Gwalior, the Nimar district of Indore, Bhopal, Baghelkhand and Malwa and are steady elsewhere. Poppy is being irrigated in Gwalior, Indore and Bhopal.

Central Provinces.—The weather continued to be cool and occasionally cloudy. Light to moderate rain, nowhere exceeding 2 inches, was received all over the Province except in the Berar and Nagpur divisions and was beneficial to the spring crops generally and to the late sown crops especially. Threshing and winnowing of juar and picking of cotton have been practically completed. Harvesting of the minor spring crops has begun in certain districts. The supply of fodder and water is adequate. Agricultural stock is in good condition. The price of wheat fell in six districts but it still remains high in others. Juar became dearer in Chhindwara and Buldana and cheaper in Wardha by 2 to 2½ seers per rupee. There were no other marked variations in prices.

Feudatory States.—Ten States received moderate rain which was accompanied by severe hail in Kawardha where considerable damage to spring crops is reported. Prospects of spring crops are generally good. Rice rose by 2 seers in Udaipur.

Bombay.—Rain fell during the week in Sind, Ahmedabad, the Panch Mahals, Surat, Satara, Kolaba, the Deccan, Belgaum, Palanpur, Rewa Kantha, Savantwadi and Kolhapur. Standing crops are generally in good condition except for slight damage by rain in Khandesh, Nasik and Belgaum, by disease in parts of Karachi and by insects in two talukas of Nawabshah. Cotton picking is progressing in Hyderabad, Thar and Parkar, Nawabshah, Ahmedabad, Broach, Dharwar, Kathiawar, Baroda, Cutch and Rewa Kantha. Harvesting of spring crops continues in the Deccan and the Karnatak. The fodder supply is sufficient, except in the area affected by floods and in the hilly tracts of Karachi, two talukas of Thar and Parkar and one taluka of Nawabshah. Cattle are in good condition. Agricultural stock is sufficient except in Ahmednagar and Poona. Drinking water is adequate. Water for irrigation is generally sufficient. Prices have slightly risen in Sind and Gujarat and are generally steady elsewhere.

Hyderabad.—Rain fell in all districts except Nander, Gulbarga, Bidar, Nizamabad and Medak. The highest fall was 3 inches in Parkal. Spring crops are being harvested and are fair to good but have been damaged by rain and insects in parts of the Medak district and by rats in parts of the Aurangabad, Usmanabad and Bidar districts. Late rice is being sown and weeded. Germination of crops is satisfactory. Cattle disease prevails in eight talukas. Prices :—Wheat 5, coarse rice 7¼ and juar 14½ seers per rupee. The highest price in districts is juar 11 seers in Parbhani and Warangal and the lowest 24 seers in Adilabad.

Mysore.—Rainfall nil. The price of ragi has risen in Kolar and that of rice has fallen in Hassan. Markets are well supplied. The outturn of the harvested ragi is good and that of paddy, sugarcane, gram, coffee and cotton is fair. Standing crops are in good condition. Prospects of the season are generally good. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—Threshing of rice and picking of coffee continue. Prices of food grains are high. The public health is fair. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Madras.—The rainfall was fair in the Vizagapatam littoral, Godavari, Kistna and Guntur and light or nil elsewhere. Standing crops are fair to good but are withering or require rain in parts of four districts and have been slightly damaged by rain in parts of one district. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is proceeding generally with outturn fair to normal. Sowing of paddy and dry crops is proceeding normally. The condition of cattle is generally good. The water supply is sufficient except in parts of Ganjam, Godavari, the Deccan, Nellore, South Arcot, Madura, Tinnevelly and central parts except in Coimbatore. Pasture is sufficient except in Guntur, Kurnool and in parts of seven other districts. Fodder is generally sufficient Prices show a slight tendency to rise.

(i) The North Andaman with Interview, Bennett, and all other islands North of Austin Strait.

(ii) The Middle Andaman excepting that portion to the west of Yoljig and South of the main line cleared from the junction of the Chara-lung-ta and Bom-lung-ta streams westwards to Mount Oldham and on to the sea.

2. Sites for depots, sawmills, residences, and other purposes essential to the carrying out of the terms of the license will be made available at Pott Cornwallis, Stewart Sound, and Long Island at the discretion of the Chief Commissioner of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

3. Tenders may be submitted for either or both of the above areas. The license will be for 20 years from the 1st January 1916, or such later date within six months of the acceptance of the tender as may be agreed upon, with the option of renewal for another 20 years on terms to be notified by the Government of India hereafter; but those persons whose tenders have been accepted will be permitted to clear land for buildings, and other purposes connected with the license, and to start the erection of such buildings, as from the date on which the agreement is signed and the security money deposited.

4. The fellings will be regulated by the working plans sanctioned, or to be sanctioned, by the Government of India. The two areas mentioned in paragraph 1 above will each be divided into three sub-periodic blocks. Felling and extraction of timber and the payment of royalty thereon must be completed in sub-periodic block I by the end of the first seven years of the license, work being similarly completed in sub-periodic blocks II and III by the end of the 11th and 15th years, respectively. Throughout the period of the agreement the Secretary of State for India in Council will retain the right to extract from the licensed areas timber required for local (other than trade purposes and for local public works, and in any sub-periodic block on the expiry of the period allotted for the working thereof to issue licenses or otherwise provide for the felling, extraction, and disposal of timber which the licensees have omitted or are not bound to extract.

5. The padauk trees to be felled will be marked previously by the Forest Department, and none but marked trees shall be felled. The first sub-periodic block in each area will be located in the neighbourhood of Stewart Sound.

6. The minimum annual outturn of padauk timber for the first fourteen years after which the present working-plan will be revised, is estimated as follows, but the accuracy of the estimate is not guaranteed :—

(i) From the North Andaman including Interview and Bennett Islands—

1,200 sound trees of and over 9 feet in girth,

1,000 exploitable unsound trees,

which may be expected to yield —

2,100 tons of first class logs.

1,400 tons of second class logs.

2,000 tons of third class logs.

(ii) From the Middle Andaman—

2,400 sound trees of and over 9 feet in girth,

2,000 exploitable unsound trees,

which may be expected to yield—

4,200 tons of first class logs.

2,800 tons of second class logs.

4,000 tons of third class logs.

The outturn for the last six years of the license will be determined by working plans to be drawn up hereafter.

7. In addition the licensees will be permitted to cut, subject to previous marking, should this in the opinion of the Forest Officer be considered desirable, and to such limits as to area and number as may be imposed by the Chief Commissioner of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands from time to time, other species as follows :—

Gurjan over 8 feet in girth, didu and pyinma over 7½ feet in girth, and koko, black chulgam, white chulgam, white bambwe, red bambwe, and taungpein over 6 feet in girth.

8. The timber will, in all cases, be measured in the round log either at the stump or at collecting depots as may be found convenient by the Forest Department. All felled timber will be held to be at the risk of the licensees and to be liable to the payment of royalty which must be paid before removal from the islands or conversion in a sawmill.

9. For the first three years of the license royalty will be payable at the rates agreed on and on the amount of timber felled : but thereafter minima annual royalties will be payable as follows :—

(i) For the North Andaman, Rs. 1,00,000 per annum.

(ii) For the Middle Andaman, Rs. 1,00,000 per annum.

(iii) In case of a combined license for both islands Rs. 2,00,000 per annum.

10. Except with the special permission of the Divisional Forest Officer all padauk trees sound or unsound, which have been marked by the forest officers as in their opinion worth conversion, must be felled and royalty paid on them.

11. Should the licensees desire to exploit any form of minor produce or any timber other than those species mentioned above they may be permitted to do so on terms to be settled hereafter by the Chief Commissioner of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

12. The licensees will be subject to such restrictions as the Government of India may prescribe to prevent communication between their employés and the convict population in the Andamans.

13. Subject to the general control of the Chief Commissioner of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands the cultivation of field crops solely for the support of the labour force will be permitted free of taxation.

14. Facilities will be provided at Stewart Sound for wireless telegraphy, and as far as may be possible for a weekly steamer or launch connection for postal purposes between this place and Port Blair.

15. Such padauk timber as may be available from departmental working in the areas not included in the first paragraph of this notice, or in sub-periodic blocks in which felling and extraction of timber has been completed by the licensees in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 4 above and as may not be required for local consumption in the islands or for issue to State-worked Railways or other Government departments in India and Burma, will be sold either by public auction or by public tender, provided that the quantity to be so sold annually, commencing from the first of January 1917, shall not exceed 500 tons of squares and 1,000 tons of scantlings. There will be no limit to the quantity of timber other than padauk which may be extracted from the areas under reference, and no restriction as to its disposal.

16. The Inspector-General of Forests, Simla, will answer calls for further information.

17. Tenders must be submitted on forms to be obtained from the Secretary to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture, and must be accompanied by a receipt for the payment into any Government Treasury of a sum of Rs. 1,500 in cash or in Government securities. This deposit will be returned to unsuccessful tenderers, but in the case of persons whose tenders have been accepted will be subject to forfeiture in the event of their failure to execute, within the time specified, the agreement referred to below.

18. All persons whose tenders have been accepted will be required to execute an agreement in a form approved by the Government of India, copies of which can be obtained on application to the Secretary to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture, Simla. This agreement must be signed within three months of the acceptance of the tender.

19. Tenders, marked "Tender for Andamans Timber License," should be submitted so as to reach the Secretary to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture, Simla, on or before the 1st September 1915. The Government of India do not undertake to accept the highest or any tender either for padauk or for other timbers, or to assign any reasons for the refusal or acceptance of any tender.

20. Without the written sanction of the Government of India no transfer, assignment or sub-letting of their license by the licensees will be valid.

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

PART II.

Notifications by High Court, Comptroller General, etc.

GAZETTE OF INDIA.

NOTICE.

The 18th September 1914.

On and after the 7th November and until further notice, Parts I, IV, V and VI of the Gazette of India and the Weather and Crop Report will be published in Delhi. Parts II and III will continue to be published in Calcutta. All notifications and other matter intended for publication in those Parts should be addressed to the Publisher at Delhi and Calcutta, respectively.

Attention is invited to the following Circular Memorandum of the Government of India, Home Department, of August 1901:—

"It has been brought to the notice of this Department that matter for the Gazette of India is sometimes sent to the Press late on Friday evenings for publication in the next day's Gazette and that this involves considerable inconvenience to the Press and expense to Government. In the Circular Memorandum of this Department, No. 777—79, dated 9th February 1870, the Government of India directed that all notifications or other matter intended for insertion in the Gazette of India should be delivered at the Press not later than 2 P.M. on Friday, and that any papers sent thereafter must be certified to be extremely urgent in order to ensure their appearance in the next day's Gazette. The undersigned is directed to request that these orders may be more strictly observed in future, and that Departments will refrain from sending to the Press as extremely urgent any papers which can without harm or inconvenience be held over for the next Gazette.

J. P. HEWETT,
Secretary to the Government of India."

NOTICES.

THE PATENT OFFICE, 1, COUNCIL HOUSE STREET, CALCUTTA.

Public room, open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

1. All communications relating to applications for patents and for registration of designs under the Indian Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), or in continuation of applications under the Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888) should be addressed to the Controller of Patents and Designs, 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. Documents sent by post should be carefully packed.

2. Directions for the guidance of inventors and others are given in the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911 (price 10 annas), and in the Indian Patents and Designs Rules, 1912 (price 2 annas). These should be consulted before an application is made to the Controller.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs nor their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. Applications for patents in countries other than India should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

4. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

5. Trade and property marks and names are not registered and medicines are not patented under the Indian Patents and Designs Act. There is no provision of Law in British India for their registration.

6. Printed Specifications of applications, which have been accepted, are published within about three weeks after acceptance has been notified in the Gazette of India.

These specifications can be purchased at the Patent Office at a uniform price of 8 annas per copy; and may be seen free of charge, together with other publications of the Patent Office, at the following places:—

CEMETERY NOTICE.

The following monuments in the Old Residency Cemetery at Nagpur, Central Provinces, have fallen into a state of disrepair :—

1. Grace Madeline, daughter of Mrs. Sophia Ellison, died 18th January 1865.
2. Annie Georgina Rose Blake, died 3rd March 1865.
3. William Charles Hurlock, died 6th January 1843.
4. Thomas Hertford Lynn, died 1st January 1858.

Will the relatives or friends interested in the proper upkeep of these monuments kindly communicate with the Chaplain of Nagpur, Central Provinces, otherwise after the third publication of this Notice the monuments will be dealt with as required by Rule 10, Part IV, of the Government of India, Education Department (Ecclesiastical) Notification No. 212, dated 10th May 1913.

C. PRICE,
Chaplain of Nagpur.

HISTORICAL RECORD OF THE IMPERIAL VISIT TO INDIA, 1911.

This book, which has been compiled by the Government of India from the official records, contains a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911, including lists of the persons taking part in all the various celebrations and ceremonies at which Their Imperial Majesties were present, as well as a large number of illustrations, portraits of Ruling Princes and others, coloured Persian and Sanscrit texts, maps, plans, etc.

The book has been published by Mr. John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, W., and copies are now procurable from all the principal booksellers.

There are two editions—a popular one in a cloth binding, price Rs. 7-8-0, and a very limited edition de luxe, price Rs. 250, which has been subscribed for. As the popular edition is strictly limited, and a considerable portion of it has been absorbed in requisitions already received and in the requirements of libraries, schools, etc., it will probably be exhausted very soon after publication. Those who have not yet ordered copies but require them are therefore advised to order at an early date. Application should be made to the Superintendent, Government Printing, India, Calcutta.

DEPARTMENT OF MINES IN INDIA, DHANBAID P. O., MANBHUM.

Indian Mines Act, 1901.

NOTICE.

An examination for first and second class Coal Mine Managers' certificates of competency under the rules applicable to coal mines will be held at the Railway Institute, Dhanbaid, on the 17th, 18th and 19th March 1915.

Rules 32 and 33 of the Indian Mines Act, 1901, require that a candidate for a first class certificate must be at least 23 years of age, and have had at least five years' practical experience in a coal mine, and for a second class certificate be at least 21 years of age, and have had at least three years' practical experience in a coal mine. The periods of practical experience may be reduced to three years and one year, respectively, in the case of a candidate who has received a diploma in scientific and mining subjects after a course of study of at least two years at an educational institution approved in this behalf by the Governor-General in Council, or who has taken a degree in scientific and mining subjects at a University approved in this behalf by the Governor-General in Council.

The fees are Rs. 15 in the case of first class certificates and Rs. 8 in the case of second class certificates.

Applications and fees will be received up to the 1st March 1915, after which date no application will be considered.

G. F. ADAMS,
Chief Inspector of Mines in India.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT FORT WILLIAM IN BENGAL.

SURVEY OF INDIA—EASTERN CIRCLE.

NOTIFICATION.

Shillong, the 13th February 1915.

No. 1.—Mr. B. C. Newland, Extra Assistant Superintendent, Survey of India is granted privilege leave for 1 month and 7 days with effect from the 8th February 1915 under Articles 246 and 260 of the Civil Service Regulations.

R. CHRICHTON, Lieut.-Col., I.A.,
Superintendent, Eastern Circle.

ORDERS BY THE HON'BLE THE CHIEF COMMISSIONER, AJMER-MERWARA.

NOTIFICATION.

Dated Camp, the 11th February 1915.

No. 2120-984-C.—The Hon'ble the Chief Commissioner is pleased to make the following amendments in the rules published under his notification No. 83—C.—984, dated the 25th January 1900, for regulating the procedure in the acquisition of land under Act I of 1894 and the award and payment of compensation for lands acquired thereunder :—

Substitute the following for rule :—

" 1-A. When the land is selected for aquisition every endeavour should be made to avoid religious buildings, tombs, grave-yards, etc. : if this can be done by a slight alteration of the alignment or site chosen. The fact that the land contains religious buildings, tombs or grave-yards should be specifically noted in the application."

"1-B. When a draft notification under section 4 or section 6 is submitted, it shall be accompanied by a statement giving full particulars of any religious buildings, tombs and grave-yards on the land. The Collector shall also prepare and submit confidentially to the Chief Commissioner through the Commissioner a note dealing with the nature of, and weight to be attached to, objections which have already been raised or are likely to be raised by persons directly or indirectly interested or by any section of the public. If no objections have been raised or are anticipated, the fact should be stated and it should at the same time be explained whether in the event of acquisition the demolition of the buildings or obliteration of the tombs will be necessary.

The above procedure may be dispensed with under the orders of the Chief Commissioner in any case in which owing to the large area involved or any other cause the preparation of the necessary statements would cause excessive delay."

" 1-C. After publication (under section 4 of the Act) of a notification that land is likely to be needed for any public purpose in any locality, the Collector shall take measures for informing the residents in that locality that such land may be required for a public purpose. To this end the Collector shall cause a notice (in Form I) to that effect to be affixed at convenient places in the locality—in a town at the police-station, and in a village at the Hatai—and shall also cause the same notice to be published by proclamation in the locality. The notice should also warn all persons not to obstruct the operations of any officer who may be authorised by Government to survey or take levels of the land and to mark off the ground which may be required for public purposes under the penaltics prescribed by section 46 of the Act."

"1-D. After acquisition proceedings have been initiated, the Collector may himself dispose of any objection raised if they can be settled amicably. If however they cannot be settled amicably or if for any reason the Collector apprehends that the local settlement of such objections may not be accepted by the public, he shall submit it to the Chief Commissioner through the Commissioner for orders. This procedure should be observed with special care when land is acquired for street improvements or for the removal of congested areas as in such cases the proceedings are more public than in ordinary cases and agitations may be fomented more easily."

In rule 7, after " wells and other such property " add a coma and the words " religious buildings, tomb, and grave-yards, etc."

By order,
R. E. A. HAMILTON, Major,
First Assistant to the Agent to the Governor-General, Rajputana, and Chief Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwara.

THE HON'BLE THE AGENT TO THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL IN BALUCHISTAN.

Notifications by High Court, Comptroller General, etc.

GAZETTE OF INDIA.

NOTICE.

The 18th September 1914.

On and after the 7th November and until further notice, Parts I, IV, V and VI of the Gazette of India and the Weather and Crop Report will be published in Delhi. Parts II and III will continue to be published in Calcutta. All notifications and other matter intended for publication in those Parts should be addressed to the Publisher at Delhi and Calcutta, respectively.

Attention is invited to the following Circular Memorandum of the Government of India, Home Department, of August 1901:—

"It has been brought to the notice of this Department that matter for the Gazette of India is sometimes sent to the Press late on Friday evenings for publication in the next day's Gazette and that this involves considerable inconvenience to the Press and expense to Government. In the Circular Memorandum of this Department, No. 777—79, dated 9th February 1870, the Government of India directed that all notifications or other matter intended for insertion in the Gazette of India should be delivered at the Press not later than 2 P.M. on Friday, and that any papers sent thereafter must be certified to be extremely urgent in order to ensure their appearance in the next day's Gazette. The undersigned is directed to request that these orders may be more strictly observed in future, and that Departments will refrain from sending to the Press as extremely urgent any papers which can without harm or inconvenience be held over for the next Gazette.

J. P. HEWETT,
Secretary to the Government of India."

NOTICES.

THE PATENT OFFICE, 1, COUNCIL HOUSE STREET, CALCUTTA.

Public room, open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

1. All communications relating to applications for patents and for registration of designs under the Indian Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), or in continuation of applications under the Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888) should be addressed to the Controller of Patents and Designs, 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. Documents sent by post should be carefully packed.

2. Directions for the guidance of inventors and others are given in the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911 (price 10 annas), and in the Indian Patents and Designs Rules, 1912 (price 2 annas). These should be consulted before an application is made to the Controller.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs nor their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. Applications for patents in countries other than India should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

4. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

5. Trade and property marks and names are not registered and medicines are not patented under the Indian Patents and Designs Act. There is no provision of Law in British India for their registration.

6. Printed Specifications of applications, which have been accepted, are published within about three weeks after acceptance has been notified in the Gazette of India. These specifications can be purchased at the Patent Office at a uniform price of 8 annas per copy; and may be seen free of charge, together with other publications of the Patent Office, at the following places:—

HISTORICAL RECORD OF THE IMPERIAL VISIT TO INDIA, 1911.

This book, which has been compiled by the Government of India from the official records, contains a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911, including lists of the persons taking part in all the various celebrations and ceremonies at which Their Imperial Majesties were present, as well as a large number of illustrations, portraits of Ruling Princes and others, coloured Persian and Sanscrit texts, maps, plans, etc.

The book has been published by Mr. John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, W., and copies are now procurable from all the principal booksellers.

There are two editions—a popular one in a cloth binding, price Rs. 7-8-0, and a very limited edition de luxe, price Rs. 250, which has been subscribed for. As the popular edition is strictly limited, and a considerable portion of it has been absorbed in requisitions already received and in the requirements of libraries, schools, etc., it will probably be exhausted very soon after publication. Those who have not yet ordered copies but require them are therefore advised to order at an early date. Application should be made to the Superintendent, Government Printing, India, Calcutta.

DEPARTMENT OF MINES IN INDIA, DHANBAID P. O., MANBHUM.

Indian Mines Act, 1901.

NOTICE.

An examination for first and second class Coal Mine Managers' certificates of competency under the rules applicable to coal mines will be held at the Railway Institute, Dhanbaid, on the 17th, 18th and 19th March 1915.

Rules 32 and 33 of the Indian Mines Act, 1901, require that a candidate for a first class certificate must be at least 23 years of age, and have had at least five years' practical experience in a coal mine, and for a second class certificate be at least 21 years of age, and have had at least three years' practical experience in a coal mine. The periods of practical experience may be reduced to three years and one year, respectively, in the case of a candidate who has received a diploma in scientific and mining subjects after a course of study of at least two years at an educational institution approved in this behalf by the Governor-General in Council, or who has taken a degree in scientific and mining subjects at a University approved in this behalf by the Governor-General in Council.

The fees are Rs. 15 in the case of first class certificates and Rs. 8 in the case of second class certificates.

Applications and fees will be received up to the 1st March 1915, after which date no application will be considered.

G. F. ADAMS,
Chief Inspector of Mines in India.

HIGH COURT, ORIGINAL SIDE.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Calcutta, the 20th February 1915.

It is ordered that Rule 22 of Chapter I of "The Rules of the High Court, 1914," be repealed, and that the following Rules be passed in substitution therefor with effect from the 1st March 1915:—

22. No attorney shall be entitled to take more than one clerk for service under these rules at one and the same time.

22A. No attorney shall be entitled to take any clerk for service under these rules until he shall have been himself in practice as an attorney on his own account and not merely as an assistant to any other attorney or firm of attorneys, for at least seven years.

22B. The High Court may, in any particular case, relax the provisions of the last mentioned rule 22A to such extent as it may think fit.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN SELECTED ARTICLES IN DECEMBER 1914.

The object of the tables below is to show the quantities of the principal staples of agricultural produce imported from the various provinces, etc., and from foreign countries into the ports of Calcutta, Bombay, Karachi, and the Madras ports during the month of December 1914, and for the nine months April to December 1914, as compared with the corresponding periods of 1913. The statistics include foreign seaborne and coasting trade as well as inland (rail and riverborne) trade. They have been furnished by Collectors of Customs, Steamer Companies, Railway Audit Officers, the Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta, etc.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN DECEMBER 1913 AND 1914.

It will be seen from table I, that the imports by rail, river and sea in December 1914, as against the corresponding month of 1913 show (in round numbers) a fall of :—

66 per cent in linseed.
(97,000 cwts. as against 289,000 cwts. last year).

66 per cent in raw cotton.
(723,000 cwts. as against 2,104,000 cwts. last year).

36 per cent in rape and mustard seed.
(139,000 cwts. as against 215,000 cwts. last year).

19 per cent in rice.
(1,447,000 cwts. as against 1,779,000 cwts. last year).

7 per cent in jute.
(2,475,000 cwts. as against 2,676,000 cwts. last year).

The imports of tea by rail, river and sea into Calcutta show an increase of 22 per cent (252,000 cwts. as against 207,000 cwts. last year) due mainly to larger receipts from Assam and Bengal. The increase of 11 per cent (638,000 cwts. as against 577,000 cwts. last year) in the imports into the ports of [illegible]m and pulse, is owing to larger exports from Bihar and Orissa and the United Provinces to Calcutta. The imports of wheat show an increase of 9 per cent (949,000 cwts. as against 869,000 cwts. last year) due to larger exports from the United Provinces to Calcutta, and larger exports from the Punjab to Karachi and Bombay (port). Table X shows the exports out of India of wheat month by month during the last three years.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN DECEMBER 1914 AS COMPARED WITH THE PREVIOUS MONTH.

As compared with November 1914, the imports in December into the ports referred to above show (in round numbers) an increase of :—

138 per cent in raw cotton.
(723,000 cwts. as against 304,000 cwts. previous month).

24 per cent in jute.
(2,475,000 cwts. as against 1,997,000 cwts. previous month).

and a decrease of—

38 per cent in wheat.
(949,000 cwts. as against 1,540,000 cwts. previous month).

34 per cent in linseed.
(97,000 cwts. as against 149,000 cwts. previous month).

32 per cent in tea.
(252,000 cwts. as against 369,000 cwts. previous month).

20 per cent in gram and pulse.
(638,000 cwts. as against 797,000 cwts. previous month).

15 per cent in rice.
(1,447,000 cwts. as against 1,710,000 cwts. previous month).

14 per cent in rape and mustard seed.
(139,000 cwts. as against 162,000 cwts. previous month).

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN NINE MONTHS ENDING DECEMBER 1913 AND 1914.

Table I shows increases in the nine monthly total figures of two articles only, namely, tea (18·7 per cent) and rice (7·6 per cent).

The decreases, over the nine months April to December 1914, in the imports were 40 per cent in jute, 35 per cent in linseed, 34 per cent in wheat, 32 per cent in rape and mustard seed, 28 per cent in gram and pulse and 21 per cent in raw cotton.

Exports of jute to Calcutta from Assam fell off by 3 lakhs of cwts. from Bengal by 61 lakhs and from Bihar and Orissa by 5 lakhs. The United Provinces exported to ports 8 lakhs of cwts., Rajputana and Central India 13 lakhs cwts., and the Central Provinces and Berar 8 lakhs cwts. less of linseed. The despatches of wheat from the United Provinces fell off by 51 lakhs of cwts., from the Rajputana and Central India by 24 lakhs and from the Central Provinces and Berar by 30 lakhs. The exports of rape and mustard seed from the United Provinces showed a decrease of 11 lakhs cwts., those of gram and pulse from the United Provinces, the Punjab, and the Central Provinces and Berar of 15 lakhs, 3 lakhs, and 4 lakhs cwts. respectively. The United Provinces despatched 8 lakhs, the Punjab 5 lakhs, the Bombay Presidency 2 lakhs, and the Central Provinces and Berar 5 lakhs, of cwts. less of cotton, raw than in the corresponding period of last year.

The Statistics for December as also for the nine months ending 31st December 1914, are summarised below :—

TARIFF VALUATION OF SUGAR.

The following statement shows in respect of each of the descriptions of sugar distinguished in the Tariff Schedule IV (excepting molasses and all other kinds of sugar), firstly, the total imports into India in the month of January, 1915, and the average value per cwt. as calculated on the returns received from the Customs Houses; and, secondly, a running total showing the total imports into India since the beginning of the year (1st October to 30th September) and the average net value per cwt. so far established. It is published in conformity with the procedure laid down in Customs Circular No. V of 1911, in order to enable merchants to compute the probable rate of duty for the year 1916:—

Compared with the trade of the corresponding month of 1914 there is a decrease in imports in January 1915 of ₹7,98 lakhs and in exports of ₹10,69 lakhs.

There were decreases in imports of Food, drink and tobacco of ₹1,11 lakhs, of which sugar 16 D. S. and above accounted for ₹94 lakhs and salt ₹10 lakhs. Articles wholly or mainly manufactured declined by ₹6,71 lakhs, due to restricted imports of hardware (₹22 lakhs), machinery (₹39 lakhs), iron and steel (₹1,11 lakhs), copper (₹28 lakhs), railway plant (₹44 lakhs), cotton piecegoods (₹2,40 lakhs), silk manufactures (₹18 lakhs), and manufactured wool (₹12 lakhs).

In exports of Food, drink and tobacco increases are noticeable in wheat (₹14 lakhs) and tea (₹7 lakhs), set off by decreases under rice (₹28 lakhs). Raw materials declined by ₹9,63 lakhs, of which hides and skins, raw, showed a decrease of ₹67 lakhs, seeds of ₹2,16 lakhs, raw cotton of ₹3,42 lakhs, raw jute of ₹3,02 lakhs and raw wool and lac of ₹9 lakhs each. Of Manufactured articles cotton goods are responsible for a decrease of ₹39 lakhs and jute goods of ₹46 lakhs.

The summary of the results for January and for the ten months ended January is as follows:—

In the last week of the month of January the trade was more brisk than in other weeks (R3,08 lakhs). There has been a steady increase in total exports week after week since the last week of December. During the months of war Calcutta has done more export business than all the other chief ports put together.

The accounts of the trade of British India with each of the principal countries have been made up for the quarter ending December 1914, and the total trade with the Allies and some of the neutral countries is noted below, as compared with the corresponding quarter of 1913 :—

PAY AND ALLOWANCES—FUNDS.

Dated Delhi, the 24th February 1915.

No. 307 P.-Camp.—Under the authority of His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, the Governor-General in Council directs the publication, in continuation of Finance Department Notification No. 771-P., dated the 17th July 1914, of the following Regulations regarding the "Indian Military Widows' and Orphans' Fund." They come into force with effect from the 1st January 1915.

INDIAN MILITARY WIDOWS' AND ORPHANS' FUND.

I. The following regulations are designed to secure suitable provision for the widows and orphans of officers of the Indian Army, officers of the Indian Medical Service, officers and engineers of the Royal Indian Marine, and Chaplains on the Indian Establishment, not being subscribers under the Indian Military Service Family Pension Regulations; also of continuous service Royal Artillery and Royal Engineer officers, as well as Royal Engineer officers under the 1904 conditions of service, who, not being subscribers under the Indian Military Service Family Pension Regulations, elect to subscribe to this Fund.

II. Such pensions and compassionate allowances as are, by Royal Warrant, granted to the widows and families of military officers of the British Service, are granted from Indian revenues to the widows and families of military officers in the service of the Government of India. It is not intended by the present regulations to impose on the revenues of India any further expenditure for this object except such additional expenditure as may occur under the operation of paragraphs V, VII and VIII. On the other hand, it is not intended that the revenues of India shall in any way profit by these regulations.

III. The Secretary of State for India in Council reserves to himself the absolute right to modify from time to time the contributions to be required from officers, in order to give effect to these principles, and to make any alterations in the regulations that may appear to him equitable: provided always that the scale of pensions shall not be reduced in the case of actual incumbents. The Secretary of State in Council will endeavour to adjust the contributions to be levied from officers exactly, so that they shall neither be too large nor too small to supply the pensions provided by the regulations. But if it should appear on experience that they have been fixed too low, the Government will not require any supplementary retrospective payments; and if they are found to have been fixed too high, no claim to refund will be admitted.

IV. The scheme will be recognised as establishing a Fund which will be shown as such in the accounts of the Government of India, and the balance to its credit will be a debt for which the Government of India will be responsible. Accounts will be kept of all receipts and payments, and at the close of each half-year the Fund will be credited with interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum on the mean of the balances as they stood at the beginning and end of such half-year.

V. The rate of interest allowed will in no event be reduced below 4 per cent. per annum; but if at any of the periodical valuations referred to in paragraph VIII it is found that the rate of interest paid on loans secured on Indian revenues has exceeded 4 per cent. for a sufficiently long time to justify the Secretary of State in Council in thinking that the rise is likely to be permanent, the interest allowed on the balance at the credit of the Fund will be increased.

VI. Conversion of sterling into rupees and of rupees into sterling in transactions under these regulations and in the accounts will be made at the rate of fifteen rupees to the pound sterling.

VII. The cost of management will be borne by the State.

VIII. All needful statistics of ages, births, marriages, and deaths will be carefully registered, and these statistics, with the accounts, will be submitted at such periods as may be decided on by the Secretary of State in Council to such actuary or actuaries as he may select, with instructions to investigate and ascertain whether the rates of contribution are such as will, at the rate of interest then to be determined in accordance with paragraph V and at the rate of exchange specified in paragraph VI, supply the pensions payable under these regulations, and no more. The expense of such actuarial inquiries and reports will be borne by the State.

IX. Upon the report of the actuary or actuaries the Secretary of State in Council will order any necessary alterations in the rates of contribution; but it is not the intention that an alteration in the rates of contribution shall be made in respect of a slight variation in mortality or marriage experience disclosed at the particular valuation or in respect of a variation that appears likely to be temporary.

X. The report of the actuary or actuaries, with the orders of the Secretary of State in Council thereupon, will be published in the Gazette of India; and any alteration ordered in the rates of contribution will take effect from the beginning of the month following the date of such publication. No retrospective adjustments will be made.

REGULATIONS FOR THE PROVISION OF PENSIONS FOR THE WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF MILITARY, MEDICAL, MARINE, AND ECCLESIASTICAL OFFICERS IN THE SERVICE OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

1. Pensions will be provided under these regulations for the widows and orphans of the following officers on the Indian Establishment, not being subscribers under the Indian Military Service Family Pension Regulations.

Officers of the Indian Army.*

Officers of the Indian Medical Service, including Indians who avail themselves of the option given to them of becoming subscribers.

Officers and engineers of the Royal Indian Marine.

Chaplains, including probationary Chaplains.†

2. Every officer who enters the service on and after the 1st January 1915 must, as a condition of his appointment, provide pensions for his family under these regulations.

3. Royal Artillery and Royal Engineer officers who have been selected, or who have elected, for continuous service in India have the option of subscribing under these regulations, in accordance with the conditions laid down in the Appendix.

Royal Engineer officers under the 1904 conditions of service must elect, within three months of their arrival in India, whether they desire to subscribe for benefits under these regulations, and they must submit a satisfactory medical certificate. On payment of the prescribed donations (see also Appendix), according to their class at the time of their application, they will be allowed to subscribe for so long as they remain on the Indian Establishment. On reversion to the Imperial Establishment, such officers cannot continue subscribers; but they will be entitled to receive back such portion of their contributions as may be in excess of the risk borne during the term of their membership, in accordance with the terms of Article 30. In the event of an officer, whether married or unmarried, retiring on a pension awarded under Indian Rules, while subscribing, he must continue to subscribe in accordance with the terms of Article 32.

4. For the purposes of these regulations subscribers are classed as follows:—

Class I.—Surgeon-Generals and those who avail themselves of subscribing in this class under the terms of Article 5.

„ II.—Officers of the Indian Army, Royal Artillery, and Royal Engineers, of 26 years' service;‡ Officers of the Medical Service of 20 years' service; Officers and Engineers of the Royal Indian Marine of 20 years' service; and Archdeacons.

„ III.—Officers of the Indian Army, Royal Artillery, and Royal Engineers, of 18 years' service;‡ Officers of the Medical Service of 12 years' service; Officers and Engineers of the Royal Indian Marine of 15 years' service; and Senior Chaplains.

„ IV.—Officers of the Indian Army, Royal Artillery, and Royal Engineers, of 9 years' service;‡ Officers of the Medical Service of 6 years' service; Officers and Engineers of the Royal Indian Marine of 12 years' service; and Junior and Probationary Chaplains.

„ V.—Officers of the Indian Army, Royal Artillery, and Royal Engineers, under 9 years' service;‡ Officers of the Medical Service of under 6 years' service; and Officers and Engineers of the Royal Indian Marine of under 12 years' service.

Note—No officer of the Indian Army, Royal Artillery, or Royal Engineers will be compelled to subscribe in Classes II, III, or IV, who has not attained the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, Major, or Captain, as the case may be. No officer of the Indian Medical Service will be compelled to subscribe in Classes II or III, who has not attained the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel or Major, as the case may be, and no officer of the Royal Indian Marine who is not in a first-class port appointment, or Chief Engineer who is on Rs. 400 per mensem will be compelled to subscribe in Class II. In all such cases the subscriber must elect, within

* Officers of the Indian Army become subscribers from the date of the Gazette of India announcing their admission to that army; Medical Officers, Officers and Engineers of the Royal Indian Marine, and Chaplains from the date of their arrival in India, or, in the case of a Chaplain resident in India, from the date of appointment.

†A probationary Chaplain is required to subscribe; but in the event of his not being appointed a junior Chaplain on completion of probation, or of his resigning while on probation, he will be granted a refund, if married, under the conditions applying to officers mentioned in Regulation 30, and if unmarried, of the amount of his contributions, without interest.

‡ Service for this purpose is reckoned from date of first Commission with the following exceptions, namely:—

(a) Officers of the Indian Army who have been specially permitted to reckon towards promotion any service previous to the date of first regular Commission are allowed to include all service which counts for promotion.

(b) Officers appointed to the Indian Army from the Royal Marines are allowed to reckon service only from the date from which the periods for promotion are reckoned.

three months from the date of completing the qualifying service, whether he will (i) subscribe in the Class in which his length of service places him, or (ii) continue to subscribe in the lower Class. If he elects (i) he will be charged the increased subscription from the date of completing the prescribed service; if (ii) he will, in the event of subsequent promotion, be charged the increased subscription from the date of such promotion.

An officer cannot enter a higher Class unless he has previously subscribed in the Class immediately below it, nor can an officer who has elected to subscribe in a higher class be allowed subsequently to revert to a lower one.

5. The contributions for pensions under these regulations, and the pensions of widows, will be regulated by the class of the contributing officer. An officer cannot secure a higher pension for his widow by contributing as if he belonged to a higher class.

As an exception to this rule, the option of subscribing in Class I is allowed as follows:—

(i) To an officer of the Indian Army, also to an officer of the Royal Artillery or Royal Engineers who is a subscriber under these Regulations, at the time of completing 31 years' service on full pay from date of first commission, provided he has previously subscribed in Class II.

(ii) To a medical officer at the time of completing 25 years' full pay service, provided he has not previously been promoted to the rank of Surgeon-General, but has previously subscribed in Class II.

(iii) To an officer or engineer of the Royal Indian Marine who has completed 25 years' service.

(iv) To an Archdeacon at the time of completing five years' service as such (excluding any officiating period), provided he has attained the age of 49 years.

To secure these benefits without medical examination the decision of the officer must be notified within three months of the date of completing the qualifying service, but the option can be exercised at any subsequent period during active service on the production of a certificate of health signed by two qualified medical practitioners. (See Form J in Appendix.)

6. The pensions provided under these regulations are payable in arrear. Payments are made in India monthly and in England quarterly on or after 1st January, 1st April, 1st July, and 1st October.

Pensioners residing in Europe receive payment from the Accountant-General, India Office. Pensioners residing in India may either receive their pensions there in Indian currency, at the rate of fifteen rupees to the pound sterling, or in England in sterling; but when the option has once been exercised any subsequent change can only be made at the commencement of the official year.

7. The amounts of the pensions provided are as follows, in addition to any pensions or compassionate allowances granted under Royal Warrant:—

TABLE I.—PENSION to a WIDOW during WIDOWHOOD according to the CLASS in which her HUSBAND WAS SUBSCRIBING at the TIME of his DEATH.

12. Donations payable under Tables V, VI and VIII become due from the date on which the liability is incurred, namely, in the case of those under Tables V and VI when a subscriber enters the service of the Government of India married or when he marries, or re-marries, and in the case of those under Table VIII, when the subscriber is admitted to the Fund. These donations may be paid without interest in one sum within one month from the date of becoming due; or they may be paid in twelve equal monthly instalments, interest on the unpaid portion being levied at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum. The balance of any donation outstanding at the date of a subscriber's death will be recovered in accordance with Article 13.

Arrears.

13. Interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum will be levied on arrears. The balance of any contribution outstanding at the date of a subscriber's death will be recovered rateably without further interest from the pensions of his widow and orphans in twelve monthly instalments.

* See Articles 20 and 21

Reports of Marriages, Births, and Deaths.

14. An officer who is married at the date of his admission into the service must report the fact of his marriage at the time, and the names and dates of birth of his children, if any have been born to him. A member in the service must report his marriage, or the birth of a child born in wedlock, or the death of a wife or child within one month of the occurrence. These reports must be made in accordance with the instructions given in the Appendix.

15. The birth of every child born alive must be reported; but if a child dies before it is 30 days' old, no payment in respect of it will be required. If the report of birth be not made within one month a fine of 10*s.* will be imposed, and an additional 2*s.* will be charged for each succeeding month's delay. After 12 months' delay medical evidence as to the state of the member's health must be furnished in order that it may be determined whether and, if so, on what terms, liability for orphan's pension should be accepted. (See Form J. in Appendix.)

16. If the report of a marriage be not made within one month any donation which may be payable under Tables V and VI will be increased 2½ per cent. and interest thereon charged from the date of marriage. After six months' delay donations will be increased to 5 per cent. and interest charged as above. Should no donation be payable under Tables V and VI a fine of 10*s.* will be imposed if the report is not made within one month of the marriage, and an additional 2*s.* will be charged for each succeeding month's delay. In either case, after 12 months' delay, medical evidence as to the state of the subscriber's health must be furnished in order that it may be determined whether and, if so, on what terms, liability for widow's pension shall be accepted. (See Form J in Appendix.)

17. In the event of the report of a marriage or the birth of a child not being made by a subscriber during his lifetime, in accordance with the rules, the widow or child will not be entitled to any benefits.

Posthumous Child.

18. Provided the birth of a posthumous child is reported within one month and the contribution required by the regulations has been or was being paid for the father's youngest child, if any, living at the time of his death, a pension will be granted to the child without any payment if the child is born of a marriage in respect of which the prescribed payments have been made. The report must be made in Form D and a certificate of the child's birth furnished.

Duration of Pensions.

19. If a widow re-marry, her pension will cease during coverture; but if she again become a widow she will be entitled to revert to her pension as widow of her first husband, or, if her last husband have been a contibutor, to receive a pension at her option as the widow of her last husband. A widow can only receive one pension.

20. The pension of a male orphan is payable until he attains the age of 21 years.

21. Subscribers can make special provision for pension to sons under the age of 21 years who may become permanently incapacitated from earning a livelihood.

The pensions so provided for will commence at the age of 21, if the son be then fatherless, or after that age on his becoming fatherless, and as regards the amount of such pensions and the subscriptions to be paid to secure them each case will be considered and determined on its merits.

22. The mother or guardian of a male orphan who has attained the age of 16 may, with the sanction of the Secretary of State for India in Council, at any time thereafter (on application in Forms F to H annexed to these regulations), have the residue of his pension commuted into a single payment, for the due application of which the mother or guardian will be held responsible. When the pension is being drawn in India from a Government Treasury there, it will rest with the Government of India to give the required sanction. The following table gives the commuted value of such pensions :—

TABLE IX.—SHOWING the present VALUE of the PENSION of a MALE ORPHAN according to his AGE.

6	122	97	70	42	14
9	116	90	63	35	7

23. The pension of a female orphan continues until her marriage and then ceases absolutely. It does not revive on widowhood.

Good Conduct.

24. The pensions provided under these regulations shall, in all cases, be held during good behaviour only, and will be withheld if any pensioner is found to be leading an immoral life, or on proof of any gross misconduct. In any such case the order of the Secretary of State for India in Council or, when the pension is being drawn in India from a Government Treasury there, the order of the Government of India shall be final and conclusive.

Alienation of Pension.

25. A pension paid under these regulations may not be transferred or assigned or in any way alienated from the pensioner to whom or for whose benefit it is payable.

Passage Money.

26. An officer may, by a special contribution, provide passage money from India for his widow and orphans. The amount so secured will be paid to the widow, or to any children of the deceased officer, for the provision of their passage money and contingent expenses. If, however, the surviving members of the deceased officer's family are not in India, or do not wish to leave India for any other country, the money will be credited to the deceased officer's estate, and payment can be made in India in rupees, or in England at the official rate of exchange, according to the election of the person or persons entitled to receive the money. The amount secured must not exceed Rs. 3,000 and a health certificate must in every case be furnished by the subscriber.

27. This insurance may be effected by an immediate payment in one sum, or, if the subscriber so desires it, by instalments extending over four years subject to interest on arrears at the rate of 3½ per cent. per annum, and in the event of a subscriber dying before completion of the payment, the balance due at the date of his death will be deducted from the sum assured.

28. On the permanent departure of a subscriber from India with his family, or at any time thereafter, he may take the surrender value of the insurance effected under Article 26.

29. The following are the tables of premia and of surrender values referred to in Articles 26, 27 and 28 :—

Officers transferred to the British Army and Officers who resign.

30. Officers who may be transferred from the Indian Army to the British Army, officers of the Indian Medical Service who may be transferred to the Royal Army Medical Corps, officers of the Royal Artillery and the Royal Engineers who revert to the Imperial Establishment, and officers who resign the Service, will be entitled, if married and with or without children, or on account of their children, if widowers, to receive back such portion of their contributions as may be in excess of the risk borne during their membership, but no refund will be made in respect of unmarried subscriptions, nor for risks that have terminated by death or otherwise None of the above officers can continue subscribers.

As an exception to this rule, an officer who is granted a compassionate allowance on resigning the Service may continue to subscribe at the half-rate of subscription.

Half-pay.

31. Married officers on temporary half-pay must continue to subscribe for full benefits, but while in receipt of half-pay they will have the option of paying only half rates for their wives. In the latter case they will, on retirement, or reversion to full-pay, be required to pay arrears, with interest ; and, in the event of the death of a subscriber while on temporary half-pay or before the arrears have been paid, the amount due will be recovered from the pension granted to the widow. Unmarried officers must continue to subscribe at the half-rate of subscription.*

Retired Officers.

32. All officers, whether married, or unmarried, who retire from the Service must continue to subscribe, paying the half-rate of subscription according to their class at the date of retirement. For children the full rate of subscription will be payable.

Any donation for which a retired officer may become liable will be payable at the full rates laid down in Article 11 for all subscribers.

Refunds on Account of Deceased Unmarried Subscribers.

33. The whole of the subscription which has been paid by an officer who has remained unmarried up to the date of his death will be refunded, without interest, to his estate.

In the case of an officer who at his death was subscribing as a widower without surviving children eligible for pension, the subscriptions paid by him for the period during which he so subscribed, excluding any such period prior to a re-marriage, will be refunded, without interest, to his estate.

Dismissed Officers.

34. An officer who is dismissed the Service by sentence of a court-martial, or by other competent authority, will cease, ipso facto, to be a contributor to this Fund, and will have no claim to any refund. His family will not be entitled to any pensions from this Fund.

Declarations.

35. Declarations as to continued widowhood and the survival of children must be furnished to the Accountant-General, India Office, or to the proper officer in India.

* This regulation applies also to officers and engineers of the Royal Indian Marine who are temporarily transferred to the Retired List.

APPENDIX.

Royal Artillery Officers who have been selected and Royal Engineer Officers who have elected, for continuous service in India, have the option of subscribing under these regulations in accordance with the following conditions, namely:—

Married Officers.

On payment of the following sums according to their class at time of election in addition to the prescribed ordinary donations and subscriptions laid down in these regulations :—

Class.	"Rate in aid" towards Pension of Children.	Additional payment towards Pension of Wife.	Total.
V . . .	68	—	68
IV . . .	68	14	82
III . .	68	28	96
II . . .	68	66	134

Unmarried Officers

On payment of unmarried rates of subscription as laid down in these regulations. On marriage the amount paid as unmarried subscription during bachelorhood, with 4 per cent. interest per annum, will be allowed and deducted from the extra donation of £68 to be then paid towards pension of children, together with the extra donation on account of their wives' contingent pensions.

Widowers with Children and Married Officers who, having made other provision for their Wives, are allowed to subscribe for Children only.

On payment of the extra donation of £68 towards pension of children in addition to unmarried rates of subscription and the ordinary donations at full rates and subscriptions laid down in the rules for children.

These extra donations may be paid in one sum or in twenty-four equal monthly instalments, the period during which they may be paid being limited to two years from the date on which the officers elect to subscribe. If payment be made by instalments, interest on the unpaid portion will be levied at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum. The balance of any contribution due at an officer's death will be recovered rateably, without further interest, from the pensions of his widow and orphans in twenty-four monthly instalments.

Royal Artillery Officers who may be selected, or Royal Engineer Officers who have elected, for continuous service in India are required to exercise the option of subscribing for their families under these regulations within three months from the date of their selection or election for continuous service. After the expiration of three months they will be required to produce a medical certificate of good health before they can be permitted to do so (see Form J in Appendix).

Continuous service officers of Royal Artillery or Royal Engineers will be called upon by the authorities in India to say whether they desire to become subscribers. In the event of their electing to do so, their subscriptions and donations will be due from the date on which they became continuous service officers.

Officers who do not exercise the option of subscribing within three months from the date of their electing for continuous service will not be allowed the advantages in regard to the date of commencing to pay interest, given by Article 12. They will be charged interest from the date on which their donations became due.

N. B.—The extra donations specified above are also payable by Royal Engineer Officers under the 1904 conditions of Service (see Article 3).

Reports and applications under these Regulations should be made :—

1. To the Controller of Military Supply Accounts, Calcutta, when the subscriber is drawing pay or pension in India or at a colonial station (including China) where a unit of the Indian Army is stationed.

2. To the Director of Funds, India Office, Whitehall, London, S.W., if the subscriber is drawing his pay or pension elsewhere than above, or if the subscriber, after receiving in India or at a colonial station in advance the pay for the privilege leave portion of combined leave, proposes to draw his furlough pay elsewhere.

FIELD OPERATIONS.

No. 205.—The Governor-General in Council has much pleasure in directing the publication of the following letter from the Chief of the General Staff, dated the 2nd February 1915, submitting despatches from Brigadier-General W. S. Delamain, C.B., D.S.O., and Lieutenant-General Sir A. A. Barrett, K.C.B., K.C.V.O., describing the operations of I. E. F. "D" at the head of the Persian Gulf up to the 28th November 1914. The Governor-General in Council concurs in the opinion expressed by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief regarding the manner in which the operations were conducted and the behaviour of the troops engaged. His Excellency in Council also shares the Commander-in-Chief's appreciation of the support rendered by the Royal Navy which conduced so materially to the success of the operations.

No. 10600-1 (C. G. S.), dated Delhi, the 2nd February 1915.

From—The Chief of the General Staff.

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Army Department.

I am directed by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India to submit for the information of the Government of India the undermentioned reports on the operations of Indian Expeditionary Force "D" up to the 28th November 1914:—

(i) Report by Brigadier-General W. S. Delamain, C.B., D.S.O., on the operations of I. E. F. 'D' up to the 14th November 1914; and (ii) Report by Lieutenant-General Sir A. A. Barrett, K.C.B, K C.V.O, Commanding I. E. F. "D," on the operations of his force at the head of the Persian Gulf, from the 14th to the 28th November 1914.

2. His Excellency considers that the operations were conducted with skill and energy and that the discipline and steadiness of the troops reflect the greatest credit on all ranks. He desires to commend to the favourable consideration of Government the officers, non-commissioned officers and men whose services are brought to notice in the reports, and wishes specially to invite attention to Lieutenant-General ir Arthur Barrett's remarks in regard to the very valuable assistance rendered by the Royal avy which he cordially endorses.

3. His Excellency recommends that the reports treated as despatches and published in the Gazette of India.

No. B. M.-11, dated Camp Saniyeh, 16th November 1914.

From—Brigadier-General W. S. DELAMAIN, C.B., D.S.O., Commanding, 16th Brigade, I. E. F. "D,"

To—The Chief of the General Staff, Simla.

On the arrival of Lieutenant-General Sir A. A. Barrett at this camp and on conclusion of my period of independent command I have the honour to report as follows:—

2. The force under my command, known as I. E. F. "D", left Bombay on the 16th October in four transports, part of a large convoy. On 19th October we parted company and steered for Bahrain Islands, under escort of H. M. S. "Ocean." No. 1 Brigade, Indian Mountain Artillery, joined the force off Jask on the 21st. We arrived on the 23rd and anchored off Manama. Here we remained until the 2nd November.

3. On that date the Force sailed for the mouth of the Shatt-el-Arab in compliance with instructions contained in your radio-telegram No. 6571. Pilots were taken on board off Bushire and the Force arrived at the outer bar of the river on the evening of the 3rd November.

4. The 4th and 5th November were occupied with naval preparations and the transports themselves were prepared with bullet proof cover on the upper decks for the use of parties detailed for covering fire.

Major Radcliffe, 2nd Dorset Regiment, returned from Kuweit on 5th with information that the Fort was in ruins but that guns were in position. A landing force was detailed for the capture of Fao, under Lieutenant-Colonel H. L. Rosher, 2nd Dorset Regiment, and orders issued. On the 5th the transports crossed the outer bar of the Shatt-el-Arab and anchored just outside the inner bar.

5. At 6 A. M. on 6th November H. M. S. "Odin," preceded by launches sweeping for mines, stood in and bombarded the Turkish guns outside the Fort, 3 miles south-east of the telegraph station at Fao. The hostile guns were soon silenced; they were well served for a time and hit the "Odin" twice. On the signal being made that the guns were silenced the transports "Umaria" and "Varela" advanced in that order, each towing 8 boats full of troops alongside; the "Mashona" (armed launch) towed 7 boats full of troops and the Royal Navy steam launches towed the detachment of Marines from H. M. S. "Ocean." Off the telegraph station the boats were cast off and made for the shore. Some 600 Infantry landed with 1 section, Mountain Artillery, complete with mules and 1 squad, Sappers and Miners. There was no opposition. When the 1st and 2nd reinforcements had also landed, Colonel Rosher assembled his force and marched south-eastwards to occupy the Fort. This was accomplished during the night of the 6th—7th, the guns were dismounted and thrown into the river and Colonel Rosher's command returned to Fao.

6. While the troops who had landed were being re-embarked on the 7th November, the General Officer Commanding with remaining transports proceeded up the river till within sight of the Oil Refinery on Abadan Island. On the 8th November the river was reconnoitred for a suitable landing place. A firm high bank with deep water close up to it was found at Saniyeh; the transports were called up and troops began to disembark. The disembarkation continued during 9th and 10th November being practically complete by evening of latter date.

7. It was proposed to advance from this camp and attack the Turks at Shamshumiya by land, but the reported advance of Turkish troops from Basrah and the necessity of safeguarding the Oil Works combined with the absence of news from India regarding the arrival of reinforcements decided me to remain at Saniyeh. With the intention of an early forward movement, as little baggage and supplies as possible were landed at this camp. Reconnaissances both up and down stream on the 9th and 10th failed to discover any enemy.

8. On the evening of the 10th reliable news was received from the Sheikh of Mohammerah that Sami Bey with a strong combined force of Turks and Arabs had arrived from Basrah at a point opposite Mohammerah with the intention of attacking our camp. At 3 A.M. on the 11th the Sheikh reported that Sami Bey had started to make the attack. Troops were turned out and outposts strengthened. The Turkish force, of whom over 300 were actually seen, delivered a determined attack at 5-30 A.M. on an advanced post held by one double company 117th Mahrattas with 2 machine guns. They advanced to within 50 yards of the post but were driven off by a dashing counter-attack delivered by the 20th Duke of Cambridge's Own Infantry, with the assistance of the 23rd Peshawar Mountain Battery. The enemy lost heavily in their retirement across the desert, 19 dead were counted, 14 wounded were brought in by us and 6 prisoners were taken. Abandoned rifles and equipment were found. The Turks officially acknowledged a loss of 80 men.

9. The defences of the camp were further strengthened and daily reconnaissances made. On the 14th November, Lieutenant-General Sir A. Barrett with the 18th Brigade and Divisional Troops arrived at this camp.

10. I would invite attention to the difficulties of communication in the Persian Gulf during the period covered by this report. Constant thunderstorms interrupted the wireless system. The installation on R. I. M. S. "Dalhousie," is apparently of poor quality and the operators not very experienced. This ship had to be stationed at Bushire to connect with the cable there. The wireless station at Jask was frequently in communication with H. M. S. "Ocean" in the sense that the station would answer the call of the warship but it would not take in any message for transmission. No night watch is kept at Jask.

11. Several points to which I would earnestly invite attention are mentioned in the "Notes" made at intervals in the "War Diary" which is forwarded by the same mail as this report.

12. I would mention that the stay of the Force at Bahrain was of advantage as it enabled me to have British and Indian Corps instructed in rowing and handling of boats and to rehearse the operation of a landing in force.

13. All ranks have performed their duties in a most zealous and creditable manner.

14. I would bring to notice the great assistance given me by the following officers in planning and carrying out the operations for the occupation of Fao and the landing at this camp:—

Captain Hayes-Sadler, R.N., Senior Naval Officer, H. M. S. "Ocean."

Commander Hamilton, Royal Indian Marine, Principal Marine Transport Officer.

15. I would also report that the masters of the various transports* gave all the assistance in their power. I would specially bring to notice the name of Mr. T. L. Mills, R.N.R., Master of the S.S. "Varela," British India Steam Navigation Company, who displayed great zeal and willingness to perform operations beyond those usually required of a master of a merchant vessel. I trust that it will be found possible to recognize his services.

* "Varela" }
"Umaria" } British India Steam
"Umta" } Navigation Company.
"Berbera" }

"Masunda."

16. In connection with the Turkish night attack on the 11th November I would report that the counter-attack I ordered on the attacking force was carried out in a most dashing and skilful manner by the 20th Duke of Cambridge's Own Infantry and the 23rd Peshawar Mountain Battery under the commamd of Lieutenant-Colonel C. Rattray, 20th Infantry.

REPORT OF OPERATIONS OF INDIAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE "D" FROM 14TH TO 28TH NOVEMBER 1914.

No. 101-G., dated Basrah, the 7th December 1914.

From—Lieutenant-General Sir A. A. BARRETT, K.C.B., K.C.V.O., Commanding Indian Expeditionary Force "D",

To—The Chief of the General Staff, Army Headquarters, Delhi.

I have the honour to submit for the information of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, the following report of the operations of the troops under my command from the 14th to the 28th November 1914.

2. On the morning of the 14th November, the S.S. "Elephanta", with my Headquarters, and four other transports anchored in the river opposite Saniyeh, where Brigadier-General Delamain's force was already bivouacked. The disembarkation of the troops was commenced at once. Infantry used the ships' boats and experienced no difficulty in getting ashore. The landing of the guns, wagons and horses of the field artillery and of the cavalry horses in lighters and dhows was greatly delayed by the strong tide and current, the want of proper landing places, and by the shortage of lighters and steam craft for towing purposes. Every possible use was made of all the craft available, and with the hearty co-operation of the officers and men of the Royal Navy, the Indian Marine and the transports, considerable progress was made. The hatch covers of the transports were utilised as ramps for horses and guns, while excellent work was done by the Sapper companies.

3. In the course of the day I learnt from General Delamain of the presence of a hostile force at Saihan, four miles distant, and I ordered him to attack it the following morning. A full account of the action which ensued will be found in the attached report from General Delamain. I have already mentioned, in my telegraphic report of this action, my appreciation of the skilful and spirited manner in which this attack was carried out, and of the credit due to all who were engaged. The result was entirely satisfactory, as it enabled our advance on the 17th November to take place without our right flank being harassed.

4. Our information on the evening of the 16th was to the effect that a force of the enemy would probably be met with about* Sahil and Zain, while his main body was believed to be in position at Balyaniyeh. At that time the whole of the cavalry, sappers, and the infantry of the 18th Brigade had been landed, but only one battery of the 10th Brigade, Royal Field Artillery. I was informed that the Sheikh of Mohammerah was apprehensive of an attack on Failieh from the enemy's forces on the left bank, and also that the attitude of the neighbouring Arabs would depend, to a great extent, upon our ability to make headway against the Turks without undue delay. I therefore decided that it would be in our best interests to advance at once, with the whole of the force then at my disposal, leaving the remaining field batteries to be disembarked as rapidly as possible and to follow us as soon as circumstances would permit.

* Vide map 4 miles to 1" attached. Not reproduced.

5. A copy of operation orders issued for Tuesday the 17th November will be found attached.† My intention was to turn the enemy's right flank, and drive him through the palm groves on to the river, so that the two sloops, "Odin" and "Espiegle", which moved up the river on a level with our advance, might be able to co-operate.

† Appendix 2.

6. After leaving the bivouac we moved across the open desert, the surface of which, owing to recent rain, was still very muddy in places, though fortunately free from creeks or other obstructions.

At 8-50 A. M. a report was received from the advanced guard to the effect that the enemy's position extended from a ruined mud fort, which was plainly visible, somewhat to the right of our line of advance, north-westwards through Hassanain to Zain.‡ At 10 A.M. the enemy's guns opened fire. I then ordered the 110th Mahratta L. I. to reinforce the advanced guard and moved up the 16th Brigade on its right, leaving a space between the two brigades for the artillery to come into action, and retaining as reserves the 48th Pioneers and the 120th Infantry. Each of the two Brigade commanders had then at his disposal three battalions of infantry and a company of sappers, with the cavalry covering the left flank of the whole force, and the two sloops on the river to our right, though at some distance, with only the tops of their masts appearing above the belt of palm trees. The whole of the artillery, consisting of the 23rd and 30th Mountain Batteries, and the 63rd Battery, Royal Field Artillery, subsequently joined by three guns of the 76th Battery, which were hurried up during the action from the landing place, were placed under the Commander, Royal Artillery.

‡ This report proved substantially correct, except that their position extended about ¼ mile to the S. of Old Fort along the date-palm belt.

7. While these dispositions were being made, a heavy downpour lasting for half an hour came on. The front was entirely obscured, while the surface of the ground was converted into a quagmire ankle deep over which guns and horses could only move at a walk. The enemy's guns ceased firing, and I was in some doubt as to whether he intended to maintain his position. Our troops continued to advance steadily until 11-45 A.M., when the enemy simultaneously opened a heavy gun, rifle and machine gun fire along his whole front. Our artillery and infantry also came into action. After watching the course of the engagement for some time, I came to the conclusion that it would be advisable to abandon my original intention of turning the enemy's right, which extended some distance, and was echeloned back into broken ground and palm groves. The key of his position appeared to be the old mud fort. I, therefore, sent word to General Fry with the 18th Brigade to engage the enemy's right and centre with a frontal attack, while General Delamain with the 16th Brigade turned his left flank and captured the fort. At the same time I reinforced General Delamain with a battalion from the reserve. General Delamain had meanwhile anticipated my intentions and had already commenced the turning movement. It was at this stage that a large number of casualties occurred on our right, especially in the 2nd Dorset Regiment, which had been the first to come into action, and had met with heavy fire in an exposed position, not only from the mud fort and trenches in front of it, but also from a body of the enemy entrenched on the edge of the palm groves behind and to the south of it. These Turkish regulars were using smokeless powder and were invisible from the point where the guns were in action, the latter being fully engaged with the enemy's artillery and with the long line of entrenchments on the main front Hassanain-Zain. The sloops on the river managed to put a few shells into the mud fort, but were soon obliged to desist owing to their view being obstructed by the belt of palm trees. The turning movement was very skilfully carried out by portions of the 104th Infantry, the 117th Mahrattas and the 22nd Company, Sappers and Miners, and was directed by General Delamain himself. The 18th Brigade and the main body of the 16th Brigade also pressed on steadily, supported by very efficient fire from our artillery. At 1-15 P.M. the whole of the enemy's line quitted its entrenchments and fled rapidly to the right rear into the broken ground and palm trees, his guns covering the retirement, and finally being skilfully withdrawn from successive positions in the same direction under cover of long earthen embankments, which concealed them from view. The whole of our force advanced firing heavily and doing considerable execution, but the enemy's losses would have been much greater if the state of the ground had not precluded rapid movement, more especially on the part of the cavalry and artillery.

Two abandoned mountain guns fell into the hands of the 7th Rajputs, who were on the left of the line, and numerous prisoners were captured.

At 2-50 P.M. I thought it advisable to issue orders for the pursuit to be stopped. The enemy were then retiring through the palm groves, with banks and mud walls affording facilities for defence, and their retirement was covered by distant fire from their guns. I had to form an entrenched camp before night-fall, and to bring in a large number of wounded, who were scattered over a considerable extent of country.

The enemy's losses have been variously estimated, and probably amounted to about 2,000. Two days after the action 69 dead bodies were found lying in one portion of the position. His total strength is estimated at 3,000 Turks and 1,500 Arabs, with 12 guns.

*Not reproduced.

The troops bivouacked at Sahil on the banks of the river with outposts on the line Sahil—Old Fort—to river bank, vide sketch* map.

The conduct of the troops throughout this engagement excited my warmest admiration. A very large majority of the men had never been under fire before, yet they behaved as steadily as if at an ordinary field-day, all the details of their training, as inculcated in peace time, being carried out automatically. The behaviour of the Dorset Regiment, when exposed to both frontal and enfilade fire, is especially to be commended. General Delamain has also brought to notice the 22nd Company, Sappers and Miners, who were on the right of the Dorsets.

The enemy's guns were well served and cleverly handled, but fortunately the fusing of the shells was indifferent and the elevation generally too great. Their rifle fire was also too high, and not very effective at close quarters, otherwise our losses would have been much heavier. Our artillery suffered for want of observation posts, but in spite of this their fire was highly effective, and, as was afterwards ascertained, produced a demoralising effect on the enemy.

As may be gathered from the above report, the duties of the commanders of brigades and of other units, as also of the staff were carried out most efficiently. I propose to defer bringing the names of individual officers to notice until the operations of this Force as a whole are finally recorded. At this stage I need only mention those who were especially conspicuous during the actions of the 15th and 17th, as set forth in the brigade commanders' reports attached.

The work of bringing in the wounded continued far into the night, and one ambulance party actually remained out all night, in spite of the fact that the enemy were firing on our piquets at intervals. I desire to pay a very high tribute to the personnel of the medical services, both for efficiency of organization, and for devotion to duty. In addition to our own men, a large number of wounded Turks and Arabs had to be cared for and conveyed on board the transports, at a spot where shelving mud flats and a strong current made boating operations extremely troublesome and at times even hazardous.

On the afternoon of the 17th, it was blowing a hurricane for several hours, in the course of which 3 large dhows lying alongside the transports, laden with stores ready to disembark, were wrecked, and 10 sepoys and two lascars were drowned.

On the 18th, 19th and 20th we were employed in landing supplies and blankets for the troops, and in reconnoitring the enemy's position at Balyanieh, which was found to be at right angles to the river, with four guns in position on the bank commanding the north end of Dabba Island, where the S.S. "Ekbatana" and two smaller craft had been sunk to block the ship channel. The naval sloops engaged these guns from below the obstruction, and, as was discovered afterwards, placed a shell inside the battery.

I formed a plan of attack to be carried out on the 22nd in which naval and military forces were to co-operate, but on the 21st I received trustworthy information, confirmed by our cavalry, that the enemy had vacated his position. The report stated that the Turks had quitted Basrah and retired northward in boats to Baghdad, that numbers of armed Arabs had deserted, and that the town of Basrah was in danger of being looted.

Accordingly, I ordered a forced march for 8 P.M. that evening, while the naval sloops were to proceed by river to Basrah, and two battalions were hastily got on board shallow draft steamers to follow them. We started across the desert at 8 o'clock, and at 12 noon the next day we reached the outskirts of Basrah, after a march that was extremely trying to the troops. Frequent delays were caused by the high banks of water channels, which had to be levelled, and in some cases bridged to admit the passage of field guns.

On arrival at Basrah, we learned that the two sloops had got in at 9 P.M. the previous evening, and had succeeded in protecting the buildings on the river bank, to which no damage had been done, except the partial burning of the Custom House and destruction of its contents.

The two battalions had arrived at 9 A.M. on the 22nd and were then patrolling the town, which was perfectly orderly.

I therefore decided to defer making a formal entry into the town until the next morning, as the troops were badly in need of food and rest, and it would have been difficult to arrange quarters for them until the place had been more fully examined.

On the 23rd the troops made a ceremonial march through the town to a selected spot near the mouth of the Ashar Creek, where the foreign Consuls and notables were assembled to meet us, and were presented to me by Mr. Bullard, our late Consul. A proclamation prepared by Sir Percy Cox was then read, the Union Jack was hoisted on a prominent building, a salute was fired from the sloops, the troops presented arms, and three cheers was given for His Majesty the King-Emperor. The German Consul and five other Germans were placed on board transports for conveyance to India.

We were cordially welcomed by the inhabitants, who appeared eager to transfer their allegiance to the British Government.

In concluding this report, I wish to lay stress upon the very great assistance that I have received throughout from Captain Hayes-Sadler, R. N., the Senior Naval Officer in the Persian Gulf, and the officers and men serving under him, without which it would have been quite impossible to bring these operations to a successful issue.

I am also much indebted to Sir Percy Cox for his advice and help on all occasions, and for the valuable and accurate information that he was able to procure for me, chiefly through the Sheikh of Mohammerah, who, at the risk of drawing upon himself the hostility of the Turks has spared no pains to prove himself our true friend and ally.

I reserve for a future report an acknowledgment of the good services done by the officers of the Royal Indian Marine, whose duties in connection with naval transport work have been most onerous.

We have also received very ready help throughout from the officers and men of the transports belonging to the British India Steam Navigation and other companies.

Extract from a Report by Brigadier-General W. S. Delamain, D.S.O., on the Operations of the 14th November 1914.

Information from various sources went to show that Turkish troops were concentrating near Saihan only four miles west of our camp at Saniyeh; and on the 14th November I received the Force Commander's instructions to reconnoitre and dislodge this hostile gathering without involving my own force too seriously. I thereupon issued Operation Order No. 7.

The force under my command consisted of the 30th Mountain Battery, the 2nd Battalion, Dorset Regiment, and the 104th Rifles, with 23rd Mountain Battery and the 20th Infantry in camp held ready to reinforce if we became engaged.

The force marched at 6 A.M. from Camp Saniyeh and on reaching the southern edge of the date palms turned westwards, the Advanced Guard (Major Clarkson, 1 Section Mountain Battery, 4 Companies 2nd Dorsets) keeping 1,200 yards from the edge of the date groves and followed by the Main Body at approximately the same distance.

The march was continued in this order till the Advanced Guard was approximately south of Saihan village and creek at 7 A.M. At 7-10 A.M. the enemy opened fire on the Advanced Guard from two positions on the edge of the date groves with rifles and machine guns and on the main body with artillery. The 104th Rifles were sent immediately to turn and capture the enemy's first position and then to work through the date groves from the east. The Mountain Battery (2 Sections) assisted the 104th Rifles and 1 Section kept the hostile guns in the Turkish second position in check. The 104th took the first Turkish position in capital style about 8-30 A.M. At the same hour the reinforcements arrived from camp.

The Advanced Guard was then reinforced by the remaining half battalion of the 2nd Battalion, Dorset Regiment, and extended to their left so as to outflank the second Turkish position from the desert side. The 30th Mountain Battery was put under the orders of the Officer Commanding, 2nd Battalion, Dorset Regiment, who now commanded the Advanced Guard. The 20th Infantry (less 4 Companies) filled the gap between the Advanced Guard and the 104th Rifles on our right, leaving the 4 Companies of the 20th Infantry and 23rd Peshawar Mountain Battery in general reserve under my own hand. A general advance was then made on the second Turkish position, assisted by the admirably directed fire of both the Mountain Batteries, from which the enemy suffered severely. The position was entrenched and held by the Turks with determination. It was gallantly rushed by the 2nd Battalion, Dorset Regiment, about 9-30 A.M. The enemy made off northwards through the date palms.

In the meanwhile, the 104th Rifles on our right found the ground inside the wood very difficult owing to the numerous irrigation cuts. They pushed forward slowly till they reached the line held by the 2nd Dorsets and the 20th Infantry, meeting with strong opposition at a fortified village, where there were posted 1 gun and 1 machine gun.

The arrival of Turkish reinforcements from their force near Umm-ur-Rowais might now be expected at any minute.

In view, therefore, of my instructions not to get too seriously engaged, I ordered a withdrawal to camp, after doing considerable damage to the Turkish camp. The retirement was unmolested.

H. M. S. "Odin" co-operated in the action by steaming up the river parallel with the troops, but owing to the impossibility of observing fire through and over the belt of date palms, her fire was necessarily restricted to a minimum.

I estimated the enemy's strength at 1,200 with 4 mountain guns and 3 machine guns. From information given by prisoners the force appears to have been considerably stronger. I put their losses at 160 dead and wounded unable to move. We took prisoners 6 unwounded and 19 wounded, including a battalion commander.

Our casualties came to :—

Captain Maclean, 104th Rifles.
Lieutenant Yeatman, 2nd Battalion, Dorset Regiment. } Severely wounded.

Rank and file.	Killed.	Wounded.	Missing.
2nd Battalion, Dorset Regiment	5	38	Nil.
104th Rifles	3	14	,,
20th Infantry	...	2	,,
No. 1 Brigade, Indian Mountain Artillery	..	1	..

The behaviour of all the troops was admirable. The co-operation between artillery and infantry was good.

I would mention that the information regarding the enemy obtained by Major H. Smyth, Special Service Officer, proved to be absolutely correct.

I bring to notice the good work done by the following :—

(a) Lieutenant-Colonel H. L. Rosher, 2nd Battalion, Dorset Regiment, who commanded the main attack on the enemy's position in an able manner.

(b) Major H. A. Holdich, Brigade Major, 16th Brigade. An able Staff Officer who gave me the greatest assistance during the engagement.

(c) Lieutenant E. B. Allnutt, R.A.M.C., in medical charge of the 2nd Battalion, Dorset Regiment, reported as having displayed great gallantry in attending the wounded on the open plain.

(d) Bugler Surain Singh, 20th Duke of Cambridge's Own Infantry, reported by the Officer Commanding, 104th Wellesley's Rifles, as having very bravely set fire to a village held by the enemy.

I recommend for reward the following officers, non-commissioned officers and men from those favourably brought to notice by Commanding Officers :—

2nd Dorset Regiment.

Major H. St. J. Clarkson, for gallantry.

Lieutenant and Adjutant F. G. Powell, for general assistance and conveying messages under heavy fire.

2nd-Lieutenant E. L. Stephenson, for commanding his company with conspicuous coolness and dash after his Major and Captain had been killed.

Lieutenant E. B. Allnutt, R.A.M.C., in medical charge, for again displaying conspicuous bravery in attending the wounded under heavy fire in the open. Many men owe their lives to this officer.

No. 3865 Colour Serjeant and Acting Serjeant-Major Delara, for coolness and gallantry

No. 8558 Private Moores, who showed great courage in bringing up ammunition under heavy fire.

No. 7712 Private Hughes, who when the machine gun officer was wounded, took command of the one uninjured gun and under heavy fire brought it to close range where it was of much use.

No. 6591 Serjeant Drew, who, though wounded, continued to lead his men with coolness and bravery.

3rd Sappers and Miners.

Lieutenant Matthews, R. E., for gallantry in leading a mixed party of Sappers and 104th Rifles and establishing the flank attack on the edge of the date groves.

Jemadar Feroze Ali. After Captain Twiss and the Subadar were wounded, this Indian Officer was in command of about 100 men who did excellent work in spite of heavy casualties.

No. 2855 Naik Dalip Singh, No. 22 Company, 3rd Sappers and Miners, behaved with conspicuous gallantry in the action at Sahil on the 17th November 1914 when, with a party of Sappers under Lieutenant Matthews, R.E., he showed himself very forward in action and led his squad with great determination into the Turkish trenches.

104th Wellesley's Rifles.

Captain Chadwick, for gallantry.
Subadar Sahal Singh [first in grove], } for gallantry with Lieutenant Matthews's
No. 2336 Lance Naik Net Singh, } party.

117th Mahrattas.

Captain and Adjutant E. G. Hall, for gallantry. This officer was severely wounded.

I regret that I omitted to bring to favourable notice the services of Mr. Bryant, the Marconi operator on board S.S. Varela, of the British India Steam Navigation Company. Mr. Bryant was untiring in his efforts to secure communication, and when the apparatus on the Dalhousie broke down, he volunteered instantly to go across from Bahrain to Bushire to set matters right. The force owed much to his skill and devotion to duty, and I trust that it may be found possible to recognise his services.

Extract from the Report of the General Officer Commanding, 18th Infantry Brigade, on the operations of his Brigade up to 20th November 1914.

* * * * * * *

When all did well and where there was no opportunity for conspicuous individual action, I have no special recommendations to make.

Extract from the report of the Officer Commanding Royal Artillery, I. E. F. "D" on the operations of the Artillery under his command up to the 20th November 1914.

* * * * * * *

All ranks behaved with exceptional coolness and steadiness, and I wish to bring to notice the good work done by Lieutenant-Colonel Greer, and Major Broke Smith throughout the action.

Extract from Reports of the Assistant Director, Medical Services, Indian Expeditionary Force "D," in connection with the Service under his command up to the 20th November 1914.

I wish to bring to notice the especially excellent work done by the following Medical Officers during the engagement of the 17th instant:—

Captain Wright, I.M.S., 126th Indian Field Ambulance.
" Hislop, I.M.S. " " " Field Ambulance.
" Lambert, R.A.M.C., 17th British Field Ambulance.
Lieutenant Allnutt, R.A.M.C., Medical Officer, Dorset Regiment.

The undermentioned Assistant Surgeons and Sub-Assistant Surgeons did conspicuously good work in attending the wounded under heavy fire on the 17th November 1914, and are recommended for promotion as stated opposite their names:—

3rd Class Assistant Surgeon J. H. S. Huffton, to 1st Class Assistant Surgeon.
4th Class Assistant Surgeon J. H. T. Pacheco (wounded) to 3rd Class Assistant Surgeon of three years' standing.
No. 282 1st Class Sub-Assistant Surgeon V. U. R. Pandit, 104th Rifles, to 2nd Class Senior Sub-Assistant Surgeon.
No. 318 2nd Class Sub-Assistant Surgeon Shaikh Azimud-din-Shaik Ismail to 2nd Class Senior Sub-Assistant Surgeon.

LONDON GAZETTE.

No. 29033.—The following extracts are published for general information :—

"London Gazette." dated the 19th October 1914, pages 340 to 8358.

War Office,

18th October 1914.

The following despatch has been received by the Secretary of State for War from the Field-Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, British Forces in the Field : —

8th October 1914.

MY LORD,

I have the honour to report the operations in which the British Forces in France have been engaged since the evening of the 10th September.

1. In the early morning of the 11th the further pursuit of the enemy was commenced ; and the three Corps crossed the Ourcq practically unopposed, the Cavalry reaching the line of the Aisne River; the 3rd and 5th Brigades south of Soissons, the 1st, 2nd and 4th on the high ground at Couvrelles and Cerseuil.

On the afternoon of the 12th from the opposition encountered by the 6th French Army to the west of Soissons, by the 3rd Corps south-east of that place, by the 2nd Corps south of Missy and Vailly, and certain indications all along the line, I formed the opinion that the enemy had, for the moment at any rate, arrested his retreat and was preparing to dispute the passage of the Aisne with some vigour.

South of Soissons the Germans were holding Mont de Paris against the attack of the right of the French 6th Army when the 3rd Corps reached the neighbourhood of Buzancy, south-east of that place. With the assistance of the Artillery of the 3rd Corps the French drove them back across the river at Soissons, where they destroyed the bridges.

The heavy artillery fire which was visible for several miles in a westerly direction in the valley of the Aisne showed that the 6th French Army was meeting with strong opposition all along the line.

On this day the Cavalry under General Allenby reached the neighbourhood of Braine and did good work in clearing the town and the high ground beyond it of strong hostile detachments. The Queen's Bays are particularly mentioned by the General as having assisted greatly in the success of this operation. They were well supported by the 3rd Division, which on this night bivouacked at Brenelle, south of the river.

The 5th Division approached Missy, but were unable to make headway.

The 1st Army Corps reached the neighbourhood of Vauxcéré without much opposition.

In this manner the Battle of the Aisne commenced.

2. The Aisne Valley runs generally East and West, and consists of a flat-bottomed depression of width varying from half a mile to two miles, down which the river follows a winding course to the West at some points near the southern slopes of the valley and at others near the northern. The high ground both on the north and south of the river is approximately 400 feet above the bottom of the valley and is very similar in character, as are both slopes of the valley itself, which are broken into numerous rounded spurs and re-entrants. The most prominent of the former are the Chivre spur on the right bank and Sermoise spur on the left. Near the latter place the general plateau on the south is divided by a subsidiary valley of much the same character, down which the small River Vesle flows to the main stream near Sermoise. The slopes of the plateau overlooking the Aisne on the north and south are of varying steepness, and are covered with numerous patches of wood, which also stretch upwards and backwards over the edge on to the top of the high ground. There are several villages and small towns dotted about in the valley itself and along its sides, the chief of which is the town of Soissons.

The Aisne is a sluggish stream of some 170 feet in breadth, but, being 15 feet deep in the centre, it is unfordable. Between Soissons on the west and Villers on the east (the part of the river attacked and secured by the British Forces) there are eleven road bridges across it. On the north bank a narrow-gauge railway runs from Soissons to Vailly, where it crosses the river and continues eastward along the south bank. From Soissons to Sermoise a double line of railway runs along the south bank, turning at the latter place up the Vesle Valley towards Bazoches.

The position held by the enemy is a very strong one, either for a delaying action or for a defensive battle. One of its chief military characteristics is that from the high ground on neither side can the top of the plateau on the other side be seen except for small stretches. This is chiefly due to the woods on the edges of the slopes. Another important point is that all the bridges are under either direct or high angle artillery fire.

The tract of country above described, which lies north of the Aisne, is well adapted to concealment, and was so skilfully turned to account by the enemy as to render it impossible to judge the real nature of his opposition to our passage of the river, or to accurately gauge his strength; but I have every reason to conclude that strong rearguards of at least three army corps were holding the passages on the early morning of the 13th.

3. On that morning I ordered the British Forces to advance and make good the Aisne.

The 1st Corps and the Cavalry advanced on the river. The 1st Division was directed on Chanouille viâ the canal bridge at Bourg, and the 2nd Division on Courtecon and Presles viâ Pont-Arcy and on the canal to the north of Braye viâ Chavonne. On the right the Cavalry and 1st Division met with slight opposition, and found a passage by means of the canal which crosses the river by an aqueduct. The Division was therefore able to press on, supported by the Cavalry Division on its outer flank, driving back the enemy in front of it.

On the left the leading troops of the 2nd Division reached the river by 9 o'clock. The 5th Infantry Brigade were only enabled to cross, in single file and under considerable shell fire, by means of the broken girder of the bridge which was not entirely submerged in the river. The construction of a pontoon bridge was at once undertaken, and was completed by 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

On the extreme left the 4th Guards Brigade met with severe opposition at Chavonne, and it was only late in the afternoon that it was able to establish a foothold on the northern bank of the river by ferrying one battalion across in boats.

By nightfall the 1st Division occupied the area Moulins-Paissy-Geny, with posts in the village of Vendresse.

The 2nd Division bivouacked as a whole on the southern bank of the river, leaving only the 5th Brigade on the north bank to establish a bridge head.

The Second Corps found all the bridges in front of them destroyed, except that of Condé, which was in possession of the enemy, and remained so until the end of the battle.

In the approach to Missy, where the 5th Division eventually crossed there is some open ground which was swept by heavy fire from the opposite bank. The 13th Brigade was, therefore, unable to advance; but the 14th, which was directed to the east of Venizel at a less exposed point, was rafted across, and by night established itself with its left at St. Marguérite. They were followed by the 15th Brigade; and later on both the 14th and 15th supported the 4th Division on their left in repelling a heavy counter-attack on the Third Corps.

On the morning of the 13th the Third Corps found the enemy had established himself in strength on the Vregny Plateau. The road bridge at Venizel was repaired during the morning, and a reconnaissance was made with a view to throwing a pontoon bridge at Soissons.

The 12th Infantry Brigade crossed at Venizel, and was assembled at Bucy Le Long by 1 P.M., but the bridge was so far damaged that artillery could only be man-handled across it. Meanwhile the construction of a bridge was commenced close to the road bridge at Venizel.

At 2 P.M. the 12th Infantry Brigade attacked in the direction of Chivres and Vregny with the object of securing the high ground east of Chivres, as a necessary preliminary to a further advance northwards. This attack made good progress, but at 5-30 P.M. the enemy's artillery and machine-gun fire from the direction of Vregny became so severe that no further advance could be made. The positions reached were held till dark.

The pontoon bridge at Venizel was completed at 5-30 P.M., when the 10th Infantry Brigade crossed the river and moved to Bucy Le Long.

The 19th Infantry Brigade moved to Billy Sur Aisne, and before dark all the artillery of the Division had crossed the river, with the exception of the Heavy Battery and one Brigade of Field Artillery.

During the night the positions gained by the 12th Infantry Brigade to the east of the stream running through Chivres were handed over to the 5th Division.

The section of the Bridging Train allotted to the Third Corps began to arrive in the neighbourhood of Soissons late in the afternoon, when an attempt to throw a heavy pontoon bridge at Soissons had to be abandoned, owing to the fire of the enemy's heavy howitzers.

In the evening the enemy retired at all points and entrenched himself on the high ground about two miles north of the river along which runs the Chemin-des-Dames. Detachments of Infantry, however strongly entrenched in commanding points down slopes of the various spurs, were left in front of all three corps with powerful artillery in support of them.

During the night of the 13th and on the 14th and following days the Field Companies were incessantly at work night and day. Eight pontoon bridges and one foot bridge were thrown across the river under generally very heavy artillery fire, which was incessantly kept up on to most of the crossings after completion. Three of the road bridges, i.e., Venizel, Missy and Vailly, and the railway bridge east of Vailly were temporarily repaired so as to take foot traffic and the Villers Bridge made fit to carry weights up to six tons.

Preparations were also made for the repair of the Missy, Vailly and Bourg Bridges so as to take mechanical transport.

The weather was very wet and added to the difficulties by cutting up the already indifferent approaches, entailing a large amount of work to repair and improve.

The operations of the Field Companies during this most trying time are worthy of the best traditions of the Royal Engineers.

4. On the evening of the 14th it was still impossible to decide whether the enemy was only making a temporary halt, covered by rear-guards, or whether he intended to stand and defend the position.

With a view to clearing up the situation, I ordered a general advance.

The action of the First Corps on this day under the direction and command of Sir Douglas Haig was of so skilful, bold and decisive a character that he gained positions which alone have enabled me to maintain my position for more than three weeks of very severe fighting on the north bank of the river.

The Corps was directed to cross the line Moulins—Moussy by 7 P.M.

On the right the General Officer Commanding the 1st Division directed the 2nd Infantry Brigade (which was in billets and bivouacked about Moulins), and the 25th Artillery Brigade (less one battery), under General Bulfin, to move forward before daybreak, in order to protect the advance of the Division sent up the valley to Vendresse. An officers' patrol sent out by this Brigade reported a considerable force of the enemy near the factory north of Troyon, and the Brigadier accordingly directed two regiments (the King's Royal Rifles and the Royal Sussex Regiment) to move at 3 A.M. The Northamptonshire Regiment was ordered to move at 4 A.M. to occupy the spur east of Troyon. The remaining regiment of the Brigade (the Loyal North Lancashire Regiment) moved at 5-30 A.M. to the village of Vendresse. The factory was found to be held in considerable strength by the enemy, and the Brigadier ordered the Loyal North Lancashire Regiment to support the King's Royal Rifles and the Sussex Regiment. Even with this support the force was unable to make headway and on the arrival of the 1st Brigade the Coldstream Guards were moved up to support the right of the leading Brigade (the 2nd), while the remainder of the 1st Brigade supported its left.

About noon the situation was, roughly, that the whole of these two brigades were extended along a line running east and west, north of the line Troyon and south of the Chemin-des-Dames. A party of the Loyal North Lancashire Regiment had seized and were holding the factory. The enemy held a line of entrenchments north and east of the factory in considerable strength, and every effort to advance against this line was driven back by heavy shell and machine-gun fire. The morning was wet and a heavy mist hung over the hills, so that the 25th Artillery Brigade and the Divisional Artillery were unable to render effective support to the advanced troops until about 9 o'clock.

By 10 o'clock the 3rd Infantry Brigade had reached a point one mile south of Vendresse, and from there it was ordered to continue the line of the 1st Brigade and to connect with and help the right of the 2nd Division. A strong hostile column was found to be advancing, and by a vigorous counter-stroke with two of his battalions the Brigadier checked the advance of this column and relieved the pressure on the 2nd Division. From this period until late in the afternoon the fighting consisted of a series of attacks and counter-attacks. The counter-strokes by the enemy were delivered at first with great vigour, but later on they decreased in strength, and all were driven off with heavy loss.

On the left the 6th Infantry Brigade had been ordered to cross the river and to pass through the line held during the preceding night by the 5th Infantry Brigade and occupy the Courtecon Ridge, whilst a detached force, consisting of the 4th Guards Brigade and the 36th Brigade, Royal Field Artillery, under Brigadier-General Perceval, were ordered to proceed to a point east of the village of Ostel.

The 6th Infantry Brigade crossed the river at Pont-Arcy, moved up the valley towards Braye, and at 9 A.M. had reached the line Tilleul—La Buvelle. On this line they came under heavy artillery and rifle fire, and were unable to advance until supported by the 34th Brigade, Royal Field Artillery, and the 44th Howitzer Brigade and the Heavy Artillery.

The 4th Guards Brigade crossed the river at 10 A.M. and met with very heavy opposition. It had to pass through dense woods; field artillery support was difficult to obtain; but one section of a field battery pushed up to and within the firing line. At 1 P.M. the left of the Brigade was south of the Ostel Ridge.

At this period of the action the enemy obtained a footing between the First and Second Corps, and threatened to cut the communications of the latter.

Sir Douglas Haig was very hardly pressed and had no reserve in hand. I placed the Cavalry Division at his disposal, part of which he skilfully used to prolong and secure the left flank of the Guards Brigade. Some heavy fighting ensued, which resulted in the enemy being driven back with heavy loss.

About 4 o'clock the weakening of the counter-attacks by the enemy and other indications tended to show that his resistance was decreasing, and a general advance was ordered by the Army Corps Commander. Although meeting with considerable opposition and coming under very heavy artillery and rifle fire, the position of the corps at the end of the day's operations extended from the Chemin-des-Dames on the right, through Chivy, to Le Cour de Soupir with the 1st Cavalry Brigade extending to the Chavonne—Soissons road.

On the right the corps was in close touch with the French Moroccan troops of the 18th Corps, which were entrenched in échelon to its right rear. During the night they entrenched this position.

Throughout the Battle of the Aisne this advanced and commanding position was maintained, and I cannot speak too highly of the valuable services rendered by Sir Douglas Haig and the Army Corps under his command. Day after day and night after night the enemy's infantry has been hurled against him in violent counter-attack which has never on any one occasion succeeded, whilst the trenches all over his position have been under continuous heavy artillery fire.

The operations of the First Corps on this day resulted in the capture of several hundred prisoners, some field pieces, and machine guns.

The casualties were very severe, one brigade alone losing three of its four Colonels.

The 3rd Division commenced a further advance and had nearly reached the plateau of Aizy when they were driven back by a powerful counter-attack supported by heavy artillery. The Division, however, fell back in the best order, and finally entrenched itself about a mile north of Vailly Bridge, effectively covering the passage.

The 4th and 5th Divisions were unable to do more than maintain their ground.

5. On the morning of the 15th, after close examination of the position, it became clear to me that the enemy was making a determined stand; and this view was confirmed by reports which reached me from the French Armies fighting on my right and left, which clearly showed that a strongly entrenched line of defence was being taken up from the north of Compiègne, eastward and south-eastward, along the whole valley of the Aisne up to and beyond Reims.

A few days previously the Fortress of Maubeuge fell, and a considerable quantity of siege artillery was brought down from that place to strengthen the enemy's position in front of us.

During the 15th shells fell in our position which have been judged by experts to be thrown by eight-inch siege guns with a range of 10,000 yards. Throughout the whole course of the battle our troops have suffered very heavily from this fire, although its effect latterly was largely mitigated by more efficient and thorough entrenching the necessity for which I impressed strongly upon Army Corps Commanders. In order to assist them in this work all villages within the area of our occupation were searched for heavy entrenching tools, a large number of which were collected.

In view of the peculiar formation of the ground on the north side of the river between Missy and Soissons, and its extraordinary adaptability to a force on the defensive, the 5th Division found it impossible to maintain its position on the southern edge of the Chivres Plateau, as the enemy in possession of the village of Vregny to the west was able to bring a flank fire to bear upon it. The Divison had, therefore, to retire to a line the left of which was at the village of Marguérite, and thence ran by the north edge of Missy back to the river to the east of that place.

With great skill and tenacity Sir Charles Fergusson maintained this position throughout the whole battle, although his trenches were necessarily on lower ground than that occupied by the enemy on the southern edge of the plateau, which was only 400 yards away.

General Hamilton with the 3rd Division vigorously attacked to the north and regained all the ground he had lost on the 15th, which throughout the battle has formed a most powerful and effective bridge head.

6. On the 16th the 6th Division came up into line.

It had been my intention to direct the First Corps to attack and seize the enemy's position on the Chemin-des-Dames, supporting it with this new reinforcement. I hoped from the position thus gained to bring effective fire to bear across the front of the 3rd Division which, by securing the advance of the latter, would also take the pressure off the 5th Division and the Third Corps.

But any further advance of the First Corps would have dangerously exposed my right flank. And, further, I learned from the French Commander-in-Chief that he was strongly reinforcing the 6th French Army on my left, with the intention of bringing up the Allied left to attack the enemy's flank and thus compel his retirement. I therefore sent the 6th Division to join the Third Corps with orders to keep it on the south side of the river, as it might be available in general reserve.

On the 17th, 18th and 19th the whole of our line was heavily bombarded, and the First Corps was constantly and heavily engaged. On the afternoon of the 17th the right flank of the 1st Division was seriously threatened. A counter-attack was made by the Northamptonshire Regiment in combination with the Queen's, and one battalion of the Divisional Reserve was moved up in support. The Northamptonshire Regiment, under cover of mist, crept up to within a hundred yards of the enemy's trenches and charged with the bayonet, driving them out of the trenches and up the hill. A very strong force of hostile infantry was then disclosed on the crest line. This new line was enfiladed by part of the Queen's and the King's Royal Rifles, which wheeled to their left on the extreme right of our infantry line, and were supported by a squadron of cavalry on their outer flank. The enemy's attack was ultimately driven back with heavy loss.

On the 18th, during the night, the Gloucestershire Regiment advanced from their position near Chivy, filled in the enemy's trenches and captured two maxim guns.

On the extreme right the Queen's were heavily attacked, but the enemy was repulsed with great loss. About midnight the attack was renewed on the First Division, supported by artillery fire, but was again repulsed.

Shortly after midnight an attack was made on the left of the 2nd Division with considerable force, which was also thrown back.

At about 1 p.m. on the 19th the 2nd Division drove back a heavy infantry attack strongly supported by artillery fire. At dusk the attack was renewed and again repulsed.

On the 18th I discussed with the General Officer Commanding the Second Army Corps and his Divisional Commanders the possibility of driving the enemy out of Condé, which lay between his two Divisions, and seizing the bridge which has remained throughout in his possession.

As, however, I found that the bridge was closely commanded from all points on the south side and that satisfactory arrangements were made to prevent any issue from it by the enemy by day or night, I decided that it was not necessary to incur the losses which an attack would entail as in view of the position of the Second and Third Corps, the enemy could make no use of Condé, and would be automatically forced out of it by any advance which might become possible for us.

7. On this day information reached me from General Joffre that he had found it necessary to make a new plan, and to attack and envelop the German right flank.

It was now evident to me that the battle in which we had been engaged since the 12th instant must last some days longer until the effect of this new flank movement could be felt and a way opened to drive the enemy from his positions.

It thus became essential to establish some system of regular relief in the trenches, and I have used the infantry of the 6th Division for this purpose with good results. The relieved brigades were brought back alternately south of the river, and, with the artillery of the 6th Division, formed a general reserve on which I could rely in case of necessity.

The Cavalry has rendered most efficient and ready help in the trenches, and have done all they possibly could to lighten the arduous and trying task which has of necessity fallen to the lot of the Infantry.

On the evening of the 19th and throughout the 20th the enemy again commenced to show considerable activity. On the former night a severe counter-attack on the 3rd Division was repulsed with considerable loss, and from early on Sunday morning various hostile attempts were made on the trenches of the 1st Division. During the day the enemy suffered another severe repulse in front of the 2nd Division, losing heavily in the attempt. In the course of the afternoon the enemy made desperate attempts against the trenches all along the front of the First Corps, but with similar results.

After dark the enemy again attacked the 2nd Division only to be again driven back.

Our losses on these two days were considerable, but the number, as obtained, of the enemy's killed and wounded vastly exceeded them.

As the troops of the First Army Corps were much exhausted by this continual fighting, I reinforced Sir Douglas Haig with a brigade from the reserve, and called upon the 1st Cavalry Division to assist them.

On the night of the 21st another violent counter-attack was repulsed by the 3rd Division, the enemy losing heavily.

On the 23rd the four six-inch howitzer batteries, which I had asked to be sent from home, arrived. Two batteries were handed over to the Second Corps and two to the First Corps. They were brought into action on the 24th with very good results.

Our experiences in this campaign seem to point to the employment of more heavy guns of a larger calibre in great battles which last for several days, during which time powerful entrenching work on both sides can be carried out.

These batteries were used with considerable effect on the 24th and the following days.

8. On the 23rd the action of General de Castelnau's Army on the Allied left developed considerably, and apparently withdrew considerable forces of the enemy away from the centre and east. I am not aware whether it was due to this cause or not, but until the 26th it appeared as though the enemy's opposition in our front was weakening. On that day, however, a very marked renewal of activity commenced. A constant and vigorous artillery bombardment was maintained all day, and the Germans in front of the 1st Division were observed to be "sapping" up to our lines and trying to establish new trenches. Renewed counter-attacks were delivered and beaten off during the course of the day, and in the afternoon a well-timed attack by the 1st Division stopped the enemy's entrenching work.

During the night of 27th-28th the enemy again made the most determined attempts to capture the trenches of the 1st Division, but without the slightest success.

Similar attacks were reported during these three days all along the line of the Allied front, and it is certain that the enemy then made one last great effort to establish ascendancy. He was, however, unsuccessful everywhere, and is reported to have suffered heavy losses. The same futile attempts were made all along our front up to the evening of the 28th, when they died away, and have not since been renewed.

On former occasions I have brought to your Lordship's notice the valuable services performed during this campaign by the Royal Artillery.

Throughout the Battle of the Aisne they have displayed the same skill, endurance and tenacity, and I deeply appreciate the work they have done.

Sir David Henderson and the Royal Flying Corps under his command have again proved their incalculable value. Great strides have been made in the development of the use of aircraft in the tactical sphere by establishing effective communication between aircraft and units in action.

It is difficult to describe adequately and accurately the great strain to which officers and men were subjected almost every hour of the day and night throughout this battle.

I have described above the severe character of the artillery fire which was directed from morning till night, not only upon the trenches, but over the whole surface of the ground occupied by our Forces. It was not until a few days before the position was evacuated that the heavy guns were removed and the fire slackened. Attack and counter-attack occurred at all hours of the night and day throughout the whole position, demanding extreme vigilance, the permitting only a minimum of rest.

The fact that between the 12th September to the date of this despatch the total numbers of killed, wounded and missing reached the figures amounting to 561 officers, 12,980 men, proves the severity of the struggle.

The tax on the endurance of the troops was further increased by the heavy rain and cold which prevailed for some ten and twelve days of this trying time.

The Battle of the Aisne has once more demonstrated the splendid spirit, gallantry, and devotion which animates the officers and men of His Majesty's Forces.

With reference to the last paragraph of my despatch of September 7th, I append the names of officers, non-commissioned officers and men brought forward for special mention by Army Corps commanders and heads of departments for services rendered from the commencement of the campaign up to the present date.

I entirely agree with these recommendations and beg to submit them for your Lordship's consideration.

I further wish to bring forward the names of the following officers who have rendered valuable service:—General Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien and Lieutenant-General Sir Douglas Haig (Commanding First and Second Corps respectively) I have already mentioned in the present and former despatches for particularly marked and distinguished service in critical situations.

Since the commencement of the campaign they have carried out all my orders and instructions with the utmost ability.

Lieutenant-General W. P. Pulteney took over the command of the Third Corps just before the commencement of the Battle of the Marne. Throughout the subsequent operations he showed himself to be a most capable commander in the field and has rendered very valuable services.

Major-General E. H. H. Allenby and Major-General H. de la P. Gough have proved themselves to be Cavalry leaders of a high order, and I am deeply indebted to them. The undoubted moral superiority which our Cavalry has obtained over that of the enemy has been due to the skill with which they have turned to the best account the qualities inherent in the splendid troops they command.

In my despatch of 7th September I mentioned the name of Brigadier-General Sir David Henderson and his valuable work in command of the Royal Flying Corps; and I have once more to express my deep appreciation of the help he has since rendered me.

Lieutenant-General Sir Archibald Murray has continued to render me invaluable help as Chief of the Staff; and in his arduous and responsible duties he has been ably assisted by Major-General Henry Wilson, Sub-Chief.

Lieutenant-General Sir Nevil Macready and Lieutenant-General Sir William Robertson have continued to perform excellent service as Adjutant-General and Quartermaster-General respectively.

The Director of Army Signals, Lieutenant-Colonel J. S. Fowler, has materially assisted the operations by the skill and energy which he has displayed in the working of the important department over which he presides.

My Military Secretary, Brigadier-General the Hon. W. Lambton, has performed his arduous and difficult duties with much zeal and great efficiency.

I am anxious also to bring to your Lordship's notice the following names of officers of my Personal Staff, who throughout these arduous operations have shown untiring zeal and energy in the performance of their duties:—

Aides-de-Camp.

Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley Barry.
Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Brooke.
Major Fitzgerald Watt.

Extra Aide-de-Camp.

Captain the Hon. F. E. Guest.

Private Secretary.

Lieutenant-Colonel Brindsley Fitzgerald.

Major His Royal Highness Prince Arthur of Connaught, K.G., joined my Staff as Aide-de-Camp on the 14th September.

His Royal Highness's intimate knowledge of languages enabled me to employ him with great advantage on confidential missions of some importance, and his services have proved of considerable value.

I cannot close this despatch without informing your Lordship of the valuable services rendered by the Chief of the French Military Mission at my Headquarters, Colonel Victor Huguet, of the French Artillery. He has displayed tact and judgment of a high order in many difficult situations, and has rendered conspicuous service to the Allied cause.

I have the honour to be,
Your Lordship's most obedient Servant,

(Signed) J. D. P. FRENCH, Field-Marshal,
Commanding-in-Chief,
The British Army in the Field.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of the Governor General on the 24th February, 1915, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. II OF 1915.

An Act for settling certain securities of the nominal value of Rupees Thirty Lacs and producing an annual income of about Rupees One Lac and Twenty Thousand the property of Sir Sassoon Jacob David, Baronet, so as to accompany and support the title and dignity of a Baronet lately conferred on him by His Majesty King George V to hold to him and the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten and to be begotten and for other purposes connected therewith.

WHEREAS by Letters Patent of His Majesty King George V, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, dated at Westminster on or about the Twelfth day of December in the second year of His Reign, and by warrant under the King's sign-manual His said Majesty made known that He of his Special Grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, had erected, appointed and created His trusty and well beloved Sir Sassoon Jacob David of Bombay, Knight, to the dignity, state and degree of a Baronet, and him the said Sir Sassoon Jacob David, for His Majesty, His heirs and successors, he did erect, appoint, and create a Baronet, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland by the said Letters Patent, to hold to him and the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten and to be begotten.

AND WHEREAS the said Sir Sassoon Jacob David is desirous of settling in perpetuity the said securities on himself and the heirs male of his body who may succeed to the said Baronetcy so as to support the dignity of the title conferred on him and them as aforesaid upon the trusts and for the purposes hereinafter declared, concerning the same.

AND WHEREAS the said Sir Sassoon Jacob David is desirous that the Accountant-General of Bombay, the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay and the Collector of Bombay, all for the time being and the said Sir Sassoon Jacob David during his lifetime and every succeeding Baronet being a major shall be trustees of the aforesaid securities, and be likewise the trustees for carrying into execution the general purposes and powers of this Act, in relation to the said securities.

AND WHEREAS it is expedient that the aforesaid purposes should be effected by an Act of the Council of the Governor General for making laws and regulations.

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Sir Sassoon Jacob David Baronetcy Act, 1915."

Incorporation of Trustees.

2. Douglas Dewar, Esquire, the Accountant-General of Bombay, the Honourable Mr. George Carmichael, the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay, and Arthur Henry Addenbrooke Simcox, Esquire, the Collector of Bombay, and their successors, the Accountant-General of Bombay, the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay, and the Collector of Bombay, all for the time being, and the said Sir Sassoon Jacob David, Baronet, and after his death the person for the time being holding the said Baronetcy being a major, shall be and they are hereby created a Corporation with perpetual succession and a common seal under the style and title of the "Trustees of the Sir Sassoon Jacob David Baronetcy" and the said Douglas Dewar, Esquire, the Honourable Mr. George Carmichael and Arthur Henry Addenbrooke Simcox, Esquire, and their respective successors in office and the said Sir Sassoon Jacob David, Baronet, and after his death the person for the time being holding the Baronetcy being a major (hereinafter styled "the Corporation") shall be and they are hereby constituted as such Corporation, the Trustees for executing the powers and purposes of this Act.

Vesting and application of income of settled property.

3. Immediately from and after the passing of this Act the said securities being debentures of the Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay of the nominal value of Rupees Fourteen Lacs bearing interest at the rate of four per cent per annum and bonds of the Trustees for the Improvement of the City of Bombay of the nominal value of Rupees Sixteen Lacs bearing interest at the rate of four per cent per annum, such debentures and bonds being of the aggregate nominal value of Rupees Thirty Lacs and producing an annual income of about Rupees One Lac and Twenty Thousand, shall be assigned and transferred into the name of the Corporation, who shall hold the same upon the trusts and for the purposes hereinafter expressed concerning the same, (that is to say) upon trust to continue to hold the said securities until such time as the same shall be discharged by the Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay or the Trustees for the Improvement of the City of Bombay, as the case may be, or shall be sold by the Corporation at the request in writing of the person who shall for the time being be in the enjoyment of the income of the said securities, and on such discharge or sale to invest the sum to be received on such occasion with all convenient despatch in or upon any stocks, funds or securities of, or the principal and interest of which is guaranteed by, the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland or the Government of India, and in like manner, as often as the same shall become necessary, to alter, vary and change at the like request the stocks, funds and securities for others of the same or like nature and which stocks, funds, securities, moneys and investments for the time being subject to the trusts of this Act are hereinafter called "the Trust Funds" and upon further trust from time to time to pay and apply the dividends, interest and annual income of the Trust Funds unto and for the benefit of the said Sir Sassoon Jacob David or the person who, as heir male of his body, shall for the time being have succeeded to, and be in the enjoyment of the title of, Baronet conferred by the said Letters Patent as aforesaid notwithstanding any rule of law or equity to the contrary, such payment to be made to the Baronet for the time being at the place where he may be residing at the time of such payment; and upon failure and in default of heirs male of the body of the said Sir Sassoon Jacob David to whom the same title and dignity of Baronet may descend, the Corporation shall stand possessed of one-eighth part of the Trust Funds in trust to pay the income thereof to the widow of the last Baronet during her life or until her remarriage, as the case may be, and of the remaining seven-eighth part of the Trust Funds and the income thereof and also the said one-eighth part of the said Trust Funds after the death or remarriage of the widow of the last Baronet in trust for the next of kin of the last Baronet in such shares and proportions as he may by will provide, and in default of such appointment for the next of kin (except the widow) of the last Baronet for their absolute benefit according to the law of Intestate Succession for the time being applicable to them.

Application of income during minority.

4. The Corporation during the minority of any person for the time being entitled to and in the enjoyment of the said dignity of Baronet under limitations of the said Letters Patent shall pay and apply for and towards the maintenance, education and benefit of such Baronet, in each and every year during his minority as aforesaid so much only of the annual interest, dividends and income of the Trust Funds as the Corporation shall in their discretion think proper and shall from time to time invest the residue of the said annual interest, dividends and income of the Trust Funds in and upon the stock, funds and securities hereinbefore authorized and shall upon such Baronet attaining his majority pay over, transfer and assign to him or as he shall direct and for his absolute benefit the said investments and all accumulations thereof.

Power to charge settled property for jointure of widow.

5. It shall be lawful for the said Sir Sassoon Jacob David and any person to whom the said title of Baronet shall from time to time descend when in the actual enjoyment of the said title by any deed or deeds, writing or writings with or without power of revocation, to be by him sealed and delivered in the presence of two or more credible witnesses (but subject and without prejudice to the annuity or annuities, if any, which shall be then subsisting and payable by virtue of any appointment made under and in pursuance of this present power) to appoint unto any woman whom he shall marry for her life or until her remarriage and for her jointure in bar of dower or other legal or customary rights an annuity or yearly sum not exceeding the sum of Rupees fifteen thousand clear of all taxes, charges and deductions whatsoever to commence and take effect immediately after the decease of the person appointing the same and to be issuing and payable out of the dividends, interest and annual income of the Trust Funds and to be paid and payable in equal half-yearly payments, the first of the said half-yearly payments to be made at the expiration of six calendar months after the decease of the person who shall have appointed such annuity or yearly income. Provided that the payment of the said annuity to the widow of the person appointing the same shall be subject to the obligation on her part of maintaining and educating each and every minor child (except the Baronet for the time being) of such person during their respective minorities. After the death or remarriage of the said widow the said annuity shall be paid to the Baronet for the time being to be held by him (or if the Baronet for the time being shall be a minor by the Corporation) upon trust to maintain and educate each and every such child during their respective minorities and shall continue to be so held in trust until the youngest child shall attain majority. Provided further that notwithstanding any such appointment as aforesaid no widow of a Baronet shall become entitled to the sum so appointed if she shall also become entitled to the income of the one-eighth part of the Trust Funds on the failure of the male issue of the said Sir Sassoon Jacob David as provided in section 3.

Limitation to amount of jointure.

6. PROVIDED ALWAYS that the said interest, dividends and annual income of the Trust Funds shall not at one and the same time be subject to the payment of more than the yearly sum of Rupees thirty thousand for or in respect of any jointure or jointures which shall be made in pursuance of the power hereinbefore contained, so that if by virtue of or under the same power the said interest, dividends and annual income would, in case this present provision had not been inserted, be charged at any one time with a greater yearly sum for jointures in the whole than the yearly sum of Rupees thirty thousand the yearly sum which shall occasion such excess or such part thereof as shall occasion the same shall during the time of such excess abate and not be payable.

Limitation of transfer to life of transferor.

7. Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 24th February, 1915:—

No 4 of 1915.

A Bill to extend the powers of the Governor General in Council during the continuance of the present war to make rules under the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911.

II of 1911.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary Rules) Act, 1915.

Short title, extent, etc.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India including British Baluchistan and the Santhal Parganas.

(3) This Act and the rules made thereunder shall be in force during the continuance of the present war and for a period of six months thereafter.

2. In this Act the expression 'subject of any State at war with His Majesty' includes—

Definitions.

(i) any person resident and carrying on business in the territory of a State at war with His Majesty; and

(ii) with reference to a company, any company the business whereof is managed or controlled by such subjects, or is carried on wholly or mainly for the benefit or on behalf of such subjects, notwithstanding that the company may be registered within His Majesty's dominions.

3. (1) The power of the Governor General in Council under section 77 of the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, to make rules shall include power to make rules—

Power to make rules.

(a) for avoiding or suspending in whole or in part any patent or licence, the person entitled to the benefit of which is the subject of any State at war with His Majesty;

(b) for avoiding or suspending the registration, and all or any rights conferred by the registration, of any design the proprietor whereof is a subject as aforesaid;

(c) for avoiding or suspending any application made by any such person under the said Act;

(d) for enabling the grant, in favour of persons other than such persons as aforesaid, on such terms and conditions, and either for the whole term of the patent or registration or for such less period, as may be thought fit, of licences to make, use, exercise, or vend, patented inventions and registered designs so liable to avoidance or suspension as aforesaid; and

(e) for extending the time within which any act or thing may be or is required to be done under the said Act.

(2) If the rules made under this Act so provide, the rules or any of them shall have effect from the passing of this Act.

(3) All rules made under this Act shall be published in the Gazette of India, and on such publication shall have effect as if enacted in this Act.

Power in case of exclusive privileges under Act V of 1888.

4. The power to make rules conferred by section 3 (1) (a) and (d) of this Act shall be exercisable in respect of any exclusive privilege acquired under the Inventions and Designs Act, 1888, as if such exclusive privilege had been a patent granted under the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911. V of 1888. II of 1911.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It is considered desirable, during the present hostilities, that power should be taken to refuse to receive applications for the grant of patents or registration of designs from persons who are subjects of a State at war with His Majesty, and to order the avoidance or suspension of patents or designs held or registered by or for the benefit of such subjects, and to enable the grant of compulsory licences to persons other than such subjects. The Bill empowers the Governor General in Council to make rules for the purpose of carrying out the above objects.

2. The Bill is on the same lines as the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks (Temporary Rules) Act, 1914 (4 and 5 Geo. 5, c. 27), as amended by the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Temporary Rules (Amendment) Act (4 and 5 Geo., c. 73).

Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE INDIAN COUNCILS ACTS, 1861 to 1909 (24 & 25 Vict., c. 67, 55 & 56 Vict., c. 14, AND 9 Edw. VII, c. 4).

The Council met at the Council Chamber, Imperial Secretariat, Delhi, on Tuesday, the 23rd February, 1915.

PRESENT :

His Excellency BARON HARDINGE OF PENSHURST, P.C., G.C.B., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., I.S.O., Viceroy and Governor General, presiding, and 54 Members, of whom 46 were Additional Members.

DEATH OF THE HON'BLE MR. GOPAL KRISHNA GOKHALE, C.I.E.

His Excellency the President:—"It was with deep regret that on the morning of the 20th I received the sad news of the premature death during the previous night of the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale, Member of this Council. I had heard that he had been compelled by indisposition to delay his arrival in Delhi, his intention having been to come in time for the meeting of Council today, and it was a great shock to me, as it must have been to us all, to learn that he had quietly passed away.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Gopal Krishna Gokhale was born at Kolhapur in the year 1866. I need not go into the details of his earlier life beyond mentioning that Mr. Gokhale took his degree as Bachelor of Arts in 1884, in the University of Bombay, of which university he subsequently became a fellow. Almost immediately afterwards he began to devote himself to the cause of education. For 20 years he served as a lecturer at the Fergusson College, Poona, specialising particularly in History and Economics, a subject into which he threw himself with so much fervour and zeal that he became an acknowledged authority; and at the same time giving much of his time to establishing the college on a sound financial basis. During this period of his life, he began to take a prominent part in public life and was for four years Secretary to the Provincial Congress of Bombay; in 1895 he was one of the Joint Secretaries of the Indian National Congress and continued for many years to labour in that capacity. In 1897 he went to England as one of the witnesses before the Royal Commission on Indian expenditure and gave evidence which was of great importance and value. In 1900 he was elected a Member of the Bombay Legislative Council and in 1902 he was elected as a representative of the Bombay Council on the Imperial Legislative Council. This office he continued to hold until the date of his death.

"In 1904 he was made a Companion of the Most Eminent Order of the Indian Empire. In 1905 he was President of the Indian National Congress and in the same year founded the Ranade Economic Institute and the Society of the Servants of India. Later on he paid several visits to England and toiled ceaselessly for the various causes he had so much at heart, and I have always understood that he took a quiet but active part in the conversations that led up to the reform of this and other Indian Councils. Finally in 1912 he was appointed a member of the Royal Commission on Public Services in India.

"Such are some of the very distinguished services of the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale but not all, for in Council he was well-known as a speaker of conspicuous ability and wonderful eloquence, while his earnest enthusiasm and sound judgment secured for him a commanding position among the public men of this country. He was a loyal supporter of British rule in India, but nevertheless was also on many occasions a fearless critic of the administrative methods and policy of Government and never hesitated to draw attention to any measure or action which, in his opinion, was improper or open to censure. In regard to financial and educational questions in particular his attacks were frequently most forcible and incisive, so much so indeed that the abilities of his opponents were frequently taxed to the utmost to meet his arguments. Though, however, a severe critic of those who opposed him, he was always dignified and courteous in debate, and even when unsuccessful in securing his object impressed all who heard him not only with his skill, but with his intense earnestness and desire to do what was in his opinion right. He took a prominent part in all debates of importance during his period of office in Council, especially in those relating to financial, educational and administrative questions.

"During my period of office the most important measure in which Mr. Gokhale was interested was the Bill to make better provision for the extension of primary education. Though he failed in inducing the Council to accept the Bill, all those who heard him will remember the extraordinary force and ability with which he pressed his views.

"It is also right that on this occasion I should refer to the important part taken by Mr. Gokhale in emigration questions and in particular that relating to Indian immigration into South Africa. In this question, as in all other political questions, Mr. Gokhale strove ceaselessly for the amelioration of the condition of Indians and for the promotion of their welfare, and in my opinion it was largely due to him and his tactful and statesmanlike attitude during his visit to South Africa that this thorny question eventually received a satisfactory solution.

"In my personal relations with Mr. Gokhale I have always regarded him not merely as an important Member of my Council but also as a friend. On more than one occasion he has given me advice which I found to be both sound and useful, and I may mention that in the South African Immigration question he rendered me most loyal and helpful assistance. It was only six months ago that I recommended to His Majesty the King Emperor the appointment of Mr. Gokhale as Knight Commander of the Indian Empire as a mark of recognition of his valuable services, but Mr. Gokhale, with that simplicity of nature which characterised him, gratefully acknowledged the intention, but asked to remain as he was.

"He has now left us and we shall feel the void he has created, for one may truly say that it will be almost impossible to fill his place in Indian public life. I understand that the Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis desires to say a few words on behalf of non-official Members of my Council and after that I propose to adjourn Council till tomorrow as a mark of sorrowful respect towards our late friend and Member, the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale. May he rest in peace."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis :—"My Lord, the occasion is painful As the spokesman on behalf of the Hon'ble Members of this Council I must express our profound sorrow at the death of Mr. Gokhale. Every word that has fallen from Your Excellency strikes a sympathetic chord in our hearts ; indeed, it is difficult to convey in suitable language the depth of our feeling on this sad occasion.

"My Lord, to me personally, as to many others on this Council, the loss is very great and very painful. Mr. Gokhale was a friend with whom my relations were always cordial and intimate, and the friendship formed in our youth was cemented and strengthened by years of close association in public work both on this Council and outside. His death has on this account been a great blow to me.

"But the removal by death from the scene of his activities of a man like Mr. Gokhale is far more than a personal loss to his friends. It will be difficult to fill up the void created by it in Indian public life. The "Pioneer" has well said that the death of such a man is a national misfortune. Mr. Gokhale combined under an unassuming exterior so many rare qualities of head and heart. It was remarked sometime ago that Mr. Gokhale was sacrificing his life on the altar of the Motherland. This description is absolutely true, not only with reference to any particular period of his life, but also to the whole of his life. There was hardly a moment when he was not doing something or other with the sole object of helping in the amelioration of the Indian people. And he always applied himself to his work with characteristic zeal, earnestness and tenacity. If he had been less hardworking in the public cause and more careful of his health, he would, I am sure, have been spared long to cheer us with his genial presence His splendid talent and unsparing industry were alike applied to the service of his country, the country he loved most and the political advancement of which he so capably advocated. When the future history of a progressive India comes to be written Mr. Gokhale will stand out in bold relief as a strong advocate of political measures to which a good deal of that progress is due. Mr. Gokhale's deep study of public affairs made his services invaluable, and his tactful handling of them saved many a difficult situation. His participation in the settlement of the South African Indian question has been acknowledged by all to have been productive of solid results with Your Excellency's wholehearted and sympathetic support ; and his later services in the cause of Indian education shed lustre on a life begun as a philanthropic and self-sacrificing worker in that cause. My Lord, if Mr. Gokhale is remembered for his varied and unwearied public activity, his work in this Council will form a brilliant page in its history. Those among the non-official members who had the privilege to be his colleagues here cannot fail to miss him very much, especially for the acumen he always displayed in the discussion of the various subjects and his splendid powers of debate. But, my Lord, his brilliant example will be with us to inspire us in our humble work. Mr. Gokhale had quite a passionate fondness for Council work, and even in the last days of his serious illness he was anxious to join us here. Indeed, he was only prevented from making the attempt by his medical advisers. We owe it to our departed and worthy friend to pay this humble tribute to his memory.

"I will here, with Your Excellency's kind permission, read a telegram which has been received from Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar associating himself with this resolution of sympathy.

Telegram from the Hon'ble Mr. C. VIJIARAGHAVACHARIAR, Salem, to the Hon'ble Sir WILLIAM VINCENT, Delhi, dated 22nd February, 1915.

'Honourable Mr. Gokhale's sad untimely death has naturally caused deep universal sorrow. Loss to both Council and country, great, irreparable. Desiring to associate myself with resolution of sympathy in Council tomorrow.'

"I have also received a telegram of sympathy from the Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson, our late Finance Member, in connection with Mr. Gokhale's death."

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 24th February, 1915.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 20th February 1915.

Burma.—No rain fell during the week. Threshing and winnowing of winter rice has been completed. Cultivation of spring rice and of miscellaneous crops is proceeding satisfactorily. The condition of standing crops is good. Cattle are healthy. The price of unhusked rice has fallen further and is much below normal. There is no demand for white rice.

Assam.—The weather was seasonable. Harvesting of mustard and pressing of sugarcane continue. Hoeing and pruning of tea and ploughing of land for paddy and jute are in progress. Sowing of autumn rice has commenced in places. The price of common rice has further risen slightly. Cattle disease is reported from three districts. Fodder and water are insufficient in parts of Cachar.

Bengal. - Light to moderate showers fell in a number of places, facilitating agricultural operations and doing good to the standing crops. The mango blossoms at Malda are however reported to have been slightly injured by the rainfall. Preparation of lands for jute and for other autumn crops is going on briskly. Threshing of winter paddy, harvesting of spring crops and pressing of sugarcane continue. Prospects of standing crops continue to be fairly satisfactory. Cattle disease is reported from five districts The average price of common rice has fallen by about 5·9 per cent. as compared with that of the previous week.

Bihar and Orissa.—Light to moderate rain was general in Bihar and Chota Nagpur. There was no rain in Orissa. The rainfall has facilitated the ploughing of lands but has been somewhat injurious to the spring crops ready for harvest. Pressing of sugarcane and harvesting of the early spring crops continue. Standing crops are, on the whole, doing fairly well. The price of common rice has risen as compared with that of the previous week. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from twelve districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is good.

United Provinces.—Showers were received in parts of the south and east of the Provinces. Hail and rain have slightly damaged crops in Benares and wheat has been attacked by rust in Saharanpur. Standing crops are doing well and prospects are favourable. Pressing of sugarcane, sowing of cane, sawan, tobacco and extra crops, irrigation and harvesting of spring crops, weeding of poppy, extraction of opium, threshing of peas, reaping of mustard and barley and preparation of lands for the autumn and for the next cane crops continue. The condition of agricultural stock is good but cattle disease is reported from thirteen districts. Fodder and water are sufficient. Stocks are still low in Mainpuri and Hardoi Prices show a tendency to rise still further.

Punjab.—The weather was dry except in a few submontane and the western districts where light to moderate rain was received. It was beneficial to crops but more rain is still wanted in the western parts of the Province. Pressing of sugarcane continues and the outturn is average. The condition and prospects of wheat and other spring crops are good. Ploughing for and sowing of the extra spring crops are in progress and are normal. Cattle are generally healthy and fodder and water are sufficient. Prices of food grains are high.

North-West Frontier Province.—The week was rainless. The weather is cloudy at Bannu but clear elsewhere. Rain is badly wanted in Dera Ismail Khan. Standing crops are good on irrigated but average on unirrigated lands. The Paharpur Canal has been stopped. Harvesting of sugarcane is still proceeding with good outturn. Sowing of extra spring crops is in progress. The condition of cattle is generally good. Fodder and water are procurable. Prices are high but stationary.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 7 to 12 and maize from 10 to 22 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is good. There is no cattle disease. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—Heavy rain fell in Muzaffarabad and heavy snow in the Valley. Cattle disease has disappeared from Uttarmachipura and Sripartabsinghpura. Prices are rising in Baramula and are normal elsewhere. Water and fodder are sufficient.

Rajputana.—The weather was cool and clear except occasional clouds in Marwar. Irrigation and weeding continue. Standing crops have been slightly damaged in places in Kotah and Tonk by hailstorms. Elsewhere they are in good condition. Fodder and water are sufficient. Cattle disease is reported in places in Dungarpur and Mewar. Prices are generally high and are rising.

Central India.—The rainfall was general in Gwalior, partial in Baghelkhand, slight in the Southern States and nil elsewhere. The weather is cool. Harvesting of spring crop has commenced in Malwa and in the Southern States, has been completed in Baghelkhand and Bundelkhand and is in progress elsewhere. Standing crops are generally in good condition and their outturn is expected to be good. Crops have been damaged in the Garrauli State of Bundelkhand by want of rain. Cattle disease prevails in some villages of the Kantaphor and Kannod parganas of Indore, in the Nagod State of Baghelkhand and in parts of Dhar. The condition of cattle is generally good. The fodder supply is sufficient throughout. Prices are generally high. They are rising in Malwa and are stationary elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—The weather continues to be clear and occasionally cloudy. The days are warm but the nights and mornings are still cool. Reaping of crops is in full swing throughout the Provinces. Prospects are generally fair to good. The supply of fodder and water is adequate. Agricultural stock is in good condition. Prices generally indicate a tendency to fall. The price of wheat fell by ½ to 2 seers per rupee in ten districts and that of gram by 3 seers in Chhindwara and Buldana.

Feudatory States:—Harvesting of spring crops continues and prospects are generally good. Kodon in Kawardha and wheat in Raipur rose by 2½ and 2 seers per rupee respectively.

Bombay.—Standing crops are generally in good condition except for slight damage by frost in two talukas of Sukkar and one taluka of Cutch, by frost and disease in four talukas of Larkana, by frost and winds in the Upper Sind Frontier, by frost and insects in three talukas of Nawabshah, and by insects in two talukas of Hyderabad. Two other talukas of Hyderabad report slight damage to standing crops for want of moisture. Cotton picking is progressing in Hyderabad, Thar and Parkar, Nawabshah, Gujarat, the Karnatak, Kathiawar, Baroda, Cutch, Rewa Kantha and Kolhapur. Harvesting of spring crops continues except in the Konkan. The fodder supply is sufficient except in the areas affected by floods and in the hilly tracts of Karachi, two talukas of Thar and Parkar and one taluka of Nawabshah. Cattle are in good condition. Agricultural stock is sufficient except in Ahmednagar and Poona. Drinking water is adequate. Water for irrigation is generally sufficient. Prices have slightly risen in the Konkan, have fallen in the Deccan and are generally steady elsewhere.

Hyderabad.—No rain fell during the week. Spring crops are being harvested and are generally fair but have been damaged by rats in parts of the Aurangabad district and by insects in parts of the Medak taluka. Late rice is being sown and weeded. Germination is satisfactory. Prices:—Wheat 5½, coarse rice 7½ and juar 14¾ seers per rupee. The highest price in districts is juar 11 seers in Raichur and the lowest 24 seers in Adilabad.

Mysore.—Rainfall nil. The price of rice has risen in Kolar. Markets are well supplied The outturn of the harvested ragi is good and that of sugarcane, paddy, gram, coffee, wheat and cotton is fair. Ploughing operations are in progress. Standing crops are in good condition. Prospects of the season are generally good Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—Threshing of rice continues. Prices of food grains are high. The public health is fair. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Madras.—Rainfall nil. Standing crops are fair to good but require rain in parts of two districts. They are withering or have withered in parts of three districts. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is proceeding generally with outturn fair to normal. Sowing

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

NOTICE.

License to extract and purchase timber from the North and Middle Andaman Islands.

1. Notice is hereby given that the Government of India are prepared to consider tenders for a license to extract and purchase padauk and other timbers from—

(i) The North Andaman with Interview, Bennett, and all other islands North of Austin Strait.

(ii) The Middle Andaman excepting that portion to the west of Yoljig and South of the main line cleared from the junction of the Chara-lung-ta and Bom-lung-ta streams westwards to Mount Oldham and on to the sea.

2. Sites for depots, sawmills, residences and other purposes essential to the carrying out of the terms of the license will be made available at Pott Cornwallis, Stewart Sound, and Long Island at the discretion of the Chief Commissioner of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

3. Tenders may be submitted for either or both of the above areas. The license will be for 20 years from the 1st January 1916, or such later date within six months of the acceptance of the tender as may be agreed upon, with the option of renewal for another 20 years on terms to be notified by the Government of India hereafter; but those persons whose tenders have been accepted will be permitted to clear land for buildings, and other purposes connected with the license, and to start the erection of such buildings, as from the date on which the agreement is signed and the security money deposited.

4. The fellings will be regulated by the working plans sanctioned, or to be sanctioned, by the Government of India. The two areas mentioned in paragraph 1 above will each be divided into three sub-periodic blocks. Felling and extraction of timber and the payment of royalty thereon must be completed in sub-periodic block I by the end of the first seven years of the license, work being similarly completed in sub-periodic blocks II and III by the end of the 11th and 15th years, respectively. Throughout the period of the agreement the Secretary of State for India in Council will retain the right to extract from the licensed areas timber required for local (other than trade) purposes and for local public works, and in any sub-periodic block on the expiry of the period allotted for the working thereof to issue licenses or otherwise provide for the felling, extraction, and disposal of timber which the licensees have omitted or are not bound to extract.

5. The padauk trees to be felled will be marked previously by the Forest Department, and none but marked trees shall be felled. The first sub-periodic block in each area will be located in the neighbourhood of Stewart Sound.

6. The minimum annual outturn of padauk timber for the first fourteen years after which the present working-plan will be revised, is estimated as follows, but the accuracy of the estimate is not guaranteed :—

(i) From the North Andaman including Interview and Bennett Islands—

1,200 sound trees of and over 9 feet in girth,

1,000 exploitable unsound trees,

which may be expected to yield—

2,100 tons of first class logs

1,400 tons of second class logs.

2,000 tons of third class logs

(ii) From the Middle Andaman—

2,400 sound trees of and over 9 feet in girth,

2,000 exploitable unsound trees,

which may be expected to yield—

4,200 tons of first class logs.

2,800 tons of second class logs.

4,000 tons of third class logs.

The outturn for the last six years of the license will be determined by working plans to be drawn up hereafter.

7. In addition the licensees will be permitted to cut, subject to previous marking, should this in the opinion of the Forest Officer be considered desirable, and to such limits as to area and number as may be imposed by the Chief Commissioner of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands from time to time, other species as follows :—

Gurjan over 8 feet in girth, didu and pyinma over 7½ feet in girth, and koko, black chulgam, white chulgam, white bambwe, red bambwe, and taungpein over 6 feet in girth.

8. The timber will, in all cases, be measured in the round log either at the stump or at collecting depots as may be found convenient by the Forest Department. All felled timber will be held to be at the risk of the licensees and to be liable to the payment of royalty which must be paid before removal from the islands or conversion in a sawmill.

9. For the first three years of the license royalty will be payable at the rates agreed on and on the amount of timber felled : but thereafter minima annual royalties will be payable as follows :—

(i) For the North Andaman, Rs. 1,00,000 per annum.

(ii) For the Middle Andaman, Rs. 1,00,000 per annum.

(iii) In case of a combined license for both islands Rs. 2,00,000 per annum.

10. Except with the special permission of the Divisional Forest Officer all padauk trees, sound or unsound, which have been marked by the forest officers as in their opinion worth conversion, must be felled and royalty paid on them.

11. Should the licensees desire to exploit any form of minor produce or any timber other than those species mentioned above they may be permitted to do so on terms to be settled hereafter by the Chief Commissioner of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

12. The licensees will be subject to such restrictions as the Government of India may prescribe to prevent communication between their employés and the convict population in the Andamans.

13. Subject to the general control of the Chief Commissioner of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands the cultivation of field crops solely for the support of the labour force will be permitted free of taxation.

14. Facilities will be provided at Stewart Sound for wireless telegraphy, and as far as may be possible for a weekly steamer or launch connection for postal purposes between this place and Port Blair.

15. Such padauk timber as may be available from departmental working in the areas not included in the first paragraph of this notice, or in sub-periodic blocks in which felling and extraction of timber has been completed by the licensees in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 4 above and as may not be required for local consumption in the islands or for issue to State-worked Railways or other Government departments in India and Burma, will be sold either by public auction or by public tender, provided that the quantity to be so sold annually, commencing from the first of January 1917, shall not exceed 500 tons of squares and 1,000 tons of scantlings. There will be no limit to the quantity of timber other than padauk which may be extracted from the areas under reference, and no restriction as to its disposal.

16. The Inspector-General of Forests, Simla, will answer calls for further information.

17 Tenders must be submitted on forms to be obtained from the Secretary to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture, and must be accompanied by a receipt for the payment into any Government Treasury of a sum of Rs. 1,500 in cash or in Government securities. This deposit will be returned to unsuccessful tenderers, but in the case of persons whose tenders have been accepted will be subject to forfeiture in the event of their failure to execute, within the time specified, the agreement referred to below.

18. All persons whose tenders have been accepted will be required to execute an agreement in a form approved by the Government of India, copies of which can be obtained on application to the Secretary to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture, Simla. This agreement must be signed within three months of the acceptance of the tender

19. Tenders, marked "Tende for Andamans Timber License," should be submitted so as to reach the Secretary to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture, Simla, on or before the 1st September 1915. The Government of India do not undertake to accept the highest or any tender either for padauk or for other timbers, or to assign any reasons for the refusal or acceptance of any tender.

20. Without the written sanction of the Government of India no transfer, assignment or sub-letting of their license by the licensees will be valid.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

SPEECH OF THE HONOURABLE FINANCE MEMBER PRESENTING THE FINANCIAL STATEMENT FOR 1915-1916.

Speech of the Honourable Finance Member

INTRODUCING THE FINANCIAL STATEMENT FOR 1915-16.

Introductory.

General effects of the War on trade and finance.

MY LORD,

I rise to present the Financial Statement for 1915-16. Our procedure will be the same as on previous occasions: that is, there will be no debate today, but from the 8th March onwards time will be allotted for the examination and discussion of the budget proposals. The figures in the Financial Statement will then undergo such amendments as may be required by our later information or suggested by the discussions in Council. The Budget in its final form will be presented on the 22nd March, the usual closing debate taking place on the 25th.

2. Since I last addressed the Council on financial matters, India has been, and is still, passing through a crisis which has subjected her financial and economic system a supreme test. It is true that, save for some vivid but happily transient experiences in the autumn, she has not felt the direct impact of war. But she has not been le to escape the consequences of that economic solidarity which binds her closely to the outside world. All her recent development has been on lines of diminished isolation. Her currency system connects her with the money markets of London and the world. She relies for internal development largely upon borrowings in London. Her prosperity is increasingly bound up from year to year with her rapidly growing foreign trade. Her internal financial arrangements, and above all her system of credit, in many respects follow Western models. Finally she is a part of a mighty Empire which is one of the foremost belligerents in this general war. It is inevitable therefore that India should feel the effects of the war from top to bottom of her economic system; they are written large over the Statement which I have to present to the Council today, and are affecting still more deeply the trade and production of the entire country. From the general financial and economic point of view—both to those of us who have studied the working of our fiscal system from the inside, and to Honourable Members here who represent India's agricultural and industrial activities of every kind—the history of the last few months is thus a matter of compelling interest; and I feel that the Council will look to me in the first place for some account of this period of crisis. I propose, then, at the outset to bring together some of the main financial incidents of the last seven months, to narrate how we have got through this difficult period, and then to take up the recital of those facts regarding our revenue and expenditure which in normal conditions it is the first object of this Statement to present.

3. Before doing this, however, I must premise that, as the Council must have anticipated, the task of preparing revised estimates of our financial position at the end of 1914-15 and a budget for the coming year has been one of very special difficulty. Ordinarily we have a large mass of data of past years to go upon; and, although budgeting must always be to a certain extent what one may term scientific guesswork, we have merely to consider how far the experience gained during the portion of the current year for which figures are available when our forecast is made, and the circumstances prevailing at the time with reference to commercial or agricultural prosperity or depression, the position in regard to railways and so forth, warrant us in departing from the standards of normal development which can be deduced from past actuals. This year we are in an entirely different position. The sudden outbreak of war and the dislocation of trade that has followed it, the vague and unwarranted sense of insecurity which has led, for instance, to large withdrawals from our savings banks, are all (on this scale) totally new features, and it is most difficult to prognosticate how far there will be a recovery and in what specific directions. We have also the fact that nobody knows how long the war will endure, but we must at present budget on the supposition that it will last through 1915-16. All things considered, I have thought it necessary, in framing forecasts, to adopt an attitude of caution. We must not be too pessimistic, but at the same time, with all the surprises that the war and its economic results may yet have for us, sanguine estimating is entirely out of place. We are really groping in the dark and can only go as carefully as possible.

4. When the war came upon us we were fortunately in a very satisfactory financial position. Our total Treasury balances on 1st April in England and India had been found to exceed by about £1½ million the anticipation we had been able to make on the figures available when preparing this year's budget. Our large 5-crore loan had been a brilliant success, thanks largely to the patriotic enterprise of the Bank of Bengal, and the south-west monsoon gave full promise of agricultural prosperity. There was, therefore, reason to anticipate that, had circumstances continued normal, our Imperial surplus for this year would have been larger than the £1¼ million which we provided in the budget, being then obliged to estimate cautiously by reason of the agricultural situation in Northern India. Trade, it is true, had been somewhat dull owing to the preceding agricultural depression, to the after-effects of the banking crisis of 1913-14 and to the glut of piece-goods; and the consequent weakness of exchange had made the Secretary of State's council drawings much lower than is usual during the first four months of the official year, a circumstance which proved later on to be a fortunate one for us on this side. But at the end of July there was every reason to anticipate that the trade depression which I have mentioned would clear off and that we should have a really good year.

Owing to the conditions I have mentioned, our Treasury balances in India w very high, while the amount of gold held by or for the Government in Lond and in India taken together stood at £23½ million, of which nearly £5 million was in the Gold Standard Reserve and the rest mostly in our Paper Currency balances. In addition, the Secretary of State held in the Gold Standard Reserve, besides the ordinary Reserve investments, a considerable amount in special short-term securities, some of which were about to mature.

The Presidency Banks, too, were in an exceptionally strong position with regard to their balances, after allowing for the fact that a portion of these consisted of Government deposits.

5. The first effect of the European war, which began to operate even before Great Britain had actually been drawn in, was a threatened break in exchange. The Government of India took immediate steps to deal with this aspect of the general situation, and were able to make a preliminary reassuring announcement on the 1st August. On the 3rd August we publicly formulated, with the approval of the Secretary of State, the measures which we had decided to adopt. In the first place, we formally undertook to support exchange by all the means in our power. This was a policy which the Royal Commission on Indian Finance and Currency had recommended in their recently published Report: it fell to us to declare our adhesion to it at the outset of a crisis of unprecedented magnitude and totally uncertain duration.

In the second place, we announced our intention, in pursuance of this object, to sell sterling bills on London, or "reverse bills" as they may conveniently be termed, up to a maximum limit of £1 million a week until further notice. This, too, was an innovation on previous policy. In the exchange crisis of 1907 and 1908 the amount sold had usually been £½ million a week, and occasionally £1 million, but the exact amount was settled afresh just before each successive weekly sale. The present was the first occasion on which the Government of India undertook beforehand to maintain sales on an ample scale. Again, to adapt the system still more fully to trade requirements, we combined with the sale of bills the practice of selling telegraphic transfers also, thus providing a guarantee of immediate remittance when required. A few days later, too, we arranged that bills should be payable in London 16 days after the departure of the weekly mail, thus eliminating the uncertainty due to possible delay in the arrival of the bills by mail steamer.

The object, and, as events have shown, the actual effect of these arrangements was to promote confidence by assuring the banking and commercial public of adequate and continuous facilities for remittance, secured by the whole resources of Government. Incidentally, also, it prevented purely speculative competition for reverse bills and transfers by removing the possible apprehension that Government might at any moment reduce the amount available. Only in the first week following the declaration of this policy did the applications exceed the £1 million limit. Thereafter the volume of weekly tenders was gradually reduced; and after the first demand for remittance had thus been met, it rose and fell, within moderate limits, in correspondence with the fluctuating requirements of the time, until eventually the demand sank to a quite small amount, and has latterly disappeared altogether, at any rate for the time being.

In all we expect, by the end of this year, to have sold bills and transfers to the total extent of about £8¾ million. The sums thus received have been credited to the Gold Standard Reserve in India pari passu with the Secretary of State's withdrawals from the Reserve in England in order to meet the bills and transfers falling due for payment by him from week to week. The net result has, of course, been a great strengthening of the Gold Standard Reserve on this side.

Lastly, in he early days of the crisis, we strengthened that Reserve by exchanging £4 million of silver held therein on this side for an equivalent quantity of gold previously held by us in the Paper Currency Reserve.

6. At the same time as we first notified the selling of reverse bills and transfers, we took steps to restrict the dissipation of our gold in India by laying down that no gold should be issued to any one person or firm to a less extent than £10,000. The object of this was to secure what we thought would be a rough test as between applications for gold for eventual remittance purposes and those which were merely for hoarding or for local requirements. This limitation, however, was defeated by various individuals and firms clubbing together so as to make between them a demand which conformed to our minimum. Between the 1st and the 4th August we had already lost about £1,800,000 of our gold; and on the 5th August, when it was announced that Great Britain was actually at war with Germany, we took the further step, for which we had previously obtained the Secretary of State's approval in anticipation of that contingency, of refusing the issue of gold altogether to private persons.

We had then a stock of about £10 million of gold on this side in the Paper Currency and Gold Standard Reserves taken together, and that aggregate figure still remains practically unaltered. I may mention here, as regards the local rates of exchange as between sovereigns and rupees, that the Calcutta figures show that a sovereign exchanged for R15-6 instead of the normal R15 by the end of August, and that the rate varied between R15-5 and R15-8 until November. In December, however, it fell steadily and it now fluctuates from R15-1 to R15-3 only.

7. The next grave difficulty that the outbreak of war brought upon us was in regard to our savings banks deposits and currency notes. The general trade and credit position which the war set up was most serious in Bombay, mainly as a result of the banking and commercial crisis of the preceding year which had been more severe there than elsewhere. There was also considerable uneasiness in the Punjab, which had likewise suffered from the late banking crisis, but it was in Bombay that the difficulties I have mentioned arose in the most acute form. The deposits in our Post Office savings banks amounted in all to somewhat over 23 crores at the beginning of this year and by the 31st of July had risen to 24½ crores, the increase being due mainly to the more liberal conditions announced in paragraph 58 of my speech introducing the last Financial Statement. From the second week of August there was a heavy and excited run by savings banks depositors upon their funds, and in August and September together there was a net withdrawal of about 6 crores (£4 million) of these deposits, due to misguided apprehension in regard to the effects of the war upon the stability of the Government of India, which was every now and then fanned by wild stories of imaginary reverses sustained by our allies or ourselves, and by the untoward incidents connected with the career of the late Emden. Since then the drain has materially slackened, but in all we calculate that by the end of this year we shall have lost about £7 million of savings banks deposits which we have had to pay out from our general balances. I may say here that we did what we could to promote confidence by putting the Post Offices in adequate funds and enjoining the prompt payment of all claims; and it is perhaps a welcome indication of the way in which the strength of our financial position is really viewed by our enemies that a number of German prisoners at Ahmednagar have themselves opened accounts with the Government savings banks.

8. The demand for the encashment of currency notes was most serious in Bombay, and the total abnormal encashment in that Presidency as a result of the crisis has been estimated at about 2¾ crores in August and September out of 4¼ crores in respect of India as a whole. Outside Bombay the largest encashment occurred in Burma, and in the Punjab too it was considerably larger than in ordinary years; but in these cases the increase appears to be due as much to the special trade conditions of the year as to uneasiness arising directly from the crisis.

The Government at once took steps to check any panic by issuing instructions that every endeavour should be made to meet promptly all demands for encashment at district treasuries, whereas ordinarily, it will be remembered, a note is only encashable as of right at a Currency centre. A very large number of notes were cashed in this way in the districts, especially in Bombay and the Punjab, and it may be hoped that when the crisis passes away, the measures we took will have the effect of ensuring a permanent increase in the popularity of currency notes and consequent extension in their use. It must be borne in mind, however, that the very fact that we were obliged to strengthen the cash resources of district treasuries and of the savings banks, besides adding to our deposits with muffasal branches of Presidency Banks, imposed an extra strain on our balances by preventing the economy which we usually obtain by their concentration, so far as possible, at the Presidency towns and other important commercial centres.

The abnormal run on our notes was of relatively short duration. Nevertheless, owing to depressed trade conditions resulting from the war, our net note circulation, excluding the holdings by Reserve Treasuries and by the Presidency Banks at their head offices, remained nearly 7 crores (£4⅔ million) less at the end of January than on the corresponding date in 1914.

9. Having regard to the present abnormal trade conditions and to the extraordinary strain on our credit generally, I consider that the position of our paper money calls for full satisfaction. Our notes circulate freely, and apart from very minor temporary local incidents, there has never been any question of their being depreciated as compared with coin. We may also regard with pleasure the present position, in quite exceptional conditions, of our Government paper, as well as of the somewhat analogous securities of our great Municipal Corporations and Port Trusts. Our 3½ per cent. rupee paper was quoted at Rs. 95-14 this time last year, and it now stands at only some Rs. 3½ less—a striking testimony, surely, to the strength and stability of our financial position.

10. As I have already said, the Secretary of State's council drawings had been relatively small before the war began, and owing to the fall in exchange caused mainly by the dislocation of our export trade, they have been since then, and until quite lately, at a very low level. In all, we estimate that during the current year he will have obtained £6·9 million* by ordinary council bills and telegraphic transfers, against £20 million which we estimated in the Budget as being the extent of his requirements for Ways and Means purposes. In the earlier stages of the crisis he also transferred to his treasury £1 million of the gold held in London on account of the Paper Currency Reserve, an opposite payment to that Reserve being made in India; and he has been helped by gold remittances from India to the extent of about £600,000. Also we have had to spend here, in connection with the war, sums largely in excess of the amount which India contributes as an equivalent of what she would have spent in normal times on the expeditionary forces she has sent in aid of the Home Government. This excess outlay is recoverable from His Majesty's Government, and is periodically realised from them by the Secretary of State. To that extent, he is in the same position as if he had actually drawn money on council bills, as we meet the expenditure and he gets the equivalent.

Taking his ordinary council drawings together with these other sources of supply, we estimate that in the current year he will, in all, have obtained about £17 million against the Budget estimate of £20 million above referred to.

* Exclusive of £600,000 which he will appropriate to the Gold Standard Reserve from his sales towards the close of the year.

The Secretary of State has thus been far more fully financed than might at first have seemed possible in view of the weakness of exchange in the earlier part of the year and the reversal of the remittance current as soon as the war broke out.

11. I now turn to the effects of the war on the commercial and credit position in India, which of course materially influences our revenue receipts, especially under Customs and Railways. In the first place, internal credit was seriously prejudiced by the attitude of a large part of the Marwari community, who play such an important rôle in conducting and financing the trade of the country. Speaking generally, instead of conforming to the excellent British maxim of 'business as usual,' they departed to their homes, taking with them as much of their capital as they could readily lay hold of, and thus materially hampering the working of the credit machinery with which they are so intimately connected. As regards the banks, the position of the Presidency Banks was, as I have already said, very strong before the crisis, and in order to promote public confidence the large Government deposits which they already held were further increased at the outset of the war, and have since been kept at as high a level as our resources permitted. We have preferred, in fact, to borrow somewhat more freely from the Gold Standard Reserve—a matter to which I shall refer later—rather than curtail unduly the resources placed at the disposal of trade.

The bank rate was low when the war commenced, as is usual at that season of the year, being 3 per cent. in Calcutta, 3 per cent. in Bombay, and 4 per cent. in Madras. As a measure of protection, the Bank of Bengal raised its rate to 5 per cent. on the 6th August, and the Bank of Bombay to 4 per cent. on the same day, and to 5 per cent. on the 13th; while later on the rate was increased, at somewhat different dates, to 6 per cent. for all three banks, at which figure it now stands. It is understood that the Indian branches of the Exchange Banks were also in a strong position at the commencement of the crisis.

As regards other banks, the previous year saw the collapse of a large number of (generally speaking) recklessly managed banking institutions. In the light of subsequent events, however, we may reckon it as fortunate that the disappearance of these banks occurred before the present crisis. Though the want of confidence engendered by their failure tended to accentuate the difficulties in Bombay and the Punjab, the situation would have been far more acute had the banks in question been still in existence and then collapsed as they must have done. As it was, two banks which had been badly shaken by the previous crisis, though they survived it, now fell. One of these, the Punjab Co-operative Bank, established in 1905, was compelled to close its doors on the 14th September. Another, the Bank of Upper India, established as far back as 1862, suspended payment on the 8th October. It is probable, however, that these events had been largely discounted beforehand, for they did not produce any widespread panic.

12. I now pass on to the direct effects of the war upon our foreign and internal trade and production. As I have previously said, there had already been a period of depression, though we had every reason to assume that, ordinarily, this would presently have passed away. The first result of the war was naturally to stop our considerable trade with Germany and Austria. India's total import trade in private merchandise was in 1913-14 valued at £122 million, and of this £8·4 million (nearly 7 per cent.) was with Germany, and £2·9 million (or 2·3 per cent.) with Austria-Hungary. Of the exports from India, valued in 1913-14 at £166 million, £17·6 million (10·6 per cent.) represented trade with Germany and £6·7 million (4 per cent.) with Austria-Hungary, the chief items being food-grains, raw cotton and jute, and seeds and hides and skins.

The shutting-off of the export trade to these countries was of course even more serious than the closure of the import trade, both by reason of its greater value and because, while the imports were largely capable of replacement from other sources, the removal of these two customers for exported Indian goods, concurrently with dislocation of trade in other directions, resulted in a reduction in the demand for, and in the price of, certain important commodities, so that in some cases values have been seriously affected as well as volume. Moreover the much higher loss of trade on the export side has, of course, special significance from the point of view of exchange.

The war has likewise produced a complete stoppage of our trade with Belgium, and a very large diminution of that with France, and here again the principal items of export are those just mentioned. Since November, too, we have been at war with Turkey, but our trade with her is much less important. Its chief item is the export of rice to Turkey-in-Asia.

There have also been necessary restrictions in regard to the export of certain articles, dictated in some cases by direct military requirements and in others by the necessity of preventing supplies reaching our enemies through neutral countries. Hides and skins, jute (raw and manufactured), wool, and wheat are among the articles in respect of which the free course of trade has thus been interfered with.

13. The dislocation which resulted from the war was not, however, limited to the shutting down or curtailment of particular elements of India's trade, but extended to her sea-borne commerce as a whole, and especially to the export portion. The main difficulties were not only those of finance, which I have already touched on, and which were aggravated by a general disturbance of the world's exchanges, but also a serious shortage of shipping arising primarily from the necessity for taking up vessels for military transport purposes.

14. The most immediate problems which arose were those connected with jute. Very high prices had been realised for this commodity in the preceding year, and these had actually touched R90 per bale of raw jute. With the consequent large sowings in the current year, accompanied by favourable agricultural conditions, a record crop was grown which would in any case have resulted in a very substantial drop in prices. Apart from this, as a consequence (due to the war) of the inability of buyers to take delivery under existing contracts, the jute mills were naturally not prepared to buy largely or except at very low rates. The reluctance of buyers of jute to come into the market at first caused apprehension that the cultivator would decline to sell at the prices offered and would prefer to allow a substantial portion of the crop to remain uncut. This fortunately proved not to be the case, though the price of raw jute necessarily showed a great drop from the record figure obtained in the preceding year, falling as low at one time as R31 a bale. The difficulties of the mills were subsequently to some extent removed, as tonnage for the shipment of their goods became more readily available, and this caused some rise in jute prices. But the initial paralysis of the internal trade is clearly indicated by the fact that whereas between August and October 1913 the issue of rupees from the Calcutta Currency Office in connection with the financing of the jute crop, amounted to some 13 crores of rupees, the issue in the corresponding period of 1914 was about 56 lakhs only.

As regards the ryots, although the sudden change from abnormally high to abnormally low prices has gravely affected, for the time being, the general prosperity and well-being of the jute districts, the winter harvest in these tracts has fortunately been quite fair; and we may well hope that, with the better prospects of the jute trade which now seem probable, there will be economic recovery in the supplying areas.

15. While Bengal was thus affected in regard to jute, there were also grave difficulties, mainly on the Bombay side, in respect of another great staple—cotton. The position when the war broke out was itself unsatisfactory, since previous over-trading, and the depression caused by the banking crisis of 1913-14, had led to the accumulation of stocks of piece-goods and the lock-up of capital in connection therewith. Then came the war, and with it the cutting off of large markets and a concomitant world-slump in the price of raw cotton, which in India was further threatened by the fact that the incoming crop promised to be a good one. Moreover, traders who ordinarily take a large part in the internal financing of the cotton crop had, as already stated, left for their homes. The position, and its possible consequences both to traders and ryots, naturally excited grave apprehension in Bombay, and towards the close of November the Government of India called a representative conference, over which I had the honour to preside, to consider the situation, and how far it might be feasible and legitimate for Government to intervene. The action taken as the result of that conference has already been made public by a Government communiqué and was further explained a few days later in the speech made by Your Excellency in opening the present Legislative Session. It will suffice to say here that we came to the conclusion that the best method by which we could afford financial assistance—one which would, moreover, be also applicable in the case of other branches of trade that might be threatened by similar disturbance—was to facilitate an extension of credit which would assist the holding up of existing stocks where occasion required, without prejudicing the supply of capital required for fresh undertakings. The Presidency Banks undertook to give liberal advances for this purpose, while the Government agreed to place them in funds where necessary by loans of public money, which would not be called up till the special circumstances requiring them had passed away. In order to provide us with the necessary resources for doing this, and also to assist us in meeting our other liabilities in the event of unexpected emergency, we obtained the sanction of the Secretary of State to the temporary adoption of a measure which had been recommended by the Royal Commission on Indian Finance and Currency, viz, a further investment of £4 million from the Paper Currency Reserve, which the Government could thus draw upon for these purposes by creating a special loan ad hoc when they needed to do so.

I may observe here, as an instance of the way in which depression in one branch of trade reacts on another, that a decline in prices of commodities such as jute and raw cotton necessarily restricts the purchasing power of the cultivators and their demand for imported commodities, such as piece-goods.

16. Another staple which has been adversely affected by the war is the ground-nut crop of Madras, which is largely exported to France for the purpose of being made into table oil there. Difficulties were also experienced in connection with tea. After the United Kingdom, India's largest customer for this commodity is Russia, and the disturbance to finance which accompanied the war rendered it impossible at first for the Russian buyers to make their usual purchases. This difficulty was, however, subsequently surmounted, in part, by financial arrangements made between His Majesty's Government and that of Russia which supplied funds in London towards exchange facilities for Russo-British trade.

17. The Council are also aware that a heavy rise in local prices has compelled us to take drastic measures to restrict the export of wheat, and although this action is, I consider, amply justified in the interests of our own people, it necessarily prejudices our export trade.

18. I have said enough to show how seriously and how variously our outward and inward trade has been affected by the conditions arising out of the general war. It is too soon yet to hope for any decisive turn of the tide; but the situation has been eased to some extent by the recovered security of Indian waters, and there are welcome indications, too, of increased confidence and trade activity in India itself. In this connection the following figures, which I owe to the department of Statistics, will be of interest. They show month by month since the war began the falling off in trade as compared with 1913-14, and also compare the totals for the first 9 months of the year with those of the corresponding period in each of the two preceding years.

19. I have now concluded my general review of the financial events of the war period up to the present date. We have in truth been much buffeted, but the inherent strength of our financial and economic position has been demonstrated at every turn. Our loans and our paper money stand practically unimpaired in public estimation. An unprecedented drain on our savings banks has been met, and though withdrawals still continue they are now on quite a small scale. So far as India is concerned, there has been no crash in exchange such as pessimists sometimes threatened us with in a world-crisis: on the contrary, the measures taken to maintain the stability of the rupee have met with full success. As regards both foreign and internal trade, after some natural bewilderment and dislocation at the outset, readjustment is already taking place, and at no time has it been necessary to give serious consideration to the expedient of a moratorium—the panacea found necessary in so many other countries. Above all, while India has steadily faced all her obligations, she has not had to fall back on outside resources for any extraordinary measure of help. She has borrowed of course more freely, but without prejudicing her credit; and, to a large extent, her additional borrowings have been taken from her own reserves. We cannot say what the future has in store for us, but we are entitled, in the light of our recent searching experience, to look forward to it with sober confidence. That confidence is materially strengthened by the agricultural situation, which affords a most welcome contrast to the conditions prevailing when I presented my last Financial Statement. The south-west monsoon and the winter rains have alike been abundant, and we can now look forward to exceptionally bountiful crops.

Changes in forms of account.

20. I now pass on to the task of laying before Council our estimates of the present and coming years. To enable me to do this, however, I must first explain certain changes which we have adopted, with the approval of the Secretary of State, in Statements A, B and D of the Financial Statement, and which will, I hope, be found to make these more clear.

In the first place, we have got rid of the confusing accounts expedient described as a 'transfer through the Land Revenue head.' At present, as Honourable Members are aware, if the Land Revenue of a province is divided, say, in equal shares between Imperial and Provincial, it is not shown as so divided in our Budget statements and accounts, because any contributions which we may happen to be making to the province are treated as diminishing the Imperial half share and enhancing the Provincial half share, and conversely with any adjustments at the expense of a province in favour of the Government of India. Contributions of the former character are numerous and, in the aggregate, important, especially those which are made under the terms of the Provincial settlements and subsequent allotments in respect of education and sanitation. The method hitherto in force is confusing and, as I have always thought, unscientific. It tends to obscure the real share of Imperial and Provincial Land Revenue according to the settlement and, as brought out in paragraph 23 of my speech last year, it prevents our explaining variations in Land Revenue in the concise way which we can adopt in regard to other heads. There is also the disadvantage that, if new Budget proposals involve further grants to Provincial Governments, the effect of these has to be explained in connection with Land Revenue transactions, whereas they could more conveniently be dealt with by themselves or along with other proposals.

We are accordingly going to confine the Land Revenue transactions to their proper scope, and to show all the adjustments above referred to under a new head entitled 'Transfers between Imperial and Provincial Revenues,' which will be found at the foot of Statement A of the accounts which I am now presenting. All such assignments to Provincial revenues will appear as deduct items in the Imperial columns and as add entries in the Provincial, the signs being reversed in those relatively infrequent instances in which, for some special reason, a net assignment has to be made from Provincial to Imperial.

21. Secondly, we have eliminated rupee figures from Statements A and B, and have so made it possible, without adding to their size, to arrange them in a form which brings out at once, for both revenue and expenditure, the two main lines of distinction, viz., (a) the distribution as between India and England, and (b) the distribution as between Imperial and Provincial. I may add that we have not made any change as regards the figures contained in the Financial Secretary's Explanatory Memorandum, which are primarily expressed in rupee currency.

22. Thirdly, we have somewhat amplified Statement D, which shows the transactions of Provincial Governments, following generally the lines adopted in the appendix to the Financial Secretary's Memorandum explaining the Budget estimates for the current year—vide page 262 of the Financial Statement for 1914-15. The information now given in the amended statement will, I hope, be of assistance to Honourable Members who are interested in the course of Provincial finance.

23. I have also to draw attention to two further changes which we have made in Statements A and B. The heads of account numbered XXI and 26 used to deal with 'Scientific and other minor Departments' and have hitherto included Agriculture But in view of the importance of agricultural development and the desirability of readily tracing the progress of outlay thereon, we have now placed agricultural expenditure under a separate head, 26-A, while the other expenditure, hitherto brought together under head 26, now figures under '26-B, Scientific and Miscellaneous Departments.' The same sub-division has been made in the corresponding Receipt head (XXI) of Statement A.

The second of the two changes above mentioned is the amalgamation of the hitherto separate heads of Post Office and Telegraph, following on the amalgamation of the administration of these two Departments.

Forecast of Financial Conditions in 1914-15 and 1915-16.

Revised Estimate of Revenue and Expenditure for 1914-15.

24. The general position, as far as we can now forecast it, is brought out in the following table which compares the current year's Budget and the Revised estimate now put forward.

[In millions of £.]

	Budget, 1914-15.			Revised, 1914-15.
	Imperial.	Provincial.	Total.	Imperial.	Provincial.	Total.
Revenue . . .	54·237	30·842	85·079	49·927	30·229	80·156
Expenditure . . .	52·981	34·048	87·029	52·669	32·446	85·115
Surplus + or deficit —	+1·256	—3·206	—1·950	—2·742	—2·217	—4·959

Revenue—Imperial.

25. We budgeted this year for a total Imperial revenue of about £54¼ million. The Revised estimate shows only about £50 million, or a total decrease of £4¼ million, a result which is, speaking generally, entirely attributable to the war, and more especially to the decrease in the two large sources of revenue which have been most severely affected by the consequent dislocation and depression of trade, viz., Railways and Customs

26. The largest decline in revenue is that expected under State Railways. The Budget estimate of gross receipts for the current year, £37·7 million, was taken at practically the same figure as the actuals of 1913-14. In the first four months of the year, i.e., prior to the outbreak of war, the Railway revenue was some £260,000 in advance of the corresponding period of the preceding year; but in the six months following the outbreak of war there has been a decline of £1,490,000. The Railway revenue has also been affected by the fact that the closing months of 1913-14 and the earlier months of 1914-15 were depressed by the crop failures in Northern India and the commercial and banking crisis in the north and west. Having regard to the continued depression of trade, we estimate that the total gross receipts this year will be £35·6 million, or about £2 million less than the Budget.

Under working expenses, on the other hand, there is a reduction, as compared with Budget anticipations, of £73,000 only. With a large and sudden drop in a previously established standard of receipts, it is impossible to effect forthwith a proportionate reduction in working expenses. The railways are equipped to carry a certain amount of traffic and, as much of the expenditure is of a fixed character, there are obvious difficulties in reducing its scale, especially when the decline in traffic is temporary, as we expect it to be on the present occasion. Secondly, a large amount of comparatively unremunerative military traffic has been carried in recent months, a fact which evidently tends to raise the general average of working expenses to gross receipts.

Allowing for a small increase in the payment of surplus profits to companies based on the traffic of 1913-14, the actual profits earned in that year being higher than had been anticipated, we take the total decline in net Railway receipts at £2,065,000.

27. Under Customs we now estimate our total revenue at £6,320,000, which is £917,000 less than the Budget anticipation. The most important decreases occur under manufactured articles, sugar, export duty on rice, cotton manufactures, and metals (other than silver) and manufactures thereof, while on the other hand we expect some considerable increase under silver and petroleum.

28 There is also a large fall, amounting to £361,000, in the Interest receipts. About a third of this is due to the depletion of balances in London on which, in normal times, the Secretary of State would have been earning money, pending their eventual employment. The rest of the decrease is nominal and is practically counterbalanced by a like reduction under expenditure. It arises from a technical change in the treatment of advances to, and overdrafts of capital by, the Bengal-Nagpur Railway Company in accordance with the provisions of the new contract with them.

29. Under Opium, there is a loss of £283.000, which is due, in large measure, to the war and the consequent disturbance of foreign trade. This led to a heavy fall in prices, which we had to meet by fixing a substantial upset price (₹1,600 per chest) below which we refused to sell. The result is that out of the 13 200 chests which we originally expected to sell at an average price of ₹1,700 a chest, we now expect that about 1,500 chests will remain unsold, and that the average price realized by the remainder will amount to ₹1,589 only.

Stagnation of business, and interference with telegraphic communication entailed by war conditions, also account for a fall of £213,000 in the gross receipts of Posts and Telegraphs.

30. Economic depression has likewise left its mark on other heads, though in their cases the loss is shared with Provincial. Our Excise revenue has naturally fallen much below budget anticipations. The same is true of Stamps; and under Land Revenue too there is a considerable decline, to which other circumstances have also contributed. Scarcity conditions at the outset of the war, and economic depression afterwards, have caused a return of small coin from circulation, with a corresponding diminution of our anticipated profits on coinage. The only head of revenue in which an important betterment on budget anticipations has occurred is Salt; and here, I regret to say, the improvement is almost wholly illusory, as it represents advance payments of duty effected in the expectation of increased salt taxation.

Revenue—Provincial.

31. The aggregate Provincial revenue was estimated in the current year's budget at £30 8 million, and is now taken at £30·2 million As I have just mentioned in connection with the Imperial figures, there has been a heavy fall under Excise (£266,000), Land Revenue (£255,000) and Stamps (£167,000). The Forest revenue, too, falls short of expectations by £271,000, the decrease occurring mainly in Burma, where war conditions have affected the teak market, and the United Provinces, where a scheme for the supply of railway sleepers has been delayed, with a consequent reduction on both the revenue and expenditure sides. The Irrigation revenue, owing partly to last year's deficient rainfall, has improved.

Expenditure—Imperial.

32. We budgeted for a total Imperial expenditure of almost £53 million, which is now reduced to about £52·7 million. Of this decrease, £200,000 under "Interest on capital deposited by companies" follows automatically on the revised procedure in respect of interest charges referred to in paragraph 28. The estimates for Military Services have naturally been much disturbed by the war, but owing to the operation of several counterbalancing factors, the total figures show relatively little divergence from the Budget, a saving being now anticipated of £64,000 in the gross expenditure and of £13,000 in the net I may also mention incidentally, with reference to paragraph 16 of my speech of last year, that the present estimate provides for the completion of the payment to the Mysore Durbar in respect of the surplus revenues of the Bangalore Assigned Tract.

Expenditure—Provincial.

33. The aggregate Provincial expenditure was taken in the Budget at £34 million. It is now estimated at £1½ million less, viz., about £32½ million. The principal reductions occur under Education (£738,000), Medical (£352,000) and Civil Works (£380,000), and are due to the Local Governments not having spent in full the grants placed at their disposal for the development of education and sanitation and for other purposes. As I suggested in paragraph 28 of my speech last year, I was a little sceptical then as to their ability to spend all that they hoped; and it may be that some lapse would have occurred in any case. But it is only fair to add that, in view of the present financial situation and after reference to the Secretary of State, we issued orders that expenditure not specifically provided for in the Budget should not, save in very special circumstances, be embarked on this year, so that outlay of this description, which would in ordinary years have been found by reappropriation from items where savings were anticipated, has not been incurred.

General Results—Imperial and Provincial.

34. I can now sum up the final position of our revenue account for the current year. As I have shown, the greater portion of the loss of revenue resulting from the war has fallen against the Imperial side, Imperial revenues being more dependent on those resources which are specially responsive to trade conditions; and our expected surplus of £1¼ million has thus been converted into a deficit of £2¾ million. In the case of the Local Governments the total loss of revenue, though widely diffused, has been much less, and the scope for retrenchment was greater, owing to the specially heavy provision made in this year's budget for new outlay. The Provincial account has thus improved, the deficit, i.e, drafts on provincial balances, being reduced from the total of nearly £3¼ million allowed in the Budget estimate to about £2¼ million only. Doubtless those Honourable Members who have followed our Railway and Customs returns since the war broke out will be already fully prepared for some such broad results as those which I have just stated, and I think they will agree with me in not being unduly perturbed at this inevitable outcome of war conditions. On the whole account, that is combining the Imperial and Provincial sides, and taking into account retrenchment of expenditure in relief of loss of revenue, the net deterioration, as compared with our expectations when the budget of the year was framed in peace conditions, is just about £3 million.

Revised Estimate, 1914-15. Ways and Means position.

35. Next as regards the Ways and Means position. Honourable Members will recollect that our main task in preparing our financial programme for the current year was to find means of financing a railway programme of £12 million, in addition to heavy expenditure, amounting to nearly £3¼ million, by Local Governments in excess of the provincial revenues of the year. For these and other less important commitments falling outside the revenue account, we had a satisfactory opening balance to look to, and the promise of a normal surplus in the current year, and of a substantial amount of new deposits in our savings banks which we hoped would be increased by the more elastic rules referred to in paragraph 58 of my last year's speech. For the rest, we proposed to rely, in the main, on a scale of borrowing which had not hitherto been customary. Until the advent of the war, our anticipations promised, as indicated in paragraph 4 above, to be amply fulfilled. There was thus every prospect of our financing the programme of capital outlay which we had laid down for the current year, and of being left with a helpful margin of funds to assist in meeting the requirements of 1915-16. The whole position has, however, been entirely modified by the war. As already stated, our budgeted Imperial surplus of £1¼ million is turned into a deficit of £ 2¾ million, i.e., a total worseness of £4 million. Under Unfunded Debt, the head into which the savings banks transactions referred to in paragraph 7 enter, the net addition to our resources of over £1¾ million which we assumed in the budget is turned into a net drain amounting to more than £5 million, that is a further worseness of nearly £7 million. In these two ways alone the war has therefore taken from us nearly £11 million of the resources on which we relied for capital outlay on railways and irrigation, for the construction of Delhi, for the financing of the expenditure of Local Governments from the large balances to their credit, and a variety of other requirements; and we have lost a further sum of somewhat less than £1 million owing to a larger withdrawal from our treasuries of funds deposited therein by local bodies and other parties which are allowed to bank with us.

36. This aggregate loss of approximately £12 million was partly counterbalanced, as I have said in paragraph 4, by an improvement of about £1½ million in the opening balance of the current year, while Local Governments have curtailed their drawings on our balances by £1 million. There has also been a lapse of £303,000 on the grant for the construction of New Delhi, to which I shall refer at a later stage, and one of £370,000 in the capital grant for railways. These improvements, however, still left a large gap to be filled, as will be seen from the statement below which shows in a concise form how the situation has been met :—

37. Special reference is invited to items (3) and (4) under 'Assets,' which show that our total borrowings at home and in India have amounted to £12¼ million more than our budget provided for. This completely covers the shortage of funds which we had to meet, and leaves us, for the time being, as I show directly, with very strong cash balances.

In England, the Secretary of State has raised £7 million by India bills in lieu of obtaining about £4½ million by a permanent issue of stock as provided for in the Budget; and has increased by over £2½ million the borrowings through companies which he originally contemplated. In India, besides raising our five-crore loan before the war broke out, we have taken advantage of a spontaneous offer by His Highness the Maharaja Scindia to place 50 lakhs (£⅓ million) at our disposal, and for the rest of our borrowings, namely £7 million, have fallen back upon the Gold Standard Reserve, in which we now hold a large and otherwise unemployed sum of money through the sale of reverse bills and telegraphic transfers, to which I have already referred. Our advances from this source at one time reached a maximum of £8 million. Subsequently £1 million has been paid back, and a further repayment could have been made had we only the requirements of the current year in view.

38. In any case, however, we have many reasons, in conditions like the present to maintain our balances at a high level Our resources have to be widely dispersed in order to keep treasuries and savings banks well supplied with funds, so as to meet the claims of depositors or demands for encashment of currency notes, without delay or embarrassment. We desire, too, as I have already said, to avoid as far as possible curtailment of our deposits with the Presidency Banks in view of possible trade conditions. We have also been obliged to spend large sums on account of His Majesty's Government in connection with the expeditionary forces, and war requirements generally, sometime before the outlay could be recovered. Our aggregate cash balances in India and England are consequently now expected to stand at about £21 million on 31st March 1915, as against the budget anticipation of £17¼ million and the £16⅛ million which is usually accepted as our normal requirement. As I shall show later on, the excess of some £1¾ million over the latter sum will be fully required next year.

Budget Estimate of Revenue and Expenditure for 1915-16.

39. I now turn to the Budget figures for 1915-16. The general results are exhibited in the statement below: —

[In millions of £.]

	Revised, 1914-15.			Budget, 1915-16.
	Imperial.	Provincial.	Total.	Imperial.	Provincial.	Total.
Revenue . . .	49·927	30·229	80·156	49·655	30·692	80·347
Expenditure . . .	52·669	32·146	85·115	52·425	31·755	84·180
Deficit (—) .	—2·742	—2·217	—4·959	—2·770	—1·063	—3·833

40. It will be seen that we estimate for a deficit on the Imperial side amounting to about £2·8 million, and that Local Governments are being permitted to draw on their balances to the extent of £1 million. The aggregate excess of expenditure over revenue on the combined Imperial and Provincial account is thus about £3·8 million, against £5 million in the current year. As already stated, our Budget is based on the assumption that war will continue throughout the year, and on this hypothesis, we must allow for a deterioration of revenue extending over twelve months, as compared with the eight months of war conditions experienced in the current year. On the other hand, we may fairly assume that there will be some recovery—of which indeed there are already signs—from the general dislocation of trade which was specially acute in the opening stages of the war; and also, in view of present agricultural prospects, that, apart from the war, the position under such heads as Land Revenue will be better in certain provinces than it has been in the present year. On the whole, therefore, so far as present indications point, we need not anticipate that the eventual general results will differ widely from those of 1913-14

Revenue—Imperial.

41. Thus, we budget for a total Imperial revenue of about £49⅔ million against nearly £50 million taken in the Revised estimate for the current year. The principal further decreases occur under Customs, Salt and Railways, to which heads I shall presently refer more fully. Military receipts too will naturally suffer from the absence of so many troops. On the other hand, according to present prospects, we look, as already stated, for a large improvement under Land Revenue, of which the Imperial share will be £428,000. Under Opium, we expect a betterment of £242,000, in the anticipation of somewhat improved prices. Our transactions will include a certain amount to be sold direct to the Government of the Straits Settlements, on terms which have now been settled by agreement for a series of years. There is no other important betterment under the principal heads of revenue, which have continued, up to a late stage of estimating, to show the effects of the depression resulting from the war. But some saving (£138,000) will be obtained on the Imperial side by the absence or diminution of certain assignments to Local Governments which appear in the Revised.

42. Under Salt, the advance payments of duty in anticipation of enhanced taxation, which have inflated the revenue of the current year as explained in paragraph 30, will tend to depress it in 1915-16, and we have taken the Budget at £315,000 less than the Revised estimate.

43. Under Customs, we anticipate a further decline of £377,000. We have, in this case, to allow definitely for the probable effect of the war on our import trade during 12 months in 1915-16, as against 8 months of the current year. The goods available for import into India are likely to be materially less than in the present year, owing to the stoppage of trade with enemy countries throughout 1915-16 and other restrictions, and also to the partial withdrawal of the industrial population in the other belligerent countries either to the fighting line or to the manufacture of stores and materiel for war purposes. The set-back to economic prosperity in India itself must also result in some reduction in the demand for imported commodities. On the other hand, the trade routes, it may be anticipated, will continue to be safe throughout 1915-16, and we may look for an appreciable revival of credit and confidence. We have not, therefore, considered it necessary to write down our revenue very heavily as compared with the Revised, except in the two special cases of silver and cotton manufactures. Under the former sub-head, we expect this year a revenue of close on £1 million. This is abnormally high even under peace conditions, and for the coming year we have assumed a yield of £⅔ million only. Under cotton manufactures, again, we have provided for a decrease of £100,000 owing to the congestion which has prevailed in the market for some time, which will probably be accentuated in present conditions. On the other hand, in the case of the export duty on rice, we have felt able to assume a substantial improvement (£170,000) on this year's revenue. The export of Indian rice to foreign countries has been specially low this year owing partly to the cessation of supplies to enemy countries, and also to the diversion of shipments to India proper in the early months of 1914-15 as a result of the shortage of crops in Northern India. With the present favourable agricultural outlook, we may expect that this latter factor will be no longer operative.

44. Under Railways, we take the net receipts at £260,000 less than the Revised estimate, and the gross receipts at £35·3 million, or £298,000 less. Here, too, the favourable agricultural outlook, and some degree of general trade recovery, may be expected to go far to counterbalance the loss of revenue in the extra four months during which war conditions are assumed to be operative.

Working expenses are taken at £19·9 million or £159,000 more than the Revised. As I have already explained, we could not in any case have hoped that the temporary decline of our railway revenue would be accompanied by a proportionate fall in the cost of carrying the reduced traffic. But apart from that, we have found it necessary to make considerable additional provision for the improvement of the equipment of the railway lines, which was represented to us to have fallen somewhat behindhand in recent years, and to have become a pressing requirement.

With the reduced traffic, the profits payable to companies will also be less and we have provided £197,000 less on this account, thus arriving at the net reduction given above.

Revenue—Provincial.

45. The aggregate Provincial revenue is estimated at £463,000 more than the Revised. Almost the whole of this improvement is contributed by the Provincial share—£379,000—of the increase under Land Revenue to which I have already referred. Apart from this, we cannot look, under continued war conditions, to any strong recovery from the position which the revenue returns for the later months of the present year have disclosed.

Expenditure—Imperial.

46. The total Imperial expenditure for 1915-16 is estimated at about £52·4 million, being £244,000 less than the Revised. Our chief economy occurs under the Military services where we are budgeting for a reduction of £582,000. I shall revert to this branch of expenditure in a separate section of my speech, and need only say here that in the present situation we have thought it incumbent upon us to postpone all military expenditure of an ordinary kind which is not immediately required. We shall be faced with some difficult and pressing problems under this head when the war is over, but the present is not the time and occasion when they can suitably be taken up. Apart from the Military charges, the circumstances of Imperial expenditure do not offer great scope for any drastic reduction of grants. We have, however, curtailed the provision for Imperial Civil Works by some £127,000. We also save automatically (to the extent of £272,000) by the recall of officers from leave. That of course implies an additional charge in India under salaries, but this is chiefly borne by the Provincial Governments. Against these economies, we have to provide an additional £520,000 to meet the interest charges on the borrowing programme which I shall shortly lay before Council; and Opium expenditure shows a considerable increase, arising from the necessity of supplementing our supply of 'Bengal opium,' which we obtain from the Gangetic valley, by special purchases in Malwa.

The relief from Famine expenditure in 1915-16, while it eases our Budget under one head, adds to it under another, as it requires us to make a larger provision under the Famine Insurance Grant for reduction or avoidance of debt

Expenditure—Provincial.

47. We estimate this at £31,755,000, or £691,000 less than the Revised and £2,293,000 less than the current year's Budget. As Honourable Members are aware, the fluctuations in the scale of outlay of the Provincial Governments are at present largely dependent, under the conditions established by the special grants of recent years, on the extent to which it is found possible for them to draw upon their large accumulated balances. When this year's Budget was framed, we authorised such overdrawals to the extent of £3·2 million, which has come down in the Revised, as I have already explained, to £2·2 million. We propose in the current year to allow Local Governments to draw on their balances to the extent of about £1 million only.

In present financial circumstances we might primâ facie have been expected to require Local Governments not to draw on their balances next year at all, i.e., to restrict their total expenditure to the revenue raised within the year. But as I have previously mentioned, Provincial revenues too are being affected by the war, and a restriction such as that suggested would have involved a drastic curtailment of normal standards of expenditure, besides arresting all further immediate development on education and sanitation, and interfering with the quasi-commitments into which Local Governments have entered in carrying out a programme of special expenditure on these objects which they had every reason to expect to be able to maintain. We find ourselves obliged therefore to recognise the practical need of some relief in this direction. The curtailment of total outlay which will still be necessary, and in regard to which we have received the most loyal co-operation from Local Governments, has resulted, as is natural, in a large reduction (£1,070,000) in the grants for expenditure on public works Provision is made, however, for some additional outlay under Land Revenue, Police, and some other heads.

48. We expect that with this restricted programme the aggregate Provincial balances on the 31st March 1916 will amount to £6·3 million. Of this, £2·5 million may be taken as accruing from special grants, mainly non-recurring, which have been made by the Government of India, mostly for expenditure in connection with education and sanitation.

General Results—Imperial and Provincial.

49. Reverting to the table in paragraph 39, we estimate that in 1915-16 the total revenue, Imperial and Provincial, will be £80,347,000, and the total expenditure £84,180,000, resulting in an Imperial deficit of £2,770,000 and a Provincial deficit of £1,063,000, the latter to be met by drawing on the balances to the credit of Local Governments.

Ways and Means Estimate for 1915-16.

50. This brings me to the question of the financing of our requirements in the second year of war. I will first give the main figures in millions of pounds, and then explain what they imply :—

Outlay.			Assets.
Imperial deficit		2·8	From balances	4·5
Provincial deficit		1·0	Rupee borrowing	3·0
Capital outlay—			Sterling borrowing	6·5
Railways	8·0		Famine Insurance and miscellaneous items	·4
Irrigation	1·1		Total	14·4
Delhi	·3
Discharge of debt		1·0
Unfunded debt		·2
Total		14·4
Add—Discharge of temporary debt raised in 1914-15		14·0	Add—Renewal of temporary debt raised in 1914-15	14·0
Grand total		28·4	Grand total	28·4

51. We have to find funds from which to meet the Imperial deficit of the coming year and the expenditure by Local Governments in excess of the revenue which they expect to raise in the same period. £1 million of debt, mainly in connection with the purchase of the Indian Midland Railway some years ago, is also due for discharge By way of precaution, too, we are assuming the possibility of a withdrawal of £1 million more of savings banks deposits during the coming year. This counts as a liability against Unfunded Debt. We still get, however, as in normal years, some credits under this head, more particularly the substantial deposits annually paid into the State Provident funds, so that there is a considerable set-off to the withdrawals from the savings banks for which this estimate makes provision. There remains the head of Capital outlay, under which alone it is optional to us to curtail our commitments. We are very reluctant to do this in the case of Irrigation, and are accordingly providing the entire amount (£1,100,000) which our Public Works advisers consider they can spend. In the case of Railways, however, it is inevitable that some considerable reduction should be made, and in any case, even if funds had been available, it is unlikely that, in the present circumstances of manufacturing establishments at home, anything like the £12 million provided in the current year could again be spent. We have accordingly taken the next year's programme at £8 million. In considering the adequacy of this figure—and I regard it myself as the outside sum which it would be justifiable to provide under present conditions—it must also be remembered that, as stated in paragraph 44, a specially large provision has been made, on the revenue side, for closely connected expenditure on the equipment of our present lines. In the case of Delhi, we have made a very large reduction, confining the next year's grant, as I shall explain in a later section, to a working minimum.

52 The total of these liabilities comes to about £14½ million. In addition, as the statement shows, we have to include, as pending obligations requiring to be dealt with in connection with the coming year's financial programme, the discharge of the £7 million of India bills which the Secretary of State has raised in the current year, and the repayment of our loan of the same amount from the Gold Standard Reserve. Our total obligations are thus raised to some £28½ million.

53. The first of the resources on which we can draw as against these requirements is afforded by the large cash balances with which we shall close the current year. As I have already said, owing to the loans taken from the Gold Standard Reserve, we expect these to stand on 31st March next at about £21 million. Ordinarily we regard £16½ million as a sufficient amount to hold in our treasuries in India and at home at the close of a financial year; and we thus have about £4½ million which can be regarded as available towards meeting our liabilities generally and still leave a little margin over the normal closing balances. We shall also set aside from revenue, under the Famine Insurance Grant head, close on half a million for reduction or avoidance of debt, thus raising our assets to about £5 million. Even so, we are left, however, with some £9½ million still to find, and have also the £14 million of temporary debt still to consider. The question now is, how is this shortage to be dealt with ?

No additional taxation.

54. The first method of adding to our resources which would naturally suggest itself—one, indeed, which we have very seriously considered—is to follow the lead of the mother country and impose special taxation; and I have no doubt that the majority of the members of this Council have been asking themselves for some time past what line we shall take on this question. Those who have followed my remarks on the revenue position will, however, have already had their anxiety relieved. We do not propose on this occasion to raise any money by increased taxation. We should not hesitate to do so to meet a deficiency in revenue which promised to be of a more or less abiding character. But the present circumstances are altogether peculiar. We know that, ordinarily, we can count on surpluses. India too has a very small unproductive debt; and, with trade conditions depressed, and the present abnormal rise in food prices in a large part of the country, we have come to the conclusion that we ought not to add to existing taxation unless it is absolutely necessary. We hold that this necessity has not yet arisen, since the deficits of the current and coming years are, as already stated, entirely the product of special and temporary circumstances; while, as regards ways and means, we see our way, in spite of these deficits, to financing all outlay immediately necessary. We have to bear in mind, too, in dealing with an essential point of policy like this, the possibility that an improvement of conditions, whether by the conclusion of peace or otherwise, may, after all, take place sooner than we are yet entitled to assume. When this occurs, we shall, I have no doubt, rapidly regain at any rate a large portion of the savings banks deposits which have been withdrawn from us, and may hope for improvement in other directions as well.

Borrowing programme for 1915-16.

55. I return, then—the taxation alternative being rejected—to the question of how we are to finance the needs of the coming year. In the first place, we propose to continue the loan of £7 million from the Gold Standard Reserve and leave it still outstanding on the 31st March 1916. As I have already said, the money we shall thus employ would otherwise lie inert and the proposed transaction makes no difference to our actual stock of gold or our freedom to use it in supporting exchange. It merely requires the transfer from the Gold Standard to the Paper Currency Reserve of a certain amount of the gold we should otherwise hold in the former, since the gold thus added to the Paper Currency Reserve will enable the transfer therefrom of a corresponding quantity of rupees in aid of our Treasury balances.

The Secretary of State also intends to renew in 1915-16 the £7 million of India bills which he has raised this year. This disposes of the temporary debt for the time being, but still leaves us the original £9½ million to find.

56. We propose to obtain £3 million (4½ crores) of this amount in India. We shall of course raise this by a public loan if, when the time comes, this is found to be feasible. We raised R5 crores in the current year and with great success; but that was before the war, and I fully recognise that the circumstances are now entirely different. I must therefore in any case reserve the consideration of the time and the best method of borrowing in India next year, including, that is, the terms to be offered and the character of the loan. I recognise too that the circumstances prevalent in July, when we usually float our loans, may prove to be so unpropitious that we may find it desirable to have recourse to other methods for raising either a part or the whole of this amount: for example, one alternative open to us might be to increase our borrowing from the Gold Standard Reserve.

57. In addition to the funds which we thus find in India, it is the Secretary of State's intention to raise £6½ million by fresh borrowing in England, either direct or through the agency of companies working State lines. I should add, however, as regards this, what I have already made clear as regards rupee borrowing, that this announcement is subject to the usual reservation that the amount may be varied later on if circumstances should render this advisable.

58. To sum up this examination of a complicated and difficult position, I may briefly state that we propose a reduced but still considerable Railway programme, a full standard of expenditure on Irrigation, and a minimum outlay on Delhi; while to meet our capital outlay and revenue deficits and our other various requirements, we contemplate renewing the temporary loans raised in the current year, and finding a further £9½ million by additional borrowings, whether permanent or temporary, in England or in India. We thus put ourselves in a position to finance all requirements with which, as far as we can at present see, we are likely to be confronted in the coming year, while at the same time providing for the maintenance of an adequate closing balance.

59. I have not taken into account in the above calculations the £4 million up to which the Secretary of State has permitted us to reduce the cash holdings of the Paper Currency Reserve. This money will be primarily held available for loans to banks for the encouragement of credit and trade, without reducing our Treasury balances beyond what is prudent, while if there is any remainder it ought to be treated as a special reserve against unforeseen contingencies. In a year in which there may be so many surprises, it is most desirable to have a reserve of this character.

Remarks on certain special heads.

60. I now furnish some supplementary information in regard to certain special and important heads.

A.—Military Services.

61. The table below shows the gross and net expenditure on Military Services for the coming year and the four years preceding :—

	Gross.					Net, i.e., deducting receipts.
	Army.	Marine.	Military Works.	Special Defences.	Total.	All Military heads.
	£	£	£	£	£	£
1911-12 . . .	19,536,546	450,728	909,657	4,706	20,901,637	19,558,580
1912-13 . .	19,576,526	479,928	887,379	9,267	20,953,100	19 565,466
1913-14 . . .	19,789,237	512,845	947,297	16,384	21,265,765	19,896,113
1914-15 (Budget) .	20,305,800	504,900	1,022,400	33,000	21,866,100	20,50[illegible],000
1914-15 (Revised) .	20,277,200	484,700	1,017,000	25,500	21,802,400	20,486,700
1915-16 (Budget) .	19,831,100	623,800	744,300	21,100	21,220,300	20,000,000

62. The net expenditure in the current year is expected to fall below the Budget provision framed in March last by £13,000 only, due to an anticipated decrease of £64,000 in expenditure, partly counterbalanced by a fall of £51,000 in receipts. The war has necessarily affected the Military estimates of the year in a very considerable degree. On the one hand it has led to some temporary savings in charges as a consequence of exchanges and re-arrangements of troops, of the partial suspension of the Arms Traffic operations in the Persian Gulf, and of the usual trooping service, and also with reference to diminished supply of stores from Europe. Per contra, extra expenditure had to be incurred for the protection of India and in connection with the internment of citizens of hostile countries; the prices of food supplies throughout the year show an increase; and the receipts from payment-issues of clothing, provisions, etc, have fallen below the normal standard.

63. For the coming year the net Military expenditure has been fixed at £20 million, or £487,000 lower than the Revised, and £500,000 less than the Budget provision of the present year. In consequence of the war, expenditure is being restricted to what is considered essential for the maintenance of efficiency and the protection of the country, while a further fall in receipts must be anticipated and has been taken into account. Provision has been made for a continuance of work on certain Royal Indian Marine vessels now on order, for the improvement of the accommodation of Indian combatants and non-combatants, and for progress with the new cantonment of Delhi. A considerable amount of expenditure usually incurred on trooping and the prevention of gun running on our borders temporarily disappears. The trend of food prices, however, continues upward, and this has been provided for by a 5 per cent. increase on the Budget provision of 1914-15 on this account.

64. The figures given above do not include very considerable expenditure which is being undertaken on behalf of the Imperial Government, in the matter of the supply of munitions of war and other stores to the forces of the Empire engaged in active operations, since such outlay is made good to us by His Majesty's Government.

They do, however, include—and I desire to lay special emphasis on this fact—the sums which, under arrangements with His Majesty's Government, initiated by a Resolution brought forward in this Council last autumn, India contributes towards the cost of the war, that is the portion of the total expenditure incurred on the expeditionary forces despatched from this country which she would have had to defray had they remained in India under peace conditions. These arrangements, I may remind the Council, have received constitutional ratification by Resolutions passed in both Houses of Parliament. Your Excellency, speaking in this Council on the 8th September last, mentioned that, on a rough estimate, these arrangements would cost India about £1 million during the current year. That estimate, however, was framed with reference to the expeditionary force we originally sent to Europe. The scale and the directions in which troops from India have since been utilised for the operations which the armies of the King-Emperor are carrying on against his enemies in various parts of the world have since been greatly enlarged; and we now anticipate, though the complicated calculations involved are still subject to further examination, that India's contribution towards the cost of the troops she has furnished will amount to £1·9 million during the current year, and to £1·8 million in 1915-16, on the assumption, which has governed our estimates throughout, that the war will continue to the end of March 1916.

65. The figures just given do not, however, represent the full measure of India's offering towards the expenses of the war. The Indian Princes who have placed their Imperial Service Troops at our disposal in connection with the expeditionary forces are also bearing the normal charges which would fall upon them in peace time, only the additional or war charges being met by His Majesty's Government. Further, some of the Princes have also made generous pecuniary contributions towards the general cost of the war; and I may make special mention here of the fact that His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, as indicated in Your Excellency's speech to this Council on the 8th September, has given R50 lakhs (£333,000) in this way, while His Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad has made a contribution of R60 lakhs (£400,000). Other similar contributions bring such aggregate donations to £768,000, of which we expect that £480,000 will be paid in the current year, and the balance in 1915-16. Though these loyal and spontaneous contributions are, in the first instance, paid in to us, we have no intention of deriving any benefit therefrom. They will be passed on to His Majesty's Government by an equivalent deduction in the charges we should otherwise have to make against them in connection with special war expenditure.

B.—Famine Relief.

66. Speaking at this time last year, I said that actual famine conditions in the United Provinces were then confined to four districts and that scarcity had been declared in seven others. To the scarcity districts two were subsequently added, but the afflicted area has fortunately been much less than we at one time feared, and, although the calamity has been a severe one, special measures were only found necessary in an area of about 20,000 square miles with a population of nearly 7½ millions.

The number on relief of all kinds reached a maximum of 219,000 at the end of May, but with the advent of the monsoon the number fell rapidly and operations were finally closed down in October. The March rains and a good monsoon helped matters, but, apart from this, distress was confined within comparatively narrow limits not only by the manner in which relief was distributed, by fodder concessions, by liberal takavi, and by the suspension and remission of revenue; but also, we are told by Sir James Meston, by the remarkable capacity which the people themselves have shewn in facing their troubles without direct measures of famine relief. This he ascribes not merely to a succession of excellent seasons, but to a widespread confidence, based on experience, that Government will come to their aid when real necessity arises, and to a stronger power of resistance, due to something more than purely temporary causes, among nearly all classes of the people.

I need not refer to the affected areas in other parts of India, as nowhere was distress anything like so widespread or severe as in the United Provinces.

67. The Budget estimates for the current year provided for an outlay of £299,000 on famine relief, mainly in the United Provinces: the probable expenditure is still estimated at £290,000 of which £106,000 will be borne by Provincial revenues and the balance of £184,000 will fall on Imperial. Agricultural prospects in the areas which were affected by famine are now very satisfactory, and as the estimates for next year are as usual framed on the assumption of a normal monsoon, no outlay on relief is anticipated in that year apart from some small expenditure (about £7,000) in adjustment of this year's accounts.

68. I explained in paragraph 41 of my speech introducing the last Financial Statement that the amount available from the Famine Insurance Grant of £1 million for the reduction or avoidance of debt, after providing for an expenditure of £500,000 on protective works, varies with the actual outlay on famine relief in each year. The amount available for that purpose is estimated at £210,000 in the current year and £493,000 in the next, of which £15,000 and £328,000 respectively, will be charged in the Imperial section.

69. In paragraph 42 of the same speech, I referred to the system of Provincial famine credits, and in a debate in this Council on the 7th March 1914, I promised that I would consider the possibility of modification in the application of this as between the various Provinces. I have fulfilled that promise and, as the result of the investigation made, we have put suggestions to the Local Governments for the simplification of what is now a very complicated system. After full consideration of their replies we shall decide on the precise action which may be necessary and refer the matter to the Secretary of State.

C.—Expenditure from Special Grants, Education, Medical, etc.

70. I went into this matter fully last year, and on the present occasion I need only give a table similar to that exhibited in paragraph 46 of my last year's speech :—

[In thousands of £]

	Total grants given (1911-12 to 1915-16).		Total expenditure incurred* (1911-12 to 1915-16).	Balance expected to be available on 1st April 1916.
	Recurring.	Non-recurring.	Non-recurring.	Non-recurring.
(1) Education	763	3,166	2,078	1,088
(2) Sanitation	245	1,723	1,112	611
(3) Medical relief, etc.	...	58	53	5
(4) Agriculture, etc.	...	177	166	11
(5) Grants for other special purposes	...	1,545	1,416	129
(6) Grants for general purposes—(Discretionary grants)	...	667	388	279
Total	1,008	7,336	5,213	2,123
Add—Savings on recurring grants during foregoing period (about)				395
Total amount expected to be available from special grants on the 1st April 1916				2,518

* Non-recurring figures only are given, as the recurring grants are treated as having been fully worked up to, any savings obtained from those grants in particular years being added at the foot of the statement.

The large balance still in hand is in considerable measure due to the fact that, as already stated, we have found it necessary, in existing circumstances, to debar Local Governments from drawing on their balances with us during the coming year beyond an aggregate amount of about £1 million.

D.—Financial position of the Provinces.

71. The new form of Statement D, to which I have already referred in paragraph 22, exhibits the general financial condition of the Provinces so fully that I need not make any explanatory comment. But it is desirable to say, with reference to the concluding remarks in paragraph 49 of my last year's speech, that we have decided, with the concurrence of the Local Governments concerned, to extend for the present the temporary financial settlements with Bengal, Bihar and Orissa and Assam, which would normally have been put on a permanent basis from the 1st April next. The reason is, of course, that the present time is not an opportune one for dealing with permanent settlements, which can be much more safely framed when the Government of India are in a normal financial condition.

72. We have, however, made a modification in the Burma settlement. I mentioned in paragraph 24 of my last year's speech that we had under consideration a proposal to make some addition to the resources of the Burma Government, and that we had in the meantime given them a non-recurring grant of £100,000. We have now decided, with the approval of the Secretary of State, to make this grant a recurring one, since it was found, on careful examination of the calculations upon which the existing financial settlement with Burma was concluded, that the method adopted was not so favourable to the Local Government as was the case in the permanent settlements concluded about the same time with other provinces. Our present grant is to afford redress in this respect and, as I indicated last year, implies no departure from the general principles upon which our permanent settlements with the provinces are based.

73. Lastly, I may say that we have effected an arrangement with the Punjab Government by which that Government hands over to us a crore of rupees from its very large balances (which have been obtained in great measure by non-recurring receipts from the sale of Government lands) in exchange for a fixed assignment of R3½ lakhs per annum. It will be realised, of course, that, as the Provincial balances form part of our general resources, this arrangement does not put an additional crore of rupees into our pockets, but merely saves us from being drawn on to that extent at some subsequent date.

E.—Railways (Capital Outlay).

74. The following statement gives the figures of railway capital expenditure on State-owned lines included within the Railway programme for the coming year and the four years preceding:—

	1911-12.	1912-13.	1913-14.	1914-15 (Revised).	1915-16 (Budget).
Open lines including rolling stock .	5,058,890	7,134,200	10,303,100	10,372,700	6,947,000
Lines under construction—
(a) Started in previous years .	2,403,853	2,658,700	1,871,500	1,259,700	719,700
(b) Started in current year .	452,150	103,200	131,700	...	333,300
	7,914,393	9,896,100	12,306,300	11,632,400	8,000,000

As I have already explained, the financial position necessarily requires a material curtailment of the Railway programme for 1915-16 as compared with the figures reached in the three preceding years. The greater part of the money included within the reduced programme is as usual devoted to the improvement of open lines and rolling stock.

75. As regards railways under construction, the Lower Ganges Bridge, which has for the past few years made so heavy a call upon our resources, will be opened for traffic in a few days, and the outlay required for its final completion is very small. The Itarsi-Nagpur Railway is not yet completed, and we propose to spend £333,000 on this important project in order that, if possible, it may be opened to public traffic before the close of the next financial year. The only other important lines still under construction are the Burdwan-Howrah Chord, and the scheme for an overhead connection of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway in Bombay with its Harbour branch. These are both equivalent to works of open line improvement, since they are primarily designed for the relief of traffic on existing routes, and we propose to allot funds which will permit of a full rate of progress being maintained throughout the year.

We have also reserved funds for several new projects. Among these, the Vishnupur-Santragachi Chord is, like the Burdwan-Howrah, primarily intended for the relief of the existing lines between the coal-fields and Calcutta. The Dholka-Dhanduka Railway, again, is a project for which we made provision in our programme of the current year, but the commencement of which had for unavoidable reasons to be deferred. Provision is also made for the last section of the Southern Shan States Railway. The construction of this important pioneer line has been completed up to the plateau which divides the Inle valley from the rest of Burma, and it was at one time proposed that the construction of the remaining section, between the plateau and the Inle lake, should be temporarily deferred. It has been represented, however, that the further development of the Southern Shan States will be seriously hampered if this extension is not carried out at once, and the matter is now being taken up.

76. We are thus still able to provide for an appreciable amount of railway extension at the cost of Imperial funds; while the progress of construction by the agency of private enterprise and District Boards, though retarded by the war, will not by any means be stopped. Last year I informed the Council that in 1913-14 seven different undertakings, with an intended mileage of 292, had been sanctioned for construction either under branch line terms or as feeder lines financed by District Boards in Madras, and, but for the war, there would doubtless, as I anticipated then, have been at least as good progress this year, for in its first six months branch line companies had been successfully floated for the construction of 172 miles of railway. Since then, in spite of the war, the capital required for three branch lines of railway, involving a mileage of 62, has been successfully raised, while several District Board projects are likely to mature in the near future.

77. The following figures show the capital outlay on all State lines up to the end of each year from 1911-12 and the net return obtained after deducting working expenses and interest charges :—

[In thousands of £]

	1911-12.	1912-13.	1913-14.	1914-15.	1915-16.
Capital at charge at end of each year .	331,247	340,103	351,302	361,756
Net working profit from railways excluding interest charges.	15,813	17,272	17,616	15,102	14,774
Percentage of net working profit to capital outlay.	4·77	5·08	5·01	4·18	4·01
Net working profit from railways after meeting interest charges.	3,788	4,803	4,790	1,914	1,179
Percentage to capital outlay of net profits after meeting interest charges.	1·14	1·41	1·36	·53	·32

78. I have amplified the statement, as compared with the information given last year, so as to discriminate the profits obtained before meeting interest charges from those finally arrived at by the inclusion of the interest burden. I may explain too that the capital outlay now shown represents the amount which it has actually cost Government to acquire and construct its railways, including the portion of the liability in connection with purchased lines which remains to be discharged by the operation of annuity and sinking fund payments. In the case of purchased railways, it has hitherto been the practice to show in the capital outlay the capital issued by the companies before purchase instead of the sums which it has cost Government to acquire the lines. The latter figures are what we are concerned with in working out the profit we obtain from State outlay, and I have substituted them for the capital issued by the companies in arriving at the figures shown in the foregoing table. I have also deferred to an occasional criticism of our figures by deducting debt which has been extinguished by the operation of annuity and sinking fund payments.

79. The final net profit on railways was estimated in the current year's budget at 1·14 per cent. of the capital on the method then adopted, and would have been 1·08 per cent. on the altered basis above explained. We now estimate it at only 0·53 per cent. this year and 0·32 next, the result, of course, of the falling off in net railway earnings which I have already dealt with in my review of the revenue estimates. It must, however, be remembered that, as I said last year, the foregoing figures include some capital outlay on protective railways, and also that, in accordance with the instructions of the Secretary of State, the interest charges include certain annuity and sinking fund payments which really go to the discharge of debt.

F.—Irrigation (Capital outlay).

80. The financial position of our great irrigation undertakings may be gathered from the following table, which brings up to date the information given in previous Financial Statements. The figures are in thousands of pounds.

Particulars.	1911-12.	1912-13.	1913-14.	1914-15. (Revised.)	1915-16. (Budget.)

Net loss	589	576	651	748	666

81. Taking productive, protective and minor works together, on the 31st March last, 61,864 miles of main and branch canals and distributaries had been constructed, which will, it is expected, be increased to 62,901 miles by the end of the current year. They commanded an area of more than 50 million acres of culturable land, of which more than 24 millions were irrigated in 1913-14, and an almost equal area during the current financial year.

82. In addition to the canals in use, there are 41 major projects which are either under construction, awaiting sanction, or being examined by the professional advisers of Government. Of these, 20 are productive and 21 protective; they are designed to irrigate about 9½ million acres at an aggregate cost exceeding £39 million.

83. No new works of any magnitude were sanctioned during the current year, but a large project of the protective class, known as the Gokak extension scheme, is awaiting the orders of the Secretary of State. This work is estimated to cost about £1·3 million It will irrigate some 132,000 acres in parts of the Belgaum and Bijapur districts of the Bombay Presidency, including Kolhapur and certain adjacent native states.

84. None of the large projects mentioned in paragraph 73 of my speech last year have progressed to a stage at which they can be put up for sanction. The Sukkur Barrage scheme is undergoing fresh investigation, and the questions involved in the Cauvery scheme are not yet fully settled. The Kistna, Sarda, and Sutlej Valley projects are being investigated by the Local Governments concerned, while the Koch dam scheme is now before the Government of India.

85. The Triple Canal project in the Punjab is the most important work at present under construction. Of the three canals constituting this great work, the Upper Chenab and Lower Bari Doab, although not yet finished, are actually in use and are serving considerable areas of kharif crops. Extensive rabi irrigation will not be possible until a sufficiency of water becomes available in the cold weather through the opening of the Upper Jhelum canal, the third link in the chain. This canal was expected to be in operation last autumn, but owing to damage to the head works caused by an unfortunate flood which occurred early in 1914, it has been necessary to postpone its opening till October 1915.

Arrangements are now in progress for colonising the extensive waste land commanded by the Lower Bari Doab canal, and already some auction sales have taken place. In the North-West Frontier Province the Upper Swat canal was opened for irrigation in April 1914, and in the Central Provinces the Mahanadi canal has begun supply for irrigation. While numerous tank works exist in this province, this is the first canal system to be constructed there. Good progress has also been made on the Wainganga canal and the Tendula reservoir.

86. In the United Provinces, progress is being made with the construction of permanent head works for the Ganges canal at Hardwar, a measure which will greatly increase the efficiency of that system.

In the Bombay Deccan, two important protective works, the Pravara and Godavari canals, are nearing completion, while the Tribeni canal in Bihar and Orissa has been completed.

G.—Delhi expenditure.

87. The expenditure under the capital head, "51—Initial expenditure on the new Capital," during the current year will, according to present expectations, amount to £363,000 as compared with the budget provision of £666,000. As I said last year, the exact degree of progress to be expected in work immediately connected with the intended buildings could not be settled with any precision until the project estimate had been fully considered and eventually sanctioned. If the somewhat conjectural budget estimate has thus proved to be unduly sanguine, the cause is to be found mainly in the care which has been exercised in considering the various main projects before expenditure was incurred. Thus, in the case of the irrigation scheme for the new city, it was decided to consider several alternative methods of solving the problem before setting work in hand, and the allotment for irrigation works thus remained unutilised. Similarly, work cannot safely be commenced on the larger sanitary projects, such as water supply and sewerage, until the detailed plans and estimates have been prepared and sanctioned, and much of the time of the Delhi Committee's staff has been occupied in work of this kind. Moreover, in view of the outbreak of war, we have welcomed a slower rate of progress than was originally contemplated. The lapse which has occurred is a useful addition to our general resources, and the avoidance of large commitments in the current year has facilitated the curtailment of the grant in 1915-16, to which I shall shortly refer.

88. As regards work done in the current year, the preliminary task of preparing the site by filling up depressions and removing excrescences has been vigorously prosecuted, and is now well on towards completion. Nearly a third of the works expenditure has been absorbed in this and other preliminary work. More than a third, again, was incurred on the purchase and erection of the machinery and plant required for construction purposes, and the scheme for the supply of electric power for these purposes is now completed and in operation, while some 28 miles of construction light railway have been laid The Committee have also completed construction roads on the alignment of the future permanent roads. Work has been started on the foundations and basements of the Secretariat, and 6 houses for gazetted officers and over 200 for clerks are already in course of erection. There has also been some small expenditure on the acquisition of further land.

In the special circumstances of the present time, we have thought it desirable to reduce the grant for the coming year to a minimum. The Budget accordingly includes a provision of £267,000 only, which will suffice to carry on, in some degree, the work already in progress, and so obviate the deterioration of material and the disbanding of establishments.

89. In accordance with the undertaking given by the Government of India on previous occasions, a pro formâ account of expenditure on Delhi and the Delhi province is published in an appendix to the Financial Secretary's memorandum, together with a prefatory note explaining its scope and the relation between it and our regular accounts. As Honourable Members will see from the prefatory note, the form in which the Delhi accounts are now published was approved by the Comptroller General before its submission to the Secretary of State, who has telegraphed his general acceptance of the proposals put to him in this connection.

Cash Balances, Secretary of State's Council Drawings and Exchange.

90. I have dealt with these matters in a previous portion of my speech and need only remind the Council of the following facts :—

(1) We budgeted this year for an aggregate closing cash balance of £17¼ million, viz., £12·4 million in India and £4·9 million in England. We now expect the total balance to be a little over £21 million, viz., £13·8 million in India and £7·4 million in England.

(2) We estimate that the coming year will close with a practically normal cash balance of about £16½ million, viz, about £12½ million in India and about £4 million in England

(3) The Secretary of State's drawings were estimated in the current year's Budget at £20 million. For reasons already explained, it is now estimated that he will only have drawn £6·9* million against Treasury balances, while on the other hand we shall have sold £8·7 million of reverse bills and telegraphic transfers. The Secretary of State will, however, have obtained further resources amounting to £8·7 million by recovery from the War Office of sums expended in India on behalf of His Majesty's Government, besides a sum of £1·6 million by transfer from the Paper Currency Reserve in London and by gold remittances.

91. Postulating the continuance of war conditions, we estimate for the present that the amount up to which the Secretary of State will require to draw in the coming year will be £7·7 million only, since he will also be able to finance himself to the extent of £8·4 million by recoveries from the War Office of the character mentioned above, and the Home charges will be less than usual owing to the reduced Railway programme. As usual these announcements are merely provisional, and full discretion is retained to vary the amounts in such a manner as may be found advisable.

92. The average rate of exchange during the present year, calculated on the Secretary of State's drawings, is taken at 16·017 pence per rupee.

* Besides £600,000 on account of the Gold Standard Reserve—vide footnote to paragraph 10 supra.

Currency and Coinage.

93. I have dealt so fully with questions of exchange and currency in the earlier part of my speech that I need not now dwell on the subject at any length. I must, however, refer to the final Report of the Royal Commission on Indian Finance and Currency, which had not been received at the time I presented the Financial Statement of the current year. We have welcomed it as a pronouncement of the highest interest and value, and as affording ample vindication of the general policy of the Government of India in matters of finance and currency in past years. I do not enlarge on the particular recommendations made as they are still sub judice. Last summer we referred them for the opinions of Local Governments and representative commercial institutions, but meanwhile war broke out, and, acting upon a suggestion which some of the authorities consulted themselves put to us, we told them that the expression of their views might be deferred until normal conditions had been restored, so that both they and we might bring to bear upon these questions the valuable practical experience which would meanwhile have been gained from the present crisis. Provisionally, however, and without prejudice to the final settlement, we have adopted two of the Commission's proposals by replacing the silver previously held in the Gold Standard Reserve in India by gold, and by taking power to increase the fiduciary portion of the Paper Currency Reserve by £4 million.

We have also, as I have already said, given a public and unqualified assurance of our determination to support exchange by all the means in our power, thus adopting a third and very important recommendation with an emphasis that gives it definite finality.

94. Before the war broke out, we also had under our consideration certain questions connected with the paper currency, the two most important being, perhaps, first, a radical improvement in the form and design of our currency notes—a matter which we have now had to set aside for a time owing to the crisis; and, second, the adoption of measures to facilitate the encashment of notes and so extend their use. As regards this latter question, the war crisis, instead of being a stumbling block, appears to be likely to hasten a solution. In the period of general apprehension and incipient panic which immediately followed the outbreak of war, we regarded it as our foremost duty to secure the unimpeded encashment of our notes in every practicable way; and I think we have had our reward in the confidence which this policy has gained for us. It will be our object, as far as is feasible, to maintain, as a permanent measure, the facilities which we have granted in this period of emergency, and gradually to improve and develop our administrative arrangements with this end in view.

95. As regards gold, our existing stock has naturally, in the conditions of the present year, not been augmented to any material extent from outside, and the net private imports of sovereigns and half-sovereigns in the present year are, so far, but little in excess of £$\frac{3}{4}$ million. As, however, I have already stated, we now hold in India a large stock, namely £10 million, which we are in a position to use for the support of exchange, should circumstances at any time require this.

There has also of course been no further rupee coinage, and the growth of the Gold Standard Reserve has thus been limited to the amounts obtained as interest on the invested portion. On the other hand, the value of the securities held in the Reserve has been written down with reference to the market prices ruling at the beginning of January. The total amount at credit, in England and India combined, thus stood on the 31st January last at £25·6 million. The sale of sterling bills to the extent of about £8$\frac{3}{4}$ million has of course implied a transfer of that amount from the Reserve in England to that in India. But the Home balance, which amounts, at the present valuation, to about £13 million of gold and sterling securities, is still strong, and can be supplemented, if occasion requires, by the shipment of our gold from India. Meanwhile exchange has gone above par, and for several weeks past the demand for reverse drafts has wholly ceased.

Public Debt of India.

96. I should like, in drawing to the conclusion of this speech, to add a few words on the question of India's financial preparedness for war. I said at the outset that our system here has been subjected to a supreme test. If we win our way through this crisis without drawing upon other resources and other credit than our own, our success will be due to the wise dispositions and the financial self-denial in the past which have built up for India a position of quite exceptional strength. With our restricted money markets here, we stand in need of exceptionally large liquid resources immediately available, and these we possess in our Treasury balances, our Paper Currency Reserve, and our Gold Standard Reserve, the combined efficiency of which is much enhanced by the elasticity of our system, under which, in periods of emergency, one reserve can freely assist another. But more important still is the credit which India has established, through good and evil times alike, by restricting her outlay to her available means, and so avoiding the accumulation of wasteful debt. Almost the whole of her debt today represents productive outlay, normally yielding a return far in excess of the interest which she has to pay on the amount borrowed; sufficient indeed to cover also the interest on the small margin of debt which can be described as unproductive, and still to leave an ample margin. She is thus entirely exempt from the dead weight of interest charges which hamper the finances of most Western countries, and will hamper them to a vastly increased extent by the time this war is finished.

97. The subject was discussed by my predecessor in introducing his Financial Statement for 1909-10. In present circumstances it possesses, I think, a special interest and relevance, and I have thought it worth while to bring up-to-date and present again the figures which he then gave:—

[In millions of £]

	Ordinary debt.	Productive Public Works Debt.			Grand total of debt (columns 1 and 4.)
		Railways.	Irrigation.	Total.
	1		3	4
n 31st March-
1888 .	73·0	59·2	17 3	76·5	149·5
1893 . . .	65·0	91·0	19·3	110·3	175·3
1898	70·0	106·0	21·7	127·7	197·7
1903	59·1	128·1	24·8	152·9	212·0
1908	37·4	177·7	29·9	207·6	245·0
1913	25·0	211·8	37·6	249·4	274·4
1914	12·8	222·0	39·4	261·4	274·2*

I may explain that for the purpose of these figures rupees have been uniformly converted into pounds sterling at the rate of ₹15 to the pound.†

98. It will be seen that out of a total debt of £274 million at the end of March last, only about £13 million represented ordinary or unproductive debt. The annual interest on the latter was £$\frac{3}{4}$ million only, and on the productive debt about £8$\frac{1}{2}$ million, so that our total interest charges amounted to some £9$\frac{1}{4}$ million. Railways and Irrigation works in the same year (1913-14) yielded us a return of £15$\frac{1}{4}$ million. Thus we still had left some £6 million of clear revenue from our great capital undertakings, after meeting the interest charges on our entire public debt.

99. These figures refer, of course, only to our permanent or funded debt. We have also a certain amount of unfunded debt and other floating liabilities representing savings banks deposits, deposits of State provident funds, balances of local bodies, and so forth, which amounted at the end of 1913-14, to about £33$\frac{1}{4}$ million. On the other hand, we had due to us on the same date a considerable body of loans given to agriculturists, local bodies, etc., which at the end of 1913-14 aggregated £12¾ million. Our indebtedness outside our regular loans was thus represented by a net figure of £20⅓ million—a sum which may properly be included in the reckoning, but does not materially affect the broad results already brought out

* The reduction of total debt here shown is due to the discharge of debt (India bonds and debentures of ... purchased ... the rupee loan of the year (£2 million). There was no issue of India stock in 1913-14.

† I mention this, as, in the Finance and Revenue Statistics of British India, the compiler, prior to the year 1899-1900, obtained his sterling figures by conversion of rupees at the rate of ₹10 to the pound, and thus introduced some superficially confusing results.

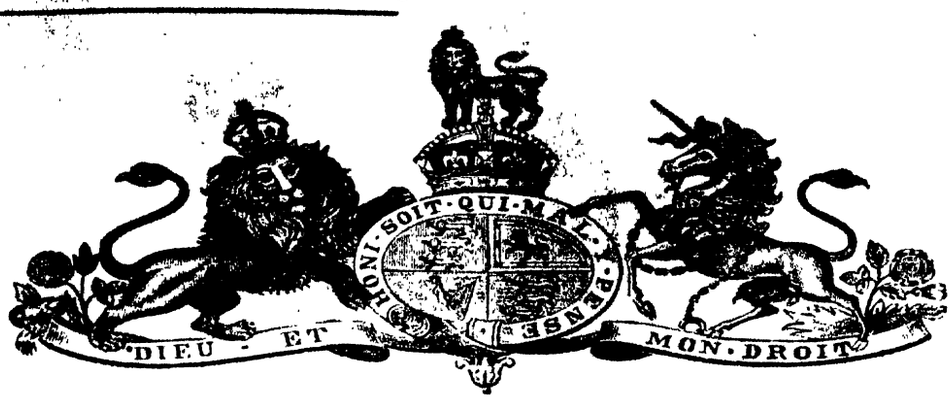
100. This then represents the position which India's debt account had attained at the moment when normal conditions were interrupted by the outbreak of war. It is because this position was so strong that we can view without undue disquiet some considerable temporary addition to our debt. It has also to be remembered that, in so far as the borrowings of the war period have been necessitated by the repayment of our savings banks depositors, they represent a discharge of unfunded debt, and these two sets of transactions, namely the drain on the savings banks and the corresponding borrowings, leave our debt position unaltered.



101. While, however, our general position is one on which we may congratulate, I will not say ourselves, but at any rate our predecessors, we must be careful not to allow it to be impaired too readily even by an extraordinary emergency such as this. For this reason, we have had, reluctantly, to reduce to some extent the provision for material and social development on which, in a succession of prosperous years, India has grown accustomed to rely. We have not proposed additional taxation to make good deficits which, we hope, will prove to be temporary only. But, as I have already said, we should not hesitate to do so, if it appeared later that our permanent revenue position was seriously threatened. We must also remember that when the war is ended some of its effects may endure for some time to come, and in particular, that we shall then have to face the question of dealing with the temporary debt which we are now accumulating.

102. In conclusion, I must express my acknowledgments to the officers of the Finance Department for the way in which they have dealt, in their various spheres, with a set of new and difficult conditions, which in many cases have added materially to their work and anxieties. I am deeply indebted to their loyal and efficient aid.

NOTICES.

THE PATENT OFFICE, 1, COUNCIL HOUSE STREET, CALCUTTA.

Public room, open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

1. All communications relating to applications for patents and for registration of designs under the Indian Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), or in continuation of applications under the Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888) should be addressed to the Controller of Patents and Designs, 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. Documents sent by post should be carefully packed.

2. Directions for the guidance of inventors and others are given in the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911 (price 10 annas), and in the Indian Patents and Designs Rules, 1912 (price 2 annas). These should be consulted before an application is made to the Controller.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs nor their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. Applications for patents in countries other than India should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

4. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

5. Trade and property marks and names are not registered and medicines are not patented under the Indian Patents and Designs Act. There is no provision of Law in British India for their registration.

6. Printed Specifications of applications, which have been accepted, are published within about three weeks after acceptance has been notified in the Gazette of India. These specifications can be purchased at the Patent Office at a uniform price of 8 annas per copy; and may be seen free of charge, together with other publications of the Patent Office, at the following places:—

HISTORICAL RECORD OF THE IMPERIAL VISIT TO INDIA, 1911.

This book, which has been compiled by the Government of India from the official records, contains a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911, including lists of the persons taking part in all the various celebrations and ceremonies at which Their Imperial Majesties were present, as well as a large number of illustrations, portraits of Ruling Princes and others, coloured Persian and Sanscrit texts, maps, plans, etc.

The book has been published by Mr. John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, W., and copies are now procurable from all the principal booksellers.

There are two editions—a popular one in a cloth binding, price Rs. 7-8-0, and a very limited edition de luxe, price Rs. 250, which has been subscribed for. As the popular edition is strictly limited, and a considerable portion of it has been absorbed in requisitions already received and in the requirements of libraries, schools, etc., it will probably be exhausted very soon after publication. Those who have not yet ordered copies but require them are therefore advised to order at an early date. Application should be made to the Superintendent, Government Printing, India, Calcutta.

GENERAL CONDITIONS APPLICABLE TO LIQUOR LICENSES.

2. Every licensee shall be bound to observe the general rules applicable to his license and the special conditions entered in his license.

Duty of licensees.

3. No license is transferable, but the Collector may permit a licensee to add any person as a partner in his business, or to transfer his license to any person.

Transfer of licenses.

4. A licensee shall not carry on any business connected with his license except in premises specified in his license.

Specification of premises.

5. Sales under different licenses shall be on different premises, except with the special permission of the Collector.

6. Premises to be licensed shall ordinarily be premises owned or leased by the licensee. Where, however, local conditions render it necessary, sites for liquor shops may be leased or bought for Government, under the special orders of Government in each case.

7. Where premises have been specially provided by Government for any shop, the licensee shall be bound to carry on his business in those premises and to pay to Government, in addition to his license fee, such rent for the premises as may be fixed by the Collector.

8. When a license has been sold for a fixed fee, the fee shall be payable in advance, except in cases where the Chief Commissioner has granted a license for the retail vend of country spirit on payment of a fixed fee; in such cases the course of payments shall follow the directions to be observed in the case of licenses sold by auction laid down in rule 82.

Payment of license fee.

9. Every licensee shall maintain, above the main outer door of the premises in which he carries on his business, a signboard exhibiting, in conspicuous painted letters, his name and the class of license held by him. The information shall be in the vernacular for country spirit, and in the vernacular and English for foreign liquor licenses. The license must be exhibited in a conspicuous place on the licensed premises.

Signboards.

10. No licensee for the retail vend of liquor shall allow any person to conduct sales in his behalf unless the name of such person has been previously submitted to the Collector for approval and endorsed by him on the license. This rule does not apply to (1) the licensee of a hotel, restaurant, bar, railway refreshment room or dining car, or (2) a chemist or druggist holding a license or permit under the Excise Act.

Authorisation of agents.

11. Every licensee shall furnish to the Collector, on his demand, a list of the persons employed or proposed to be employed in his licensed business.

Employés.

12. Except at the time when the premises are licensed to be open, no person is allowed therein, except employés or members of the licensee's family.

Closure of premises out of hours.

13. No licensee may open his shop before sunrise. No licensee in a rural area may keep his shop open after 6 P. M. between the 16th of October and the 15th of April, or after 8 P. M. between the 16th of April and the 15th of October. Any extension of these hours requires the sanction of the Chief Commissioner. No licensee for the vend of country spirit by retail or foreign liquor by retail, in a bazar or urban area, may keep his shop open after 7 P. M. between the 16th October and the 15th April or after 9 P. M. between the 16th April and the 15th October.

Hours.

No licensee, other than those mentioned in this rule, may keep his shop open after the closing time, if any, prescribed in his license, without the special permission of the Chief Commissioner.

14. Every shop must be kept open during the hours for which it is licensed.

15. Subject to the provisions of these rules, every licensee shall, in respect of any articles which he is licensed to sell, meet the demand of every customer entitled to be served who tenders payment for what is required by him, and the licensee shall maintain a sufficient stock of all articles, in which he is licensed to deal, to meet the probable demand.

Rights of customers.

16. No licensee shall give to any customer any free dole of liquor, nor shall he give any customer any perquisite or dasturi on the price of liquor sold.

Bribery.

17. No licensee shall sell liquor of any character or brand forbidden by the Chief Commissioner, nor shall he sell any other kind of liquor than that permitted by his license. No licensee shall sell, or keep on his licensed premises, any chloral hydrate, unless he is a chemist or druggist.

Liquor to be sold.

18. No sale of liquor by measure, whether wholesale or retail, shall be made by any other than standard measures stamped or approved by the Collector. The standard measure shall be the imperial gallon of 277·274 cubic inches, or fractions thereof, and the licensee shall keep measures representing $\frac{1}{8}$th, $\frac{1}{12}$th, $\frac{1}{16}$th and $\frac{1}{32}$th of a gallon.

Standard measures.

NOTE.—Arrangements will be made for the supply of standard measures through the Collector.

19. No licensee shall permit any professional entertainment or dancing, or the playing of musical instruments, or singing by professionals to be carried on in his premises in such a way as to attract the general attention of his customers; provided that the Collector may grant a general or special permit for such performances for any place licensed under forms L. 3, L. 4 and L. 6.

Temporary closures.

20. No compensation shall be due for any closure made under section 54 of the Excise Act, except a closure exceeding 6 hours ordered by the Collector.

Compensation.

21. No compensation shall be due to any licensee on account of the opening of a new shop or the issue of any special license during the currency of his license.

Effect of enhanced duty.

22. No compensation shall be due on account of any change during the currency of a license in the conditions thereof, in the rate at which customs or excise duty is charged on liquor, or in any other matter connected with the excise administration and dealt with under powers conferred by the Excise Act.

Cancellation for disorderliness.

23. The license of any licensee may be cancelled if drunkenness or disorder amounting to a public nuisance occurs in the vicinity of his shop in consequence of the sale of spirit thereat.

Return of license on revocation.

24. On the revocation, cancellation or determination of any license, the licensee or his representative shall cease to carry on his business under it and shall return his license to the Collector.

Incapacity of licensee.

25. In the event of a licensee dying or becoming insolvent or otherwise incapable of carrying on his business under the conditions of his license, the license shall forthwith determine. The Collector may continue the license to the representative of the licensee or other person for the remainder of the period on the same conditions.

Surplus stock on expiry of license.

26. If any person, who has held a license under these rules, shall have in his possession, on the expiry or determination from any other cause of his license, any exciseable article which he is unable forthwith to dispose of, under the provisions of these rules, to any person licensed or authorised to purchase it, he shall at once surrender the same to the Collector. The Collector shall make such articles over, in any quantity not exceeding that which the transferee is likely to sell within two months, to the incoming licensee, or, otherwise, to any licensee within the district who is licensed to sell articles of the kind surrendered:

Provided that if any such article, or any part thereof, be declared by the Civil Surgeon or other duly qualified officer to be unfit for use, the Collector shall cause the same to be destroyed.

27. A licensee to whom any article is made over under the preceding clause shall be bound to pay such price for the same as the Collector in his discretion may fix.

28. The Collector shall tender the price so paid to the outgoing licensee by whom the article was surrendered, and such licensee shall not be entitled to any price, payment or compensation whatsoever in respect of any article so made over, other than the sum so tendered.

Dealings with excise officers.

29. Any transaction of the nature of a gift or loan between the licensee and an excise officer is prohibited.

Registers.

30. Every licensee shall maintain the registers prescribed for the class of business carried on by him, and shall make all prescribed returns punctually. True accounts of transactions shall be maintained from day to day in ink. The licensee shall enter all figures in English numerals and other particulars in English or Urdu characters unless the Collector, by special order noted on his license, permit the use of other numerals or characters, and the licensee shall allow the inspection of his registers, stock and premises when duly requested by an excise officer.

Inspection book.

31. An inspection note-book, with the pages numbered consecutively, shall be maintained in every liquor shop and shall be handed over to the Excise Inspector of the district or any officer authorised by him to receive it on a receipt being given therefor. A copy of all remarks of inspecting officers in this note-book shall be forwarded to the excise officer of the district for information. Any punishment or warning incurred by the licensee without forfeiture or cancellation of his license shall be recorded in this book.

32. A copy of these general conditions shall be pasted in every inspection note-book.

RULES FOR THE GRANT OF PARTICULAR LICENSES.

Foreign liquor.

Form L. 1.

33. An application for a license in form L. 1, for the wholesale vend of foreign liquor to the trade only, shall contain a description of the liquor which is proposed to be sold, and shall state where the business is to be conducted. The Collector may grant such licenses. The fee shall range from Rs. 100 to Rs. 300 per annum. This license shall authorise the sale of beer and medicated wines which are classed as foreign liquor.

34. A license in form L. 2, for the vend of foreign liquor to the public, may permit retail vend only or both wholesale and retail vend. It may also include wholesale vend to the trade.

Such a license may be granted by the Collector in form L. 2, to any shop of proved respectability in a civil station, or cantonment, or any other place where there is a demand for superior foreign liquor. A license in this form may not authorise consumption on the premises. The fee shall range from Rs. 200 to Rs. 1,000 per annum for retail vend, with an extra fee, ranging from Rs. 100 to Rs. 300 per annum, for wholesale vend.

35. A license for the retail vend of liquor in a hotel, for off consumption, may be granted by the Collector in form L. 3. The fee shall range from Rs. 100 to Rs. 1,000 per annum.

Form L. 3.

The Collector may, however, propose and the Chief Commissioner may sanction, a lower fee for small hotels and boarding-houses which are not much frequented. This license may be granted for 3, 6, 9, or 12 months at proportional fees.

36. A license for the retail vend of foreign liquor in a restaurant may be granted by the Collector in form L. 4. The fee shall range from Rs. 50 to Rs. 250 per annum. This license may be granted for 3, 6, 9, or 12 months at proportional fees.

37. When the licensee of a hotel or restaurant wishes to keep a bar for the retail vend of foreign liquor the Collector may grant him a supplementary license in form L. 5. The supplementary fee shall range from Rs. 50 to Rs. 500 per annum. This license may be granted for 3, 6, 9, or 12 months at proportional fees.

38. A license for the retail vend of foreign liquor in a railway refreshment room may be granted by the Collector in form L. 6. The fee shall range from Rs. 100 to Rs. 1,000 per annum, but smaller fees may be fixed as in rule 35 above. This license may be granted for 3, 6, 9 or 12 months at proportional fees.

39. A license for the retail vend of foreign liquor in a railway dining car may be granted by the Chief Commissioner only in form L. 7. The fee shall range from Rs. 25 to

Form L. 7.

Rs. 300 per annum. This license may be granted for 3, 6, 9 or 12 months at proportional fees.

40. If the licensee of a hotel, restaurant, or railway refreshment room wishes to sell foreign liquor by retail for off consumption, the Collector may grant him a supplementary license in from L. 8, provided that there is a local demand for foreign liquor which cannot otherwise be met. The fee shall be fixed by the Collector at his discretion. This license may be granted for 3, 6, 9 or 12 months at proportional fees.

41. A license for the retail vend of liquor in a military canteen may be granted by the Collector, with the approval of the Commanding Officer, in from L. 9. The fee shall be

Form L. 9

Rs. 24 per annum for a regiment and Rs. 12 per annum for a smaller unit. When a regiment or unit arrives in Delhi in possession of a canteen license granted in the Punjab the Collector shall countersign the license for the period for which it was originally granted without charging any additional fee.

42. Licenses for the retail vend of foreign liquor in a bazar shall generally be sold by auction (vide rule 60). If, however, the Collector thinks it advisable, he may grant any such license on a fixed fee. The fee shall not be less than Rs. 1,200 per annum, and shall be fixed by the Chief Commissioner. These licenses shall ordinarily be for off consumption. On consumption will only be permitted in very special cases by the Chief Commissioner.

43. Licenses in form L. 11 for the bottling of foreign liquor may only be granted to persons who already hold licenses in forms L. 1 or 2, by the Chief Commissioner. In proposing the grant of such a license, the Collector shall report the arrangements he proposes to make to secure effective control of the introduction and removal of spirit and effective control of the bottling operations. The Collector shall also suggest the amount of the fee, which shall range from Rs. 300 to Rs. 600 per annum ; provided that, if special excise establishment is entertained for the supervision and control of the bottling business, the fee shall be enhanced by an amount sufficient to cover the cost of such establishment. This license shall not be given to the holder of a license in form L. 15 to bottle country spirit. It should be noted that this license does not authorise any form of vend. The Collector may renew this license when once sanctioned by the Chief Commissioner at the same fee. An increase or decrease in the fee requires the Chief Commissioner's sanction. The Collector may refuse to renew the license.

44. The Collector may grant licenses in selected places for the retail vend of beer for on or off consumption. The Collector may prescribe the form of license and the fee. No such license may be given to the holder of a license in form L. 14 for the retail vend of country spirit.

45. The Collector may grant to any medical practitioner, or to any respectable person genuinely engaged in the sale of drugs to the public for medical purposes a license in form L. 12 permitting the sale of medicated wines containing 42 per cent. or less of proof spirit, provided that such wines are sold as a tonic or medicine only. The license fee shall be Rs. 50 per annum.

Form L. 12.

NOTE.—No license shall be required for the sale of any medicated wine containing less than 20 per cent. of proof spirit.

Country spirit.

46. License in form L. 13 for the wholesale vend of country spirit shall be granted by the Collector. The ordinary fee shall be Rs. 24 per annum, but a separate license shall be required for each vend agency. The Collector may propose and the Chief Commissioner may sanction a reduced fee for shops whose business is small, or where difficulty is experienced in finding suitable men to take out wholesale licenses This license shall not be given to the holder of a license in form L. 11 to bottle foreign liquor.

Form L. 13.

47. Licenses in form L. 14 for the retail vend of country spirit shall be sold by auction (vide rule 60, et seq.). The Chief Commissioner, however, reserves the right to sell any such license for a fixed fee.

Form L. 14.

48. Licenses in form L. 15 for the bottling of country spirit may be issued by the Collector to holders of licenses in form L. 13 only. The fee shall range from Rs. 50 to Rs. 100 per annum.

Form L. 15.

49. A license in form L. 16 to reduce country spirit may be given by the Collector to any licensee under form L. 13, provided the Collector can make satisfactory arrangements for the effective control of the reducing operations. No fee shall be charged for this license.

Form L. 16.

50. The Collector may grant licenses in cantonments, municipalities and large villages for the retail vend of country spirit in sealed bottles only, for off consumption. The Collector may prescribe the form of the license and the fee. Before granting such a license in cantonments, the Collector shall obtain the consent of the Commanding Officer.

Sealed bottles. No form.

Denatured spirit.

51. The Collector may grant licenses in form L. 17 for the vend of denatured spirit. No fee is chargeable and the Collector may reject any application or refuse to renew any license for sufficient reason.

Form L. 17.

52. Inasmuch as one of the conditions in license form L. 17 forbids a vendor to sell more than eight gallons of denatured spirit to one person, the Collector may grant a license in form L. 18 permitting any chemist, varnish-maker, or other person, who in his business uses larger quantities of denatured spirit, to purchase and possess any quantity of denatured spirit up to one hundred gallons. The possession of more than one hundred gallons requires the sanction of the Chief Commissioner. No fee is chargeable.

Form L. 18.

Rectified spirit.

53. The Collector may grant a license in form L. 19 for the vend of rectified spirit for medicinal, industrial and scientific purposes. The license will be given only to holders of licenses in form L. 2 or L. 17 or to chemists or druggists of good standing, approved by the Collector. The fee shall be Rs. 25 per annum.

Form L. 19.

54. The Collector may grant a license in form L. 20 for the possession of rectified spirit for use in the manufacture of drugs, medicines and chemicals, excluding perfumes and toilet preparations. This spirit will be excised at the privileged rate of Rs. 7-13-0 per proof gallon. The license shall be given free of fee, but shall not be given to any manufacturing chemist who has a license for the retail sale of foreign liquor on the same premises, or a license for the sale of rectified spirit at the ordinary rate in form L. 19.

Form L. 20.

55. * * * * *

56. * * * * *

57. In urban areas, the Collector may grant, a licensee under form L. 10 or 14, a special license in form L. 21 to keep his shop open for not more than two hours after the time fixed by his license for closing. This special license shall be given for important festivals only, at such fee as the Collector may prescribe.

Form L. 21; Extensions.

58. The Collector may grant a license for a special occasion, in a form to be prescribed by him, at such fee as he considers suitable. In granting such a license on the occasion of a fair the Collector shall observe the following instructions. No special liquor license shall be granted for any fair where such a license has hitherto not been granted or where, having in the past been granted, it has now been discontinued. If a new fair is inaugurated, the Collector shall not grant a special liquor license without the consent of the Chief Commissioner.

Fairs and special occasions. No form.

In the case of fairs for which special liquor licenses have hitherto been granted, the Collector may continue to grant such licenses. He should, however, take cognizance of any bonâ fide movement favouring prohibition, and he may without further sanction decline to grant a special liquor license, if, on testing local opinion, he is thoroughly satisfied that the discontinuance of such a license would be a measure approved by the unquestioned voice of local opinion, and that such local opinion is free from any suspicion of connivance at illicit distillation.

Licenses for recurring fairs of importance, at which it is permissible under these rules to provide for the sale of country spirit, should be included in the list of shops to be auctioned.

59. The Collector may grant a special license in form L. 22 for the retail vend of foreign liquor at a bar, at any place of recreation, or on any special occasion when temporary arrangements for the sale of foreign liquor are required. The Collector shall fix the license fee.

Form L. 22.

RULES FOR THE CONDUCT OF AUCTIONS.

60. Licenses, including fair licenses, for the retail vend of country spirit shall ordinarily be sold by auction. The Chief Commissioner, however, reserves the right to grant any such license on payment of a fixed fee. Licenses for the retail bazar vend of foreign liquor are usually sold by auction (vide rule 42).

What licenses are sold by auction.

61. At the beginning of January in each year the Collector shall, for each shop to be auctioned, make an estimate of its probable sales during the next license year, and upon such estimate he shall determine the lowest annual fee at which each shop may reasonably be licensed. The value of the shop should be communicated confidentially to the selling officer, but should not be disclosed to the bidders. The Collector may close any existing shop.

Preparations for the annual auction of licenses.

62. Auctions shall be held once a year by the Collector or by a gazetted officer selected and empowered in this behalf by the Collector. The Chief Commissioner will fix the dates of the auctions.

Preparations for the annual auction of licenses.

63. The Collector will give timely notice of the date and place of the auction. This notice will also specify—

(a) the conditions to which the auction will be subject;

(b) the number and situation of the shops to be licensed for the sale of country spirit and foreign liquor, respectively;

(c) the minimum prices, if any, fixed for the retail vend of country spirit;

(d) any other information which may be of use to intending bidders.

64. Before the auction begins, the presiding officer will read out the conditions to which the auction will be subject and will explain the maximum and minimum prices, if any, which have been prescribed for various classes of liquor.

Conduct of auctions.

65. He will then proceed to put up each shop to auction, after carefully explaining its locality. The auction of two or more shops at one time requires the sanction of the Chief Commissioner in each case.

66. A license shall not be granted except to a person or persons by name or to a company registered under the Indian Companies Act or to a society registered according to law.

Persons who may not be given licenses.

67. No person shall be allowed to bid for a country spirit license if he, or any person closely associated with him in interest, holds a license for any dealings in foreign liquor, tari, or denatured spirit.

68. No person shall be allowed to bid for another, whether his partner or not, unless he holds a duly executed power-of-attorney enabling him in this behalf.

69. No person shall be allowed to bid unless he has deposited the sum of Rs. 25 in a Government treasury, or deposits that sum at the time of the auction with the presiding officer.

Persons who may not be given licenses.

70. No person shall be allowed to bid whose name is on the list of persons debarred from holding licenses or who is known to the Collector to be debarred from holding a license in another province.

71. The Collector may further exclude from the bidding any person, on account of his notorious bad character, or for any other sufficient reason to be recorded.

Acceptance and refusal of bids.

72. The presiding officer shall refuse to accept any bid by an excluded person, or any bid which he has reason to believe is made in the interest of any excluded person.

73. The presiding officer may refuse any bid which he considers to be merely speculative or dictated by private enmity or which, if accepted, would in his opinion tend to create an undesirable monopoly of interest.

74. The presiding officer shall record the name of each person making a bid and the amount of the bid.

75. Where the bidding exceeds Rs. 100, no bid shall be accepted unless it is a multiple of Rs. 10.

76. Bids shall be received for the whole annual license-fee and not for the monthly instalments in which it is payable. The presiding officer shall not be bound to accept the highest or any bid. When the highest bid is refused, the presiding officer shall record his reasons for accepting another bid.

77. All bids accepted by an officer subordinate to the Collector require the Collector's sanction. All sales are open to revision by the Chief Commissioner.

Procedure when sale is not concluded.

78. If the Collector refuses to sanction a sale or if a sale is set aside by the Chief Commissioner on revision, the Collector may re-sell the license by auction or by tender; if the re-sale is by tender, these rules shall apply as far as may be

79. If the lowest annual fee mentioned in rule 61 above is not bid for any shop, the Collector may in his discretion accept a lower bid provisionally, but shall report the case to the Chief Commissioner with whose sanction the shop may be—

(a) closed either permanently or till a person willing to take it up at the reserved price shall come forward, or

(b) carried on by a vendor who will work it for a commission on sales, or

(c) re-sold at another auction, or

(d) sold for the lower bid provisionally accepted.

Refund of deposits.

80. At the conclusion of every auction, the Collector or the officer conducting the auction shall refund to all persons who have not obtained licenses, all deposits made by them.

Report of auction results.

81. The Collector shall forward to the Chief Commissioner for sanction statements shewing the locality of each shop sold, the probable sales during the year (which shall be stated in gallons equivalent to London Proof), the lowest fee determined under rule 61 above, the name of the person to whom the shop has been sold, the amount for which it has been sold compared with the fee for the preceding year, and, in any case in which the shop has not been sold to the highest bidder, a short statement of the reasons for rejecting his bid. The Collector shall also forward a list of licensees and the shops held by them to the Superintendent of Police in his district, and in the case of country spirit shops, to the Manager of any distillery licensed in the Punjab from which direct sales to licensees in the district take place.

Payment of license fee.

82. A person to whom a shop has been sold shall pay one-sixth of the annual fee within seven days of the auction (any deposits already made shall be credited to this sum, and any excess shall be either returned to him or credited to future payments). Before the beginning of the month in which he begins business under his license, the licensee shall pay one-twelfth of the annual fee, and by the 7th of every subsequent month shall pay one-twelfth till the whole fee is paid. But he may at any time pay the whole amount due if he wishes. If the total amount due is less than Rs. 100, it shall be payable in one sum unless the Collector for special reasons allows payment to be made by instalments. If any person whose bid has been accepted by the officer presiding at the auction fails to make the deposit of one-sixth of the annual fee, or if he refuses to accept the license, the Collector may re-sell the license, either by public auction or by private contract, and any deficiency in price and all expenses of such re-sale or attempted re-sale shall be recoverable from the defaulting bidder in the manner laid down in section 60 of the Punjab Excise Act, I of 1914, as applied to the Delhi Province.

Procedure when licensee makes default.

83. If any person to whom a license has been sold—

(a) fails to pay any fee due,

(b) fails to carry on the business for which the license was granted,

(c) commits a breach of any of the conditions applicable to his license,

(d) is convicted of any offence under the Excise or Opium Acts, or, if the license becomes liable to cancellation under any Act for the time being in force, the Collector may (1) cancel the license and make such arrangements as he may think fit for carrying on the business for which the license was granted, and declare forfeited to Government any fee paid or deposit made in respect thereof, or (2) permit the licensee to retain the license on payment of a further fee not exceeding Rs. 200.

Re-sale.

84. When a license has been cancelled, the Collector may re-sell it by public auction or by private contract. The Collector shall communicate the result of such re-sale in a statement to the Chief Commissioner in the same manner as the ordinary auction results. * No. 1249-Home.—The following draft rules which the Chief Commissioner proposes to make in exercise of the powers conferred by section 11 of the Indian Motor Vehicles Act, VIII of 1914, to be brought into force if and when such Act is extended to the Delhi Province, are published for general information, and notice is hereby given that the said draft rules will be taken into consideration on or after the 1st April 1915, and any objections or suggestions received by that date will be duly considered :—

DRAFT RULES UNDER SECTION 11 OF ACT VIII OF 1914, REGARDING THE GRANT OF CERTIFICATES OF REGISTRATION AND OF DRIVING LICENSES AND FOR THE REGULATION OF THE USE OF MOTOR VEHICLES IN THE PROVINCE OF DELHI.

I.—Driving Licenses for Motor Vehicles.

1. Save as provided in rules made under sections 14 and 15 of the Act no person shall drive a motor vehicle within the limits of Delhi Province unless he has first obtained—

(a) a license from the District Magistrate, Delhi, or

(b) a license from the Commissioner of Police in a Presidency Town or Rangoon or from the District Magistrate of a district in British India outside the province of Delhi.

2. Licenses to drive a motor vehicle may be obtained by drivers of over the age of 18 by application to the District Magistrate, Delhi ; they will be required to give proof of their competence to drive in the manner laid down in Schedule II annexed to these rules. Such licenses will not have effect for a longer period than one year and will in all cases expire on the 31st March next, following the date on which the license is granted.

The charge for each license will be Rs. 2.

The license will be in form A I attached to these rules.

3. The application for license should be made in the first instance to the Superintendent of Police.

4. Drivers are bound by the provisions of Act VIII of 1914, and by the rules issued from time to time by the Chief Commissioner under section 11 of that Act.

5. Drivers of hired motor vehicles will be required to be in possession of a driving license from the District Magistate, Delhi, and to obtain in addition the special certificate of competency for driving a hired motor vehicle laid down in Part IV of these rules.

II.—Certificates of Registration for Motor Vehicles.

6. No motor vehicle shall be used within the province of Delhi unless the owner shall have first obtained—

(a) a certificate of registration from the District Magistrate, Delhi ; or

(b) a certificate of registration from the Commissioner of Police in a Presidency Town or Rangoon, or from the District Magistrate of a district in British India outside the province of Delhi

7. A certificate of registration may be obtained from the District Magistrate of Delhi. Applications should be directed in the first instance to the Superintendent of Police, before whom the motor vehicles to be registered shall be produced. Evidence will be required that the car meets with the requirements enumerated in Schedule I attached.

The charge for each original certificate will be Rs. 4 in the case of a motor bicycle and Rs. 16 in the case of a motor car. Sums previously paid for registration in Delhi may be deducted from payments under this rule.

The certificate will be in form A II attached to these rules.

8. Owners in possession of the certificates referred to in rule 6 (b) shall register their edtification number at the office of the Superintendent of Police.

9. In the case of vehicles registered in Delhi, the Superintendent of Police will assign to the owner on production of the certificate of registration an identification number which shall consist of the letter D with a serial number following. The owner shall present his certificate immediately after registration for this purpose, and registration shall not be considered as completed until a number has been assigned.

10. Numbers and letters assigned to motor vehicles shall be shown in large black figures on a white ground, and shall be of the following dimensions painted on a plate which shall be rigidly affixed in a conspicuous place on the front and back of the motor :—

Provided that in the case of motor cycles the plate fixed on the front part of the cycle shall have duplicate faces and be fixed so that from whichever side the cycle is viewed the letters and figures on one or other face are easily distinguishable; and further that the size of the letters and figures may be proportionately reduced to a height of 1½ inches.

(b) No number shall in any way be obscured, or rendered or allowed to become not easily discernable at a reasonable distance.

11. Every transfer of ownership of a motor vehicle registered under these rules must forthwith be reported to the Superintendent of Police by the registered owner and by the transferee jointly. No charge will be made for recording a transfer of ownership.

12. The Superintendent of Police may assign a manufacturer of, or a dealer in, motor vehicles, on payment of an annual fee of Rs. 20, a general provincial identification number which shall be affixed to any motor vehicle belonging to the said manufacturer or dealer when on trial after completion or by an intending purchaser. Such motor vehicles shall only ply within the limits of the Province of Delhi, and shall not ply for hire.

13. In addition to a certificate of registration a special permit is required in the case of motor vehicles which it is desired to ply for hire in Delhi Province. The rules regulating the grant of such permits will be found in Part IV of these rules.

14. The owner of a motor vehicle is bound by the provisions of Act VIII of 1914 and by the rules issued from time to time by the Chief Commissioner under section 11 of that Act.

III.—General.

15. A motor vehicle shall be driven in accordance with the rules of the road, which require a vehicle to keep on the left of the road except when passing horses and other vehicles going in the same direction, which shall be passed on the right; provided that it shall ordinarily pass a tram car on the left or near side whether it be going in the same or the contrary direction.

16. With regard to section 6 of the Act a person may receive instruction in driving a motor vehicle between the hours of 6 and 9 A.M. and 11 A.M. and 4 P.M. in a public place provided he is accompanied by a licensed driver.

17. In regard to section 5 of the Act a person shall be considered to have committed an offence under section 5 of the Act if he exceeds a speed of 15 miles within the limts of Delhi Municipality, Cantonment and Notified Area or in localities of special danger where notices are posted further restricting the speed of motor vehicles, if he exceeds the speed so fixed.

18. A motor vehicle shall not be driven in any footway nor in any road or public place where such traffic may, for the time being, be prohibited by the licensing authority.

19. The request referred to in sections 4 (a), (b) and (c) of the Act may be made by such police officer or person by putting up his hand as a signal.

20. Every person driving a motor vehicle shall have ready and available for immediate use a deep-toned horn or other instrument capable of giving audible and sufficient warning of his approach or position, and shall sound the same whenever expedient to prevent danger to any of the public.

The Superintendent of Police shall have authority to prohibit the use of instruments of a type which are likely to cause inconvenience or annoyance to the public.

21. No person shall drive a motor vehicle during the period commencing half an hour after sunset and ending half an hour before sunrise unless such vehicle is provided with light as follows:—

(1) In the case of vehicles other than motor cycles—

(a) one lamp showing a white light in front affixed on each side of the front portion of the vehicle;

(b) one lamp showing a red light at the rear and showing a white light at the side affixed at the back of the vehicle in such manner as to illuminate with the white light and render easily distinguishable the signs and number on the plates.

(2) In the case of motor cycles—

(a) one lamp showing a white light in front affixed to the motor cycle.

(3) In all cases—

(a) the lamps shall be of suitable character and illumination;

(b) the lamps shall be kept properly alight;

(c) where acetylene or electric lamps or lamps of any description giving a powerful and intense light are used, the same shall be properly hooded or screened to the satisfaction of the registering authority.

N. B.—The lighting up time as advertised by the Police on notice boards shall be considered to be half an hour after sunset.

22. No motor vehicle shall be allowed to stand in any street or public place unattended by a person licensed under rule 1 above, unless all reasonable precautions have been taken to ensure that it cannot be put in motion in the absence of the driver.

23. No person shall leave a motor vehicle or keep it standing in a street at night without at least one lighted lamp of suitable character and illumination at front and back.

24. All motor vehicles shall be provided with a silencer which shall not be disconnected from the engine while the engine is running. No person shall cause or permit the emission of smoke or visible vapour from a motor car in such quantity as to cause annoyance or danger to the public.

25. A manufacturer of, or dealer in, motor vehicles shall keep a register in such forms as the registering authority may direct showing the description of the vehicle used, the name of the driver, and the hours and dates on which he was in charge of the vehicle. Such register shall be open to inspection on the demand of any police officer of or above the rank of Sub-Inspector.

26. In the event of the registered owner of a car being called upon by a Magistrate or police officer to disclose the name or whereabouts of the driver of his motor vehicle on any particular occasion, he shall be legally bound to furnish such information.

IV.—Permits to Vehicles to ply for hire.

27. Permits to ply for hire, in Delhi Province, will be granted by the Superintendent of Police, Delhi, to motor vehicles with certificates of registration in accordance with the following regulations. Permits will be in Form A III attached to these rules. Such certificates will require to be renewed every year.

28. Every driver, attendant, licensee or owner of a motor vehicle plying for hire shall be subject to the provisions of Act VIII of 1914, and to the rules made thereunder, and in addition shall observe the following additional rules and be bound by the following conditions.

29. The permit granted shall remain in force from the date thereof till the 31st March next following, unless suspended or cancelled in the meantime by the order of the Superintendent of Police.

30. The permit shall not be transferred to any other person without sanction duly endorsed thereon by the Superintendent of Police.

31. The vehicle shall not under any circumstances be driven by any person other than a driver holding a special certificate for competency for driving a motor vehicle plying for hire, in Form A IV, signed by the Superintendent of Police, Delhi.

32. The certificate of competency shall be produced whenever demanded by a police officer, and shall be liable to be suspended or cancelled at the discretion of the Superintendent of Police if he has reason to believe that the driver is incompetent or has been guilty of rash or negligent driving or has infringed any condition of the permit of which the Superintendent of Police shall be the sole judge.

33. The applicant for a certificate of competency must be produced by the owner of the car before the Superintendent of Police. He will undergo an examination and satisfy the Superintendent of Police that—

(a) he is a competent and careful driver;

(b) he possesses a general knowledge of the car which he intends driving;

(c) he has a knowledge of the law affecting motor vehicles as well as a knowledge of the rules of the road.

(d) he has acquaintance with the principal places and roads of Delhi.

34. When a driver's certificate is suspended or cancelled, or when he enters the service of an owner of a private motor vehicle his competency certificate must be surrendered to the Superintendent of Police, and it is the duty of the owner of the public motor vehicle to see that such license is surrendered.

35. The driver shall at all times when on duty with the public motor vehicle wear a metal badge which shall be supplied to him by the Superintendent of Police and shall surrender the same, if his certificate is suspended or cancelled, to the Superintendent of Police.

36. The owner of the vehicle plying for hire shall maintain regularly such register in such form as the Superintendent of Police may direct, showing the name of the driver and the hours and dates on which he was in charge of the vehicle.

37. Every motor vehicle plying under this permit shall be fitted with a taximeter.

38. Every motor vehicle intended to be licensed to ply for hire shall be brought to the office of the Superintendent of Police at such time as he may direct for the purpose of examination of the taximeter.

39. The Superintendent of Police will submit each taximeter to a practical test. If it is found by him to be correct the whole of the fittings shall then be sealed to the cabs in such a manner that they cannot be removed or tampered with without taking off the seals.

40. Every vehicle shall be brought to the Superintendent of Police for a fresh taximeter test each time the meter or transmission gearing is removed or repaired.

41. No taximeter shall be affixed to a motor vehicle plying for hire unless the seal or mark approved by the Superintendent of Police has been fixed thereto. The permit of any car not having the said seal or mark intact shall be liable to revocation by the District Magistrate. Any owner, attendant, licensee, driver or any other person, who shall break or tamper with the seal or mark attached to the taximeter or who shall, with intent to deceive, tamper with the taximeter shall be deemed to have committed a breach of this rule.

42. The driver of every motor vehicle plying for hire shall, as soon as he is hired and no sooner, set the taximeter in motion, and upon the termination of the hiring shall immediately stop the same. If he neglect or fail to do so, he shall be deemed to have committed a breach of this rule.

43. The brakes should be, as far as possible, be so affixed as to be capable of easy adjustment, and at least one must be so made as to be applicable by the foot of the driver. No two brakes which operate on the same part shall be considered as independent, and at least one should act directly upon the road wheels without any connection with the propelling gears.

44. All brakes and steering connections secured with bolts must have the bolts secured with nuts, the same to be locked or pinned.

45. The machinery shall be so constructed that no undue noise or vibration is caused.

46. Carburettors must not be placed in close proximity to magnetos or to connections of wires carrying electric current, unless they are suitably encased or screened.

47. All wires carrying electric current must be properly insulated and protected from injury and so placed that they cannot be the cause of danger.

48. Tanks for petrol or liquid fuel must be sufficiently strongly constructed. The inlet for fuel should be so placed as to prevent the ready ignition of any overflow.

49. Vehicles must be capable of being readily steered and able to turn on each lock and proceed in a contrary direction within a roadway 30 feet wide from kerb to kerb. The Superintendent of Police may at his discretion in special cases increase this limit.

50. Vehicles must have a light so fixed as to illuminate the taximeter at night.

51. Where acetylene or other gas is used to light the carriage, the vessels which contain the gas in which it is generated must be fixed outside in such a position as to be removed as far as possible from the danger of accidental ignition.

52. The floors must be covered with mats of suitable material.

53. No printed matter to be carried by way of advertisement shall appear on the inside or outside of the vehicle.

54. The doors, windows, seats, roof or hood, springs, cushions, wheels, linings, panels, etc., and all furniture and appointments of the motor vehicles must be maintained in proper order and repair, and the inside of the vehicle must be kept clean.

55. The vehicle shall be liable to examination at such times as the Superintendent of Police may prescribe, and the permit may be suspended or cancelled under the orders of the Superintendent of Police if the machinery or brakes are defective or if the lights, numbers or any accessory are not in accordance with the regulations binding in virtue of this permit.

56. A fee of Rs. 5 shall be paid for the permit.

57. The following rates for the fare or hire of motor vehicles fitted with a taximeter and in possession of a permit is fixed for Delhi Province whether the vehicle is used by three or any less number of passengers.

1st Tariff.—Between 6-30 A.M., and 10 P.M., within the boundaries of Delhi Municipality and Notified Area as defined in Punjab Government Notification No. 831, dated the 6th November 1884, No. 713, dated the 24th September 1888, and No. 69, dated the 6th February 1892, and Chief Commissioner, Delhi's Notification No. 521, dated the 16th January 1913.

CALCUTTA, FEBRUARY, 17, 1915

CROP FORECAST

GROUNDNUT

Final General Memorandum on the GROUNDNUT crop of the season 1914-15.

This memorandum is based upon reports received from the three provinces of Madras, Bombay, and Burma, which produce groundnut to a considerable extent.

The total area returned is 1,995,000 acres as compared with 2,106,000 acres (revised figure) for 1913-14, or a decrease of 5 per cent. The decrease in area is mainly in the Carnatic and Central districts of the Madras Presidency and in the districts of Satara and Belgaum in the Bombay Presidency, and is attributed to unfavourable weather conditions at sowing time in these tracts. Conditions after sowing proved generally fair for the growth of the crop. The total yield is estimated at 929,000 tons of nuts in shell, as against 749,000 tons (revised figure) for last year, or an increase of 24 per cent. Details for the provinces are given below (in thousands of acres and tons) :—

	Acres (000)	Tons (000)	Acres (000)	Tons (000)
Madras	1,485	580	1,605	411
Bombay (including Native States)	243	247	254	250
Burma	267	102	247	88
Total .	1,995	929	2,106	749

There is, in short, a decrease in acreage but an increase in production in 1914-15 as compared with the previous year.

The provincial reports are summarised below :

Madras (67·7 per cent of the total reported area under groundnut).—The total area under the crop is reported to be 1,485,200 acres which is 7 per cent below the actual area of last year. There has been a considerable reduction in the Carnatic and Central districts, though the area continues to expand in the Circars and in the ceded districts of Kurnool, Bellary, Anantapur, and Cuddapah. The season has on the whole been fair, especially in the Central and Southern tracts. Both in the ceded districts and in the Circars heavy rain followed by a long spell of dry weather has tended to reduce the yield, and in the Carnatic what was promised to be a very heavy crop was damaged to some extent by heavy rain shortly before harvest. The total yield is estimated at 580,500 tons, showing an increase of 41 per cent.

Bombay (17·5 per cent of the total reported area under groundnut).—The estimates are up to the 10th December. The total area sown is reported to be 243,100 acres (179,900 in British districts and 63,200 in Native States). This is 4 per cent below last year's area. The decrease is in the Deccan, mainly in Satara and Belgaum, due to deficient sowing rains. Heavy and continuous rains in July and August retarded the progress of sowings; but the subsequent break was beneficial, and enabled the crop to prosper fairly satisfactorily. The November rain, however, is reported to have caused some damage in places to the crop ready for harvest. The total yield is estimated at 246,700 tons (180,400 tons in British districts, and 66,300 in Native States) as against 249,500 tons last year, or a decrease of about 1 per cent.

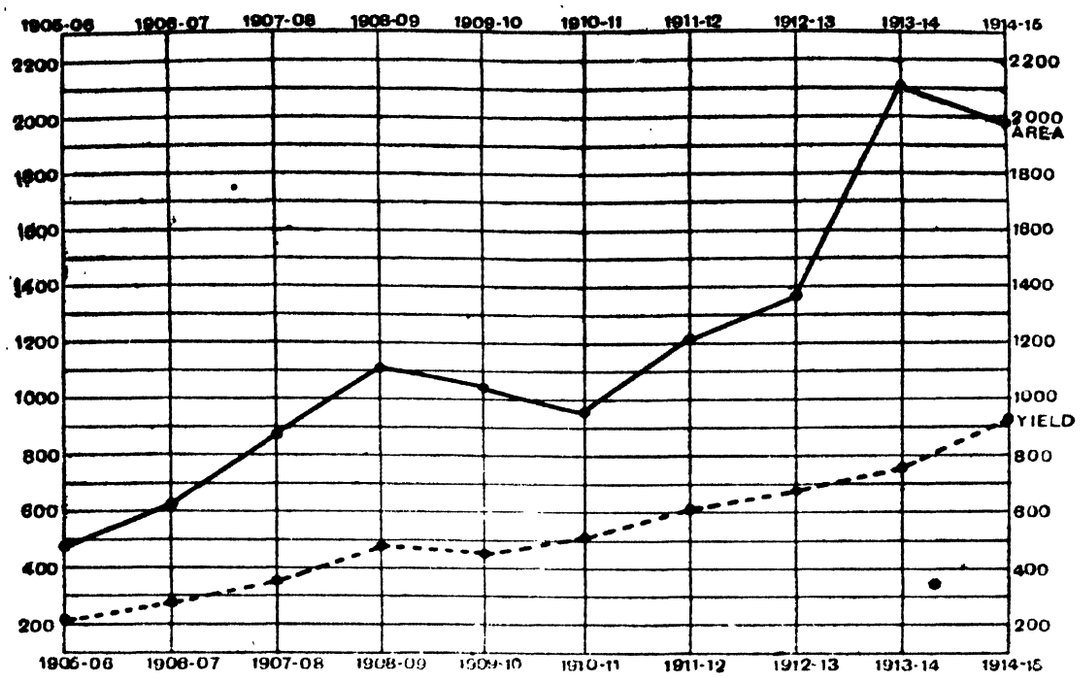
Burma (14·8 per cent of the total reported area under groundnut).—The total area under the crop is reported to be 267,000 acres, showing an increase of 8 per cent over last year's area, the districts mainly responsible for the increase being Pakokku, Myingyan, Meiktila, and Sagaing. The total yield is estimated at 102,000 tons as against 88,000 tons last year, or an increase of nearly 16 per cent, owing to the larger acreage cultivated.

Exports.—The quantities exported during ten months of this year and the whole of the five preceding years—1st April to 31st March—have been (in tons) :—

	From Madras	From Bombay	From Burma	From other Provinces	Total
1909-10 .	132,100	23,900	5,800	...	162,100
1910-11 .	129,900	49,100	5,400	100	184,500
1911-12 .	141,800	46,500	2,700	100	191,100
1912-13 .	180,200	48,800	14,300	100	243,400
1913-14 .	197,300	53,700	26,900	...	277,900
1914-15 (ten months).	98,000	14,200	1,900	100	114,200

Prices.—The figures below show the prices (per cwt) of groundnut at the end of January 1915 and at the same date in the two preceding years :—

	Madras per cwt			Bombay per cwt			Rangoon per cwt
	R	a.	p.	R	a.	p.	R	a.	p.
1913	8	2	5	10	1	0	6	6	2
1914	9	0	0	9	13	6	6	15	1
1915 . . .	5	4	8	6	6	0	4	13	0



Freights from Madras to Marseilles (which receives nearly four-fifths of the total exports) in November, December, and January were £1 7*s.* 6*d.* in 1913-14 as against £1 14*s.* 10*d.* in November, £1 16*s.* 3*d.* in December, and £2 15*s.* in January of the season 1914-15.

Chart.

The chart below shows the present figures of area and yield as compared with the finally revised figures of the preceding nine years. The figures of area are in thousands of acres and those of yield in thousands of tons. The figures for years prior to 1907-08 exclude Burma.

The 11th March 1915.

No. 58.—Mr. W. C. Stanton, Executive Engineer, State Railways, is, on return from leave, posted to the Eastern Bengal Railway.

No. 59.—With reference to Railway Board Notification No. 46, dated the 23rd February 1915, Mr. A. Rowland, Chief Engineer, 1st class, State Railways, and Senior Government Inspector of Railways, Circle No. 6, Bombay, is appointed Senior Government Inspector of Railways, Circle No. 7, Madras.

No. 60.—With reference to Railway Board's Notification No. 59, dated the 11th March 1915, Mr. V. T. Janson, Junior Government Inspector of Railways and Superintendent of Local Manufactures, Bombay, is appointed to hold charge of the Office of Senior Government Inspector of Railways, Circle No. 6, in addition to his other duties, until further orders.

No. 61.—In continuation of Notification No. 382, dated the 31st December 1918, it is hereby notified for general information that the Railway Board have sanctioned detailed surveys being carried out by the North Western Railway for the following lines of railways on the 2′ 6″ gauge :—

1. From Sargodha to Bhera, a distance of about 34 miles.
2. From Jaranwala to the Ravi Bridge near Thatta Nana Dogar, a distance of about 39 miles.

PART VI.

Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE INDIAN COUNCILS ACTS, 1861 to 1909 (24 & 25 Vict., c. 67, 55 & 56 Vict., c. 14, AND 9 Edw. VII, c. 4).

The Council met at the Council Chamber, Imperial Secretariat, Delhi, on Monday, the 8th March, 1915.

PRESENT:

The Hon'ble SIR HARCOURT BUTLER, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., Vice-President, presiding, and 49 Members, of whom 42 were Additional Members.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble Mr. Abbott asked:—

1. "With reference to the question put by me in the Legislative Council on the 17th September, 1913, asking that Government be pleased to consider the elimination of the word 'Subordinate' as applied to the Indian Subordinate Medical Department, and to which the Hon'ble Major-General Birdwood replied that 'Government had under consideration the elimination of the word', will Government now be pleased to make a definite announcement?" Subordinate Medical Department.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief replied:—

"The question of the designation of military assistant surgeons of the Indian Subordinate Medical Department has been referred to the Most Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India, but a decision has been deferred pending the report of the Commission on Public Services regarding medical organization."

[Mr. Abbott; Mr. Wood; Maharaja M. C. Nandi; Mr. Clark; Mir Asad Ali.] [8TH MARCH, 1915.]

The Hon'ble Mr. Abbott asked :—

Decorations for subordinate officials of the domiciled Anglo-Indian Community.

2. "Will the Government be pleased to state how many subordinate officials of the domiciled Anglo-Indian Community, in the following Departments, have been decorated (exclusive of the Durbar medal) for meritorious service during the last five years, giving the name and Department in each case :

(i) Public Works Department.
(ii) Posts and Telegraphs.
(iii) Forest Department.
(iv) Survey ,,
(v) Medical ,,
(vi) Police ,,
(vii) Secretariat and Ministerial offices.
(viii) State Railways.

The Hon'ble Mr. Wood replied :—

"The decorations for which subordinate officials are ordinarily eligible are companionships of the I. S. O. and the K. I. H Medal.

"A list* of the recipients of these decorations since 1911 is placed on the table. The Government of India are not in a position to say, without reference to Local Governments, what number of these belong to the domiciled Anglo-Indian Community."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Manindra Chandra Nandi asked :—

Manufacture in India of articles imported from foreign countries.

3. "In view of the appointment of Mr. Gubbay as Indian Trade Commissioner to the Board of Trade, London, do the Government propose making an inquiry as to the feasibility of manufacturing in India articles which in normal years used to be imported from Germany and Austria-Hungary or other parts of the Continent?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark replied :—

"The feasibility of manufacturing in India articles which in normal years used to be imported from Germany and Austria has already formed the subject of inquiry, and the results thereof have been issued to the public in the form of bulletins, while a collection has been on view in several of the leading towns in India of articles previously imported from Germany and Austria and similar articles made in India The Government of India do not propose to extend this inquiry to embrace articles made in other parts of the Continent of Europe."

The Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali asked :—

Improvement of industries.

4. "Will Government be pleased to state :—

(a) Whether they propose to start small model factories to encourage local or cottage industries?

(b) Whether any scheme is under contemplation for improving the indigenous trade of the country with special reference to the goods or articles hitherto largely imported from enemy States?

(c) Whether they propose to establish at least in the provincial capitals commercial and industrial bureaus to help local merchants with required information on trade subjects?"

* Vide Appendix A, page 137, post, and Appendix B, page 143, post

[8TH MARCH, 1915.] [Mr. Clark; Sir William Meyer; Mr. Dadabhoy.]

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark replied :—

"(a) The question of how far local industries can be encouraged either by Government starting model factories, so far as the rulings of the Secretary of State on the subject permit, or by other means, has in the past received, and is constantly receiving, the attention of the Government of India and of Local Governments.

(b) I may refer the Hon'ble Member to my speech in the debate on the Hon'ble Raja Kushalpal Singh's Resolution in which I explained what action Government was taking in this matter.

(c) Arrangements are at present in existence in several provinces for the dissemination of commercial information through Directors of Industries. The question of whether the existing organization of the Commercial Intelligence Department can be improved is now under discussion with Local Governments and the Secretary of State, and I cannot make any statement on the matter at present."

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

FIRST STAGE.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer:—"I beg to open the first stage of the discussion on the Financial Statement for 1915-16."

RESOLUTION RE REDUCTION OF RAILWAY ALLOTMENT AND INCREASE OF ALLOTMENT FOR EDUCATION AND SANITATION.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy:—Sir, I beg to move the following resolution :—

'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the allotment for Railways in the coming year be reduced by R50,90,000, and that the amount so freed be allotted to the Provincial Governments for the development of Education and Sanitation.'

"Sir, I should have been reluctant to suggest any change in the Budget Estimate for 1915-16 but for the conviction founded inter alia upon the authoritative pronouncements of Government that the claims of Education and Sanitation are paramount, and that there is almost an unlimited scope for the employment of funds, both public and private, for the promotion of Education and Sanitation. The most important pronouncement about the need of Education, and the pronouncement that Educated India treasures in her heart, is that of His Most Gracious Imperial Majesty the King-Emperor, made on 6th January, 1912. In the now celebrated Resolution of the Government of India in the Department of Education of 21st February, 1913, an appeal is made to the public for donations for the support of Education in which 'there is a wide field and a noble opportunity for the exercise on modern lines of charity and benevolence.' The inference necessarily is that for an adequate progress the efforts of Government must be supplemented by those of private individuals, and that Government alone is unable to do all. In the whole discussion in this Council on my lamented friend Mr. Gokhale's Resolution of Free Primary Education and on his Education Bill, the one fact which was not challenged was that the question of the development of Education was one mainly of funds; in other words, without an unstinted supply of money assured, that adequate progress of the people in Education, about the necessity of which all are agreed, cannot be secured. In presenting the Financial Statement for 1912-13, Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson referred to 'the growing demand for more schools and healthier homes.' In 1911-12, a large amount was spent by the provinces for the support of Education and Sanitation, and yet an Imperial reserve of £97,000 recurring and £433,000 non-recurring for Education alone was entered in the Budget for 1912-13. In the Revised Estimate for 1912-13, the bulk of the large Imperial surplus was distributed 'in grants to secure a steady progress in Education and Sanitation, an object which has the support of both official and non-official opinion,' and 2½ crores were alloted 'for non-recurring expenditure on Education' and 1½ crores 'for urban sanitation'. In the following year again, i.e., 1913-14, according to the Hon'ble Finance Minister's explanation of the Budget Estimate, 'the Provinces anticipate that they will spend £3,203 more than in the current year, the great bulk of the increase being accounted for under Education, Sanitation and Public Works.' In all these years there was never any complaint that the grants had lapsed through the inability of the Provinces to spend them. It was last year, when the Revised Estimate for 1913-14 was presented by the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer, that there was just a reference in his exhaustive their ability, and in the Budget Estimate for 1914-15 the Hon'ble Finance Minister, with a statesmanlike appreciation of the needs of the situation, made 'recurring grants of £60,000 for Education and £40,000 for Sanitation' in addition to a substantial non-recurring grant. Even then he was not satisfied, and he regretted his inability to go further in view of the other calls upon Imperial funds. He observed :—

'I need not say that it would have been a great satisfaction to the Government of India if financial conditions had permitted of a larger grant-in-aid of these primary objects of our policy. We fully recognize the necessity of adequate provision for the increase in expenditure which the great advance now being made in Education and Sanitation must inevitably entail. But Hon'ble Members will recognize, I think, that in a year like the present it is not practicable to go further than is now proposed as regards Imperial allotments.'

"Unless, Sir, there was a large scope for the utilization of more money in this direction, these observations lose point. We now have it, however, from the same high authority that provincial expenditure under Education and Sanitation and other Medical heads has been less by £1,090,000 in the current year as against the Budget provision. And we are not left to speculate about the causes. With characteristic fairness the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer has attributed the reduced expenditure, partially at least, to certain instructions issued by the Government of India. Certain other facts connected with provincial expenditure on Education which must be within the knowledge of this Government would prove the inaccuracy, and one might say the injustice, of the suggestion against the Provincial Governments. The Hon'ble Financial Secretary admits in his Memorandum that, 'in spite of the financial situation, most of the Provincial Governments have allotted larger funds from their ordinary provincial resources for the development of Education in various directions.' This does not indicate any slackness on the part of the Provinces to utilise the Imperial grants for Education. It is only fair to assume that any failure to employ the grants must have been due to unavoidable causes. In view of the Budget grants, the Provincial Governments try to put through their schemes as expeditiously as possible, but, as must be well known to all, the execution of individual schemes is delayed beyond the expected time limit by unforeseen circumstances. The delay over land acquisition proceedings alone would account for much of the so-called inability of the Provincial Governments to spend the whole of the non-recurring grant within one year. Moreover, the settlement of the preliminaries involves a good deal of labour and time. Building sites have to be selected, maps and estimates have to be prepared, land has to be acquired, tenders have to be called and so on. All this means time. It thus happens that the Provincial Governments have to their credit a large amount of cash early in the year, the useful employment of which can only be undertaken towards the close of it. And if the supply is suddenly withdrawn in the following year, when the Provincial Government has, after laborious effort, got the machinery into action, the result must prove disastrous to progress, the blame for which cannot in fairness attach to the Provincial Government concerned It is worse than useless to place funds at the disposal of the Provincial Governments for schemes which cannot be carried through forthwith, and then to cut off the supply at a time when they can be The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer would seem to have realised the unfairness of the present arrangements himself, as he has referred in his introductory speech to the risk of interference 'with quasi-commitments into which Local Governments have entered in carrying out a programme of special expenditure on these objects which they had every reason to expect to be able to maintain.'

"It is true that the budgetted grant to the Provinces shows a slight advance upon the Revised Estimate for the current year (Rs. 4,79,80,000 against Rs. 4,64,71,000), but the unfortunate circumstance is that it is insufficient for any reasonably large progress, and that the large number of schemes that have been got ready within the year will be hung up indefinitely. And this must cause not only serious inconvenience but actual loss. Sir, even in the present Budget, overshadowed as it is by war, forty lakhs of rupees have been provided for the New Capital at Delhi, and the Hon'ble Finance Minister has rightly justified his position by the statement that the amount is just 'which will suffice to carry on in some degree the work already in progress, and so obviate the deterioration of material and the disbanding of establishments.' The same line of reasoning will satisfy the Council that a larger grant is necessary in 1915-16 for the support of Education The risk of deterioration of building and other materials is, and the consequences of the disbanding of extra establishments like special land acquisition offices are, as great in this department as in any other. It is a poor consolation to the Provincial Governments that 'with this restricted programme the Provincial balances on the 31st March, 1916, will amount to £6·3 million,' and 'of this, £2·5 million may be taken as accruing from special grants, mainly non-recurring, which have been made by the Government of India, mostly for expenditure in connection with Education and Sanitation.' The application of the closing balances of the coming year is uncertain, and it is by no means unlikely that unforeseen factors will come into play to thwart the anticipations of the Hon'ble Finance Minister. The fairly large balances at the end of the current year can only be drawn upon up to a certain limit, namely, one million pounds sterling. I must admit my recommendation is not founded upon any accurate knowledge of the schemes that are ready and that will be starved without the additional grant; but I feel sure the number is large, and a reference to the Education Department will doubtless elicit the fact that I do not exaggerate the necessities of the situation. There is under the circumstances no just cause for the apprehension that if the Budget provision for Education and Sanitation be increased by fifty lakhs, the money would remain idle. That provision for Education alone is less than that made about this time last year by £676,200.

"Sir, the next year's provision for Medical expenditure is less than the Budget provision of the current year by £395,000, and is less than the Revised Estimate for the current year by £18,600. The deputation to military duty out of India of a large number of medical men undoubtedly explains a great deal of this diminished expenditure, but this is not the whole explanation. A heavy reduction in the allotment for Sanitation has much to do with it. From the Hon'ble Financial Secretary's Memorandum we find that a non-recurring grant of only 15·15 lakhs has been made in aid of Sanitation and Medical expenditure out of the Imperial revenues as against 106·88 lakhs in 1913-14 and 41·36 lakhs in 1914-15, leaving an unspent balance of R95,11,000. This cannot be satisfactory. What is even a grant of 15 lakhs to the whole of India? How many schemes of sanitary improvement could it finance? It is not correct to suggest that that is all that the Provinces can usefully spend next year. With our knowledge of the urgent needs of the local bodies and of sanitary improvement in both urban and rural areas, we can confidently assert that there is just at the present moment in India an almost unlimited scope for the profitable employment of funds. It is money alone which is wanting, and not field for its employment. The insanitary conditions of India, Sir, are notorious; and what with malaria, plague, cholera, small-pox, tuberculosis and other diseases, the mortality among the general population is abnormally high. According to the Statistical Abstract relating to British India, out of a registered population of 238,688,119 so many as 7,639,544 died in 1911 from all causes, or a mean death-rate of 32·01 per mille of population. During the decade 1902-1911, the rate oscillated between 30·91 and 38·21. Of this the mortality from fevers alone was between 17·63 and 23·96 per mille. The average rate improved, it is true, to 29·71 in 1912 and to 28·72 in 1913, and that from fevers to 16·49 in 1912 and to 16·71 in 1913. Still the rates are very high. As pointed out last year by Dr. C. V. Drysdale before the Royal Colonial Institute, in his masterly survey of 'The British Empire and Birth-rate,' it is India with the highest birth-rate which pulls down the average of increase in population in the whole Empire. In Australasia the average death-rate is 10 per mille of population As it is, even with a phenomenal birth-rate of 38 59 per mille of registered population, the net addition to population in British India was not more than 6·58 per mille in 1911, and 'only 4·3 per mille per decade over the whole period from 1861 to 1911.' During the last decade the number of towns and villages also dwindled from 730,753 in 1901 to 722,495 in 1911. Sir, I belong to a city which is now in the terrible grip of the most virulent epidemic of plague that we have ever seen, and the people there are dying by the hundreds every day. And can it be that the conditions of life cannot be made healthier and more agreeable at Nagpur by opening out congested areas and adopting other methods of scientific sanitation? And what is true of Nagpur is true, with variations in degree only, of all urban and rural areas in India. Yet, how many Municipalities and District Councils have got the means to undertake a reasonably comprehensive programme of scientific sanitation? With funds forthcoming, what cannot be done to clear jungle, to fill up tanks, to improve the water supply, to provide a proper system of drainage, and to open out congested areas? And schemes of sanitation cannot be wanting. This question of special non-recurring grants for sanitation has been to the fore now for about five years, and it would be a wonder if a fair number of schemes be not ready by this time. The Department of Education, which has the oversight of sanitary matters, will be able to enlighten us on this point; but primâ facie it appears unconvincing that within three years we have reached a point in sanitary improvement when we cannot profitably employ in 1915-16 more than a seventh part of our actual expenditure to end of 1913-14, ₹15,15,000 against ₹1,06,88,000. No, Hon'ble Members may be sure that an increased non-recurring grant of fifty lakhs of rupees for the support of Education and Sanitation will be usefully spent in the provinces in the coming year, and the fear of any portion of it lapsing at the end of it is groundless It is furthermore necessary, as the foregoing statement of facts will show, that the additional grant should be made. The only relevant question that remains to be discussed in this connection relates to the source from which the money is to be found.

"Sir, an examination of the Budget will show that, out of the total allotment of eight million pounds sterling for capital outlay on Railways, rupees fifty lakhs have been provided for the construction of new lines made up, according to the Hon'ble Financial Secretary's Momorandum, of four items,—₹15,00,000 for the Vishnupur-Santragachi Branch of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway, ₹5,00,000 for the Dholka-Dandhuka Branch of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, ₹1 ,00,000 for the Southern Shan States Railway, and ₹15,00,000 for Reserve. The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer has explained his position with regard to these railways, but, with all his able advocacy, he will permit me to say that we remain unconvinced both about the urgency and the expediency of these allotments. It is a debatable point if a programme of new construction must always form a feature of our annual Budget. Either view has powerful advocates, but the one outstanding fact in the controversy is that the profitable nature of railway enterprise in India is doubtful. In good years there is a small margin of profit, but, as pointed out by Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson two years ago, 'so recently as in 1908-09 our railway system was worked at a net loss to the State.' The policy of the Government of India was also laid down by him on that same occasion 'We must never allow our railways to become again, even temporarily, a net burden on the general taxpayer.' The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer, speaking last year on the Budget, shared his predecessor's poor opinion about the profit-earning capacity of our railways, and observed with his accustomed force and directness: 'Briefly, although the net profits we have derived from railways in recent years are per se imposing, they represent but a small margin of profit on the total capital involved, and that margin may be materially affected by trade or climatic circumstances beyond our control.' This year the net profit after meeting interest charges has reached almost the vanishing point (·53 per cent). These circumstances only demonstrate the fact I wish to emphasize that our annual programme of new lines must be reduced to a minimum, especially because every addition to the mileage entails an increasing financial responsibility of Government for renewal and improvement which must be discharged irrespective of the state of its finance. It is true that weighty considerations, economic and political, would justify railway expansion; but the point I wish to impress upon Hon'ble Members is that this expansion must in future proceed upon extremely cautious lines, and should only be financed by Government in a lean year when it is unavoidable. It does not matter much if new construction is financed out of our surpluses, provided no indication of a subsequent deficit is present at the time the allotments are made. But when it comes to the question of finding the funds for it in a year of heavy deficit and of uncertain future like the present, the policy is certainly open to criticism. And when added to this is the fact that the allotment for construction of new lines is made, if not directly at the sacrifice of, but simultaneously with a heavy curtailment of, the programme of Education and Sanitation, which are admittedly 'the primary objects' of British Indian Administration, the impolicy of the capital outlay becomes obvious.

"Sir, last year, i.e. in 1913-14, the capital expenditure on railways was over twelve million pounds sterling, and a trifle less than the scale of £12½ millions recommended by the Mackay Committee, and in the current year, a year of great anxiety to Government, when all expenditure has had to be cut down, it exceeds £11½ million pounds sterling. Now, after the two years' heavy outlay, would it be wrong to claim a respite, at least in the matter of the construction of new lines? And what is the special urgency about the three new lines for which the Hon'ble Finance Member is anxious to provide fifty lakhs of rupees next year? The Administration Report on Railways in India for 1913-14 shows that the Vishnupur-Santragachi Railway was not even surveyed in that year. It may be that it is 'primarily intended for the relief of the existing lines between the coal-fields and Calcutta,' but the point that demands examination is, how is its construction so very urgent that it cannot be delayed for one year? There is nothing to show that a year's delay would be injurious to the interests of the country as a whole. The Dholka-Dandhuka Railway, again, was surveyed as far back as 1906-07. The construction could be put off so long, although we have passed through very prosperous years in the interval. Last year provision was made for it, but it could not be taken in hand for unavoidable reasons. Supposing there is a further delay of a year, how will the consequences be serious? That the urgency cannot be great is evident from the fact that only five lakhs of rupees have been allotted for the construction of this line against an estimated expenditure of 23 lakhs. The Southern Shan States Railway, with a length of 105·04 miles, is being constructed in sections. On 31st March, 1914, it had an open length of 23 miles, and the capital outlay amounted to R1,32,95,785. The remaining portion was sanctioned on 23rd July, 1909. In the current year there was a budget provision of 15 lakhs for further construction. Presumably, the amount has been defrayed in the way intended. Substantial progress has thus been made, but it is not expected that the whole length will be constructed at once And if that is not the case and if the construction be a question of years, it is not clear to my mind how 'the further development of the Southern Shan States will be seriously hampered if this extension is not carried out at once.' Sir, to the lay mind the representation about the urgency of the construction to which the Hon'ble Finance Member has referred, would appear to lack special merit. It should be borne in mind that there was an actual loss in 1913-14 on the open length of 23 miles for which we have statistics, the proportion of expenses to earnings being 118·31. If these lines disappear from our next year's Budget, the reserve of R15 lakhs becomes unnecessary; even with the construction provided for, a 43 per cent reserve must strike one as wholly unnecessary.

"Sir, on the strength of the above analysis of the needs of Educational and Sanitary progress, and in the absence of special urgency about the construction of the three new lines of railway for which provision is made in the Budget, I claim a re-adjustment, and suggest that the allotment for Railways should be reduced by the sum of rupees fifty lakhs set apart for fresh construction, and the amount thus freed should be employed for the support of Education and Sanitation. I take Education and Sanitation together, as with my insufficient knowledge of the schemes under each head which are ready, or are likely to be ready shortly, it is far better that I should plead for a further grant of fifty lakhs for both, leaving it to the Department of Education, with its fuller grasp of details, to apportion the amount between the two."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis :—"Sir, any reasonable proposal, as that made by the Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy, for strengthening the resources of Local Governments and for increasing non-recurring Imperial grants for the promotion of Education and Sanitation, in addition to the liberal grants that have been made in recent years by Government, will have the cordial support of Hon'ble Members. It is for this that last year I invited the attention of the Hon'ble Finance Minister to the urgency of a liberal revision of the rules regarding 'lapsed grants' in the case of these and other necessary objects. But apart from the question of 'lapse,' I think the Hon'ble Mover has successfully indicated the way in which the budgetted grants for these important heads of expenditure can be substantially increased without prejudice either to the interests of the general administration or to the special interests of the Railway Department.

"Though I do think that the Budget as it is has been very carefully prepared and that there should be as little interference with it as possible in times like these, the question of the construction of new lines of railway should be examined and decided in view of the necessary recurring expenditure involved. It is not the initial outlay alone that has to be provided, but in addition the annual renewals of each line constructed have to be financed. The financial responsibility of Government is thus of a twofold nature, and this should impose on us extra caution in the matter of extension. And it follows that only unavoidable expenditure should be incurred in this direction, especially when the State is not flush of cash

"I may also point out that the allotments to the Provinces that are now suggested may be utilised by this Government if the necessities of a sudden situation in the course of the war so demand. There will never be any unwillingness on the part of the Provincial Governments to come to the relief of this Government in such a contingency. This year they have responded promptly to the appeal of the Government of India, and there is no reason to suppose that they will not be equally reasonable in future.

"One suggestion more. The additional grants for Education and Sanitation should only be made to Local Governments that have got schemes ready, and are therefore in a position to employ the funds within the year to the best advantage.

[8TH MARCH, 1915.] [Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis; Mr. Clark.]

"My friend the Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy has just alluded to the state of Nagpur at the present time, but I will not be doing my duty if I do not acknowledge the great help that has been given by the Local Government during the last ten years in improving the town, and if plague is at its worst this year, it is a mere accident and not in any way due to lack of help on the part of Government and, for the matter of that, of the Municipality. I must, however, say that there is still room for much sanitary improvement, and any increased grant made for the improvement of the town will be most thankfully received and most usefully spent."

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark:—"I think, Sir, it might be useful to the Council if I were to intervene at this juncture to say a few words about our proposals for expenditure on new railways, an expenditure which the Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy appears to regard with disapproval. I will leave the question of general policy to be dealt with by my Hon'ble Colleague the Finance Member, and will merely lay before the Council a statement of the main railway projects which we have in hand. I had hoped that my Hon'ble Colleague the President of the Railway Board, who knows, of course, much more about the details of these projects than I do, could have done this; but unfortunately he is indisposed. However, for the purpose of this debate, probably the general outlines will be sufficient. I can hardly hope perhaps to carry conviction to the Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy, who has told us that my Hon'ble friend the Finance Member has already failed to convince him; but it is clearly my duty to try. The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy has told us that if more money is not available for education and sanitation, many schemes will be hung up and much money will be wasted. I do not know how far this is really applicable to education and sanitation, but I am quite sure that it is particularly applicable to railways. It will be most uneconomical to proceed, as the Hon'ble Member said we ought to proceed, by merely taking up new construction when there happened to be large surpluses, possibly spaced out by considerable periods, during which all the work previously done had been lying idle and all the capital employed had been lying idle. If the Hon'ble Member will forgive my saying so, he seems to regard the building of a new line of railway in something of the same way as buying a new hat, as an individual piece of extravagance which can or cannot be committed and which stands by itself. This is not at all the case with railways. A so-called new line is really an extension of or connection between existing lines. It is often required for the development of existing lines and means increased revenue and increased traffic.

"Of the actual construction which we have in hand at present there are six lines, which I may describe as minor projects. On these we propose to spend in all a sum of between 15 to 16 lakhs only. I need not describe these projects in detail, but I should like to point out that if we fail to incur this expenditure during 1915-16, not only shall we incur a very substantial loss of revenue due to failure to open these lines as early as we might, but hereafter when construction is resumed—for if we spend less than is proposed, work will have to be shut down,—we shall have to incur very considerable unnecessary expenditure in making good the damage caused by weather in the intervening period. Excluding the Hardinge Bridge, which has practically ceased to make a call upon our resources, we have in hand four projects, which I may describe as major projects. A word in regard to each of these is perhaps desirable. They are the four projects to which the Hon'ble Member referred. The Southern Shan States Railway has now been practically completed for the 72 miles between Thazi, the junction station, and Aungban, which is perhaps best described as a point on the map, for there is there neither a town nor a village worth considering so far as railway traffic is concerned. The Hon'ble Members from Burma, should they care to intervene in the debate, will be able to inform the Hon'ble proposer of the resolution of the state of feeling in Burma regarding the proposed further extension of this line. I was myself in Burma last year, and it was most strongly pressed on me by the commercial community there. I am not in a position to say anything definite on the subject of the extension at present, but I am quite sure we should have to meet very strong criticism and opposition from Burma if we were to drop our proposal to reserve funds for this project. Two other large projects—the Burdwan Howrah Chord and the Bombay Harbour Branch extension—though they are new railways, fall within the category of works of open line improvement, since each of them is designed primarily for the relief of congestion on existing lines Each is both an important and an expensive project on which work is at present in full swing, and we cannot give less than the allotment proposed without involving eventually additional outlay on establishment and so forth, by prolonging the period of construction. The last of these four projects is the Itarsi-Nagpur Railway with a branch to the Pench Valley. This project has already been under construction for over six years, and the section from Nagpur to Amla is not yet half completed. No one, I am sure, knows better than the Hon'ble proposer himself, the strong feeling which exists in favour of this railway being completed in his Province, and I am sure that neither he nor Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis would wish to see this project discontinued. There remains a great deal of work to be done including heavy earth work and tunnelling, and the delay in tackling it has, as the Hon'ble proposer of the motion probably knows better than most of us, been a cause of very great complaint in the Central Provinces. After carefully considering the matter we have come to the conclusion that it is not worth while taking up this work piecemeal, but that the time has come when a special effort should be made to get this important line open for traffic throughout. As I have said, it has already been six years under construction and if we give money in driblets the total period of construction may well extend to ten years with a very large loss of revenue on the outlay already incurred. A full allotment is I hold extremely desirable, in fact almost a necessity, for this particular line.

"We have also proposed to reserve funds for three new projects. The first of these—the Vishnupur-Santragachi Chord—has not yet been sanctioned by the Secretary of State, but it has already been recognised as a most important work on account of the relief it will afford to the Bengal Nagpur Railway Company's main line between Calcutta and the coal-fields. If the commencement of work is postponed until the end of the war the opening of the line for traffic will be considerably delayed. Unless we begin work at once all hope that the Bengal Nagpur Railway will be relieved in this way before the next boom occurs must be abandoned.

"The Hon'ble Members from the Madras Presidency would I am sure strenuously support our action in reserving funds for the construction of the Panruti-Trichinopoly Railway. The delay in the commencement of work on this project has been a chronic cause of complaint for the best part of two decades. We hope, though the matter is still under discussion, to be able to commence work during the forthcoming year, and it would be very short-sighted if we were to fail to take advantage of this opportunity.

"The only other new project is a comparatively small one—the proposed Dholka-Dandhuka Railway. It is in fact but part of a larger project for a railway from Ranpur to Dholka of which the Ranpur-Dandhuka section will be constructed at the expense of the Bhavnagar Durbar. We are under agreement with His Highness and the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company to undertake the construction of the two sections simultaneously and unless we reserve funds for commencing work upon the British section we shall run the risk of failing to carry out our part.

"In the circumstances which I have explained, I submit to the Council that it would be most inexpedient to fail to proceed with the construction of these new railways. Apart from the particular considerations which I have placed before the Council, we have to look forward to a great revival of trade when the war is over. And there is the question of employment in India. At the present moment it is very undesirable that we should do anything to lead to greater unemployment than must inevitably be the result of the war. That to my mind is a very strong additional reason for carrying out these works."

The Hon'ble Mr. Ghuznavi:—"Sir, I have great sympathy with the object which it is desired to obtain by the resolution moved by my friend, namely, that more money may be allotted to the Provincial Governments for the development of education and sanitation. While I yield to none in my desire that considerably more money should be spent by the State in furtherance of education and sanitation than is being done at present, while I consider the claims of Education and Sanitation to be most supreme, while I am of opinion that from the point of view of the people of this country nothing is more urgently required than education and sanitation, I am afraid I cannot see eye to eye with my friend in regard to the means which he proposes to be employed for the desired end in this instance. It is true that malaria is increasing in virulence year after year. Certain portions of Bengal which were, comparatively speaking, free from malaria have suffered untold miseries owing to this scourge this year, and although we are nearly coming to the end of the cold weather, malaria has not abated to any appreciable extent in the major portion of East Bengal.

"It is also true that education must be the future watchword of our country. Our greatest public man, who has just passed away, made that his principal cry, and I entirely share his view that primary education must gradually be made free and, if possible, compulsory. It was with intense satisfaction that we in Bengal hailed the gracious announcement made by His Excellency only last Saturday at the Convocation meeting that the Government of India were going to grant ten lakhs of rupees to the Calcutta University. Therefore I should personally welcome any proposition that may help us to obtain more and more money for the cause of Education.

"In this instance, however, my friend proposes that the allotment for Railways in the coming year be reduced by fifty lakhs. Now there is no question that of all our wants, the cause of Sanitation takes precedence, for it is only natural that the requirements of our health must receive our first consideration, and the increasing mortality due to malaria and other diseases due to insanitary conditions and particularly the want of pure drinking water must be checked. Next to this certainly comes the claim of Education of the right sort without the immediate and increasing development of which no hopes for the betterment of this country can be entertained But immediately after this, I am inclined to advocate the cause of Irrigation and Railways. Our country is very badly served as regards railways. In some parts, especially in Bengal, our great waterways are gradually being silted up. Communications in the interior are extremely difficult, and in a great many they do not exist at all. Besides, I am strongly of opinion that railways carry in their wake a kind of Education and Progress. My friend the Hon'ble Finance Minister has already effected a very large curtailment with regard to railway expenditure for the coming year while he has maintained the entire amount, namely, one million one hundred thousand pounds, which would be required for the purpose of irrigation as advised by the Public Works Department, he has cut down railway expenditure by one-third of the total amount. Where originally 12 millions were provided he has cut them down to 8 millions. Therefore, a further reduction seems hardly to be possible and is likely to impede the working of our railways

"I had the extreme pleasure the other day of witnessing the opening ceremony of the Hardinge Bridge on the Lower Ganges at Sara, which is one of the greatest Engineering works in the world. Although this has, during the past years, made a heavy call upon our resources, now that it is completed, it will no doubt give a great impetus to trade and commerce. Expenditure in irrigation and railways is never wasted, for railways and irrigation are always paying concerns. The total interest charges on our public debt amounted to some 9½ millions in the year 1913-14, while our railways and irrigation works in the same year yielded us a return of 15½ millions. Thus, there was still left some 6 millions of clear revenue from these great undertakings. In spite of this, however, if my Hon'ble friend the Finance Minister had not already proposed to make a sober curtailment of 4 millions in our railway expenditure, I would have been very glad to have supported a motion in favour of a reduction in the allotment for railways. Under the careful and wise guidance of my friend who is unfortunately absent to-day, I mean the Hon'ble Sir Henry Burt, the present head of the Railway Board, I have no doubt that our railways have a great future before them. The cause of Education and Sanitation are certainly paramount, but I am sure there are other means and ways whereby more money can be found for the furtherance of these objects and I shall be glad to offer my humble suggestions on another occasion."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Manindra Chandra Nandi:—"Sir, I beg to support this resolution. I think the Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy has made out a good case for reducing the allotment for railways in the coming year by rupees fifty lakhs and allotting that amount to Provincial Governments for the development of Education and Sanitation. Sir, it is true that in view of the strain caused by the war the allotment for railways for the forthcoming year has been reduced from 12 to 8 millions sterling, but the fifty lakhs mentioned in the resolution is intended for the construction of new lines for which there is no urgency and which may well be put off for some time. The Government have always had at heart the promotion of Education and Sanitation and this principle may be well affirmed by the Government accepting the resolution moved by my Hon'ble friend."

The Hon'ble Mr. Marshall Reid:—"Sir, I entirely sympathise with my Hon'ble friend in his desire that education should progress, and I think he will also appreciate our desire that railway and other developments should also progress. I think we must realise that this Budget is essentially a business one, and there is no room for a great deal of sentiment in it; I think probably it is the most businesslike Budget which has ever been presented to this Council. We have all had to realise that the Finance Minister's first duty has been to cut down expenditure in every way. We have our own particular fancies in the way of education, railways and other things, but we have all had to realise that we must accept a great deal less than we asked for and a very great deal less than we could usually expect to get In reducing the railway grant from 12 millions to 8 millions, I think my Hon'ble friend should realise that the reduction is one-third or 33 per cent. It has been pointed out frequently that 12 millions was some years ago considered to be the minimum on which the railways could work in this country. My own opinion is that we should require now, to go ahead properly and to maintain the railways, something more like 15 or 16 millions. Sir, seeing that we have agreed, and cheerfully agreed, to accept, under present conditions, a sum of 8 millions, which is about half of what we consider is the least we ought to have, I think that those whose particular province is education should be well pleased that they have got almost as large a grant as they have ever got before. In saying that we willingly accept this grant of 8 millions for railways, we realise that it is the very least by which existing railways can be kept up to any state of efficiency; and if railways do not progress, they must go back. It must also be borne in mind that there are a large number of unproductive works in this country now on which enormous sums have been spent. Until they become productive, the country is suffering severe losses, and I know well that the Finance Minister in framing this Budget has borne in mind the urgent necessity of bringing these works to a productive stage. I therefore regret that, though I sympathise entirely with my Hon'ble friend's desire that education should be well supported, I cannot support his proposition."

[8TH MARCH, 1915.] [Sir William Meyer.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer:—"Sir, this resolution is, strictly speaking, not in order at all at this stage of the discussion, with reference to No. 3(2) of the Rules which regulate our discussion of the Financial Statement, since the resolution does not specifically refer to any additional grant to Local Governments proposed or mentioned in the Financial Statement or in the Secretary's supplementary Memorandum. Since, however, it is the only resolution that has been put forward at this first stage, we have decided not to challenge it; but this must not be taken as a precedent for the future.

"Well, the Hon'ble Mover made it clear that what he desires is to cut out the whole of the 50 lakhs allotted for new lines in the coming year's railway programme and present this amount to the Provinces for further expenditure on education and sanitation.

"Taking first the effect of this proposal on our modest railway programme, I need not add much to the remarks already made by the Hon'ble Commerce Member and by my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Marshall Reid. I may once more remind the Council that our proposed railway programme of 8 millions means a very drastic curtailment, a curtailment of one-third, from what has been accepted for the last two years as the standard. It is also nearly two million less than the expenditure in 1912-13. A large amount of the railway outlay is spent in India and, as the Hon'ble Mr. Clark has brought out, further restriction of this amount beyond what we have already proposed will reduce the demand for labour which, in the present circumstances, it is desirable to interfere with as little as possible. To make a further curtailment by wiping out the whole of such small provision as we have been able to make for new lines, I regard as absolutely inadmissible As I pointed out in my Budget speech last year, we must not regard the economic benefits to the community which the Government are able to bestow as confined to education and sanitation, valuable as these are.

"The people are equally benefited, as I then said, by an extension of railway facilities, which expands trade, mitigates the effects of famine or scarcity, and adds to the personal convenience of Indian travellers. I do not in the least undervalue the benefits of education and sanitation, which press so upon the mind of the Hon'ble Mover, but we must try and hold the scales more even than he proposes.

"Then, I would draw attention, as the Hon'ble Mr. Ghuznavi has already done, to what I said in paragraph 98 of my recent speech introducing the Financial Statement now under discussion As I there brought out, our capital outlay on Railways and Irrigation is in ordinary circumstances of so productive a character that it yields us a very large balance—in 1913-14 it amounted to some six million pounds—to meet ordinary general charges after paying all the expenses connected with our debt. But for this source of income, I would ask the Hon'ble Mover to remember, the Government of India could not have embarked on the large schemes of education and sanitation that have distinguished recent years. I hold that it is a most short-sighted policy to discount future benefits of a similar character by an unnecessary curtailment of beneficient capital outlay. My Hon'ble friend, for a little gain to education and sanitation at present, is proposing to throw away possibilities of much larger gain in the future.

"The Hon'ble Mover also quoted some remarks of mine as to the small percentage of profits on railways. I do not withdraw a word of what I said in those remarks. It is my duty to look at both sides of every case, and I pointed out that althongh our profits are large—millions of pounds—they are small as compared with the capital charges outstanding, which will soon amount to about 368 million pounds. That shows, as I have always said, the necessity for caution,—that is, to be quite sure that works will be productive—or as sure as we can be—before we start upon them. But because, in the abnormal circumstances of the present year, the percentage of profit on railways taken to the whole sum outstanding is only ·53 per cent after meeting interest charges, and because in 1915-16 we estimate it only at ·32 per cent, the Hon'ble Member treats these as despicable quantities. He took these figures from the table in paragraph 77 of my recent Budget speech. I would like to draw his attention to the figures which immediately precede them. He will see that, even on these small percentages, the net profit on railways, after meeting all working and interest charges, is expected to be £1,914,000 in 1914-15, and £1,179,000 in 1915-1916. These despicable figures (as the Hon'ble Mover seems to hold them) come together to over 3 million pounds. Without those 3 million pounds my Hon'ble friend would have had to face the necessity of fresh taxes. It is the railway profit, of which he is scornful, which has stood between the country and increased taxation.

[Sir William Meyer.] [8TH MARCH, 1915.]

"I now come to the effect of the resolution on education and sanitation outlay. What the Hon'ble Mover desires is to expand the million pounds, by which we propose to allow the Local Governments to exceed their current revenues in 1915-16, by another ⅓ million pounds. The financial effect of this proposal would be not merely to add to our Imperial revenue deficit, but to diminish our cash balances and to increase pro tanto the amount of next year's borrowings on account of the unproductive debt, the productive borrowing being decreased in like proportion. From a financial point of view this is a most unsound proposal. As I indicated in the concluding part of my recent Budget speech, our present wholly satisfactory financial position has been built up by the wise caution of our predecessors, and although the circumstances now existing have justified us, for this year and the next, in having recourse to unproductive borrowing rather than increased taxation, I am not prepared to add to such borrowing more than is necessary. Nor is there any reason for overriding this general proposition in order to buttress expenditure on education and sanitation.

"The Hon'ble Mover spoke as if the financial position in the coming year was such as to involve disastrous stoppage of educational and sanitary projects and what not I will just give a few figures to rebut that. Taking the total outlay on education and sanitation financed from grants given by the Government of India, including the expenditure connected therewith under the Civil Works head—in 1913-14, the aggregate expenditure amounts to 257 lakhs; in 1914-15 (according to the Revised Estimate) to 280 lakhs; in 1915-16 (according to the Budget) to 224 lakhs, to which we must now add 10 lakhs on account of the grant to hostels recently announced by His Excellency the Viceroy. Well, there is a diminished outlay no doubt in 1915-16 as compared with 1914-15; but it is not nearly as much as the diminished outlay on railways. Moreover, these figures take only the special grants into account. If we look at the total Provincial expenditure on education, what do we find? The Budget provision for 1915-16 is £3,198,000 actually £100,000 more than the Revised Estimate for 1914-15 and a little more, too, than the actuals of 1913-1914—£3,056,000. Under 'Medical' again, we have for 1913-1914 (in round figures) £1,200,000; for 1914-1915 (Revised Estimate) £1,349,000; for 1915-1916 £1,299,000—a little falling off, but not much. To be quite fair I must admit that the large falling off in the Civil Works grants to which I referred in my Budget speech will probably to some extent affect Education and Sanitation buildings. But taking all the figures together, the diminished outlay under these two great heads of expenditure is trifling compared to the reduced provision that has been made under Railways; and with this war upon us and the possibility of its continuing for a long period, we cannot undertake to keep outlay on Education and Sanitation fully up to the specially high standard attained in 1914-1915 and 1913-1914. We do not go back on our previous policy. We must, however, move somewhat more slowly: there must be a little stoppage of the speed here, as under other heads. I cannot therefore accept the resolution before the Council. My Hon'ble friend the Mover must not however be discouraged: when my Hon'ble Colleague, the Member for Commerce and Industry, next lays proposals before me for new railways in the Central Provinces, it will be my duty to bear in mind that the elected Members from those Provinces do not want those railways."

[8TH MARCH, 1915.] [Mr. Abbott; Mr. Dadabhoy.]

The Hon'ble Mr. Abbott:—"Sir, I beg to oppose any reduction in the construction of railways in India or Burma."

The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy:—"Sir, I wish to express my gratitude to my non-official colleagues for the support they have given to my resolution. As I expected, from official quarters I have not received the same measure of support. Nor did I anticipate it. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Marshall Reid has rightly pointed to the most businesslike Budget presented by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister. Nobody disputes the excellence of the Budget, and I shall have another opportunity in common with the other Hon'ble Members, at the proper time, to pay my tribute of admiration and gratitude for the generally very well-intentioned Budget which has been framed. But the only issue before the Council, and a very important issue it is, is entirely different; and I regret to say that I still remain unconvinced after what I have heard from the Hon'ble the Finance Minister and my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Clark It is a mistake to suppose that non-official members of this Council do not attach importance to the expansion of the railway programme. That is not the point at all. I have been in this Council for several years; I have made it clear in this Council and outside this Council that the railway programme should be supported; but the point which claims our attention at this particular juncture is the propriety, the wisdom, the expediency of allocating a large sum of money for it in a lean year when a heavy deficit is expected. I share the view which the representative of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce entertains, in common with some other members, as regards the general utility of the Railway programme But the question is, are we justified, are we entitled to use the tax-payers' money in the further expansion of railway programme in a year of deficit? I say, Sir, that strategic railways, railways that are required for political purposes, are absolutely necessary, and must be constructed at all cost, even when our finances do not permit of it; I go further and say that protective railways, railways that are required for the mitigation of famine and find suitable employment in times of famine, should also be undertaken. But, Sir, protective railways as well as strategic railways and railways that are required for political purposes stand on an entirely different footing from railways that are required for the promotion of trade and commerce. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister has spoken about the profits of our railways, and has pointed out that, but for these profits on railways, the necessity for additional taxation would have been self-evident. But when one applies his attention to the enormous capital that has been laid out in building railway lines in India, the profits after paying interest are absolutely small and do not appeal to our consideration. I submit I should not be misunderstood. I have not run down railways; I am a cautious supporter of railways, and all that I have stated is that the Government have not made out a case for spending this year 50 lakhs of rupees on the construction of new railways. Sir William Meyer says that we have reduced our expenditure from 12 crores to 8 crores,—a very drastic curtailment. I note further that the bulk of these 8 crores will be spent on renewals and repairs, and a very small percentage of it will be spent in the construction of new railways. But all this is inconclusive. Reference was made to the Nagpur-Itarsi railway. In my speech I did not at all allude to the expenditure under that head being dropped for the reason that that scheme had been shelved for a period of three years after the construction had been started It is, therefore, not surprising that it should find a place in the next year's railway programme. But I must submit that there has been no explanation about the other railways forthcoming. I was very anxiously expecting an explanation of some sort as regards the urgency of these three new lines, which are now contemplated to be constructed, and neither the Finance Minister nor Mr. Clark has thrown any light on the absolute necessity of spending money this year on those lines. It has not been at all pointed out that the postponement of this programme for a year would cause any serious inconvenience either to the State or to the country. Sir William Meyer, with his characteristic force, has also stated that he will bear in mind when a suitable opportunity comes, about the construction of railways in the Central Provinces, and that he would then remind me of my utterances to-day. I am prepared. I may say that I am not a man likely to be discouraged by that. These discussions have their moral effect, and I have no doubt that, though the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has not accepted my resolution to-day, it will have a great deal of effect in the future, and I feel confident that in the succeeding year's budget we shall have a larger sum under the heads of Sanitation and Education. Sir, I know the ultimate fate of my resolution. It is not likely to be passed, but I feel the moral importance of it; and though I do not press for a division, I still request you, Sir, to put it to the vote."

The resolution was put and rejected.

RESOLUTION RE A CHIEF COURT FOR THE CENTRAL PROVINCES.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy :— "Sir, I beg to move—

"That this Council recommends the Governor General in Council that the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of the Central Provinces be replaced by a Chief Court consisting of five Judges or more"

"This is a resolution which affects directly the judicial machinery of the Central Provinces and Berar, and consequently the people of that province; but it has an indirect, and perchance not an inconsiderable, influence upon the good-will and contentment of India as a whole. Impartial administration of justice, as has more than once been observed, is the bed-rock of British Indian Administration. Anything therefore which improves the judicial administration of any part of India has more than a local interest, and must engage the favourable consideration of this Council.

"Sir, the Central Provinces form one of the group of four provinces which under the Parliamentary Act of 1854 (17 and 18 Vict., C. 77) are administered and managed by His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India through Chief Commissioners,—the other three being Oudh, Assam and the North-West Frontier Province The oldest of these, Oudh, formed in 1856, does not now retain its former character, and since 1902 has lost its entity in the United Provinces. In point of time the Central Provinces come next after Oudh, and take precedence of Assam and the North-West Frontier Province, being formed in 1861, while Assam became a separate administrative unit in 1874 and the North-West Frontier Province was formed in 1901. With the exception of Assam, which is under the jurisdiction and control of the Calcutta High Court, the judicial machinery in all these provinces is practically identical. Perhaps the absence of a sufficiently large number of civil and criminal actions in Assam in the beginning, the presence in it of a fairly large number of resident Europeans, and the fact of its having formed a part of Bengal before 1874, justified the inclusion of the province within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Calcutta High Court. The history of early British rule in Oudh possibly explains why it was not placed under the jurisdiction of the High Court at Agra. The amalgamation of the Punjab districts of Hazara, Peshawar and Kohat and the Trans-Indus portions of Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan with areas like Dir, Swat and Chitral perhaps necessitated their exclusion from the jurisdiction of the Punjab Chief Court. But speculation on these points is useless for our present purposes. The only point I request Hon'ble Members to note is that, owing to the difference in local conditions, the analogy of Oudh and the North-West Frontier Province does not provide an answer to the plea for a Chief Court in the Central Provinces and Berar.

[8TH MARCH, 1915.] [Mr. Dadabhoy.]

"Sir, whatever may have been the reason for its existence in the past, the Judicial Commissioner's Court is unsuited to the present condition of the Central Provinces and Berar. Socially, economically and politically the development of the province has been great indeed. Notwithstanding the ravages of plague and famine, the population has grown from 10,879,384 in 1871 to 16,033,310 in 1911, or an improvement of nearly 50 per cent and a substantial improvement upon the figure for 1891 (14,761,534). Making allowance for differences due to territorial changes and taking the two units—the Central Provinces and Berar—separately, the same increase in numbers is noticeable. The European population, exclusive of Anglo-Indians, was over 7,000, and the Anglo-Indians numbered about 3,500. The educational progress of the province—high, secondary and primary—has also been satisfactory. According to the last Census Report—

'The number of matriculates and of scholars undergoing collegiate education has more than doubled since 1901 and the number of those who have attained their degree has increased in the same proportion. The male scholars in the secondary schools are nearly four times as many, and the female scholars nearly eight times as many as in 1901, while the boys studying in primary schools are now 227,000 instead of 149,000 in 1901 and the girls 16,000 as against 10,000. The number of educational institutions has increased by 13 per cent.'

"According to the statistics of the Education Department, in 1911 there were 3,865 institutions as against 3,430 of 1901 and 3,129 of 1891, and the scholars were 297,620 as against 174,091 of 1901 and 161,840 of 1891. There were in the same year over 3,000 lawyers of all kinds; 2,599 medical practitioners of all kinds; 9,046 compounders, midwives, vaccinators, etc.; 12,919 professors and teachers of all kinds and clerks, etc., connected with education; 3,317 architects, surveyors, etc.; and over 17,000 Government servants in the province, and the numbers are progressive. The Judicial Administration Report for 1913 shows that on 1st January, 1914, barristers practising in the Central Provinces and Berar numbered 62, other advocates 70, and pleaders of all grades 559. In 1911 the total number of newspapers etc., published in the province was 27 with an aggregate circulation of 10,627. Our industrial activity during the past few years has been even more marked, and in the same year 1911 we had 52 mines and quarries employing 15,590 persons and 255 factories employing 41,028 persons. New mines have been worked and new factories have been started since then. We have, besides, the home industries which give employment to large numbers of people. Communications, too, have improved a good deal in the Central Provinces and Berar, and the railways have had a distinctly stimulating effect upon the economic condition and the public spirit of the people. It would be a wonder if this all-round progress had not expanded their political and administrative horizon. As a matter of fact, the local public now evince far greater interest in the working of local bodies and the general administration than they have ever done before, and there are few administrative acts which escape public criticism.

"Sir, it can well be imagined that such a progressive population would demand better and more up-to-date arrangements for the administration of the province, and it has thus come to pass that the existing administrative machinery fails to satisfy them. But I confine my attention here to the judicial machinery, and Hon'ble Members will please note that large sections of the people want the whole judiciary to be placed on a sounder and more independent footing, and an improved Court of Final Appeal. The main point to bear in mind in this connection is that, not only should justice as between man and man be dispensed impartially and with due regard to law and precedent, but that the public should feel that justice is so dispensed. The confidence of the public is a great, and perhaps the determining, factor in the case. Now, judged by this test, the Judicial Commissioner's Court falls below the ideal. Not that the Judges are wanting in the performance of their arduous routine work, but that the whole constitution is old and antiquated, and opposed to progressive ideas, and does not ensure to the Court that measure of freedom from executive control which is essential for thorough judicial independence. I do not mean to suggest that the Executive Government has ever interfered with the judicial independence of the Judges; what I do suggest and emphasize is that the system is bad and open to criticism, and the very best Judges would unconsciously and unwittingly act under some sort of restraint.

"Sir, down to the 26th October, 1896, we had only one court, i.e., the Court of the Judicial Commissioner. Under the law he owed, as he owes now, his appointment to the Governor General in Council. But since then we are having Additional Judicial Commissioner after Additional Judicial Commissioner until we have come to have three of them, two permanent and one temporary but who will shortly be made permanent; and all these Judges of the highest Court of Appeal are appointed by the Local Government. This would not be the case in a Chief Court, and that is a solid gain. The appointment, again, of the Registrar of the Judicial Commissioner's Court lies in the hands of the Local Government. It is not so in a Chief Court, where every officer holds office directly under the Hon'ble Judges. The Registrar, be it noted, has to discharge important functions in relation to the bar and the subordinate judiciary of the province, and it is advisable that his appointment should be in the gift of the Chief Judge instead of the Local Government.

"Sir, the Judicial Commissioner is almost always a civilian, whereas in a Chief Court the office of Chief Judge is generally held by a barrister. Then, of the four judges we now have in the Judicial Commissioner's Court at Nagpur, three are members of the Civil Service, and one only is a barrister. There is no limit to the extent to which the Bench may be recruited from the Civil Service. The case would be different in a Chief Court, and at least two of the judges would be lawyers. This difference, along with the difference in the qualifications of the Chief Judge of a Chief Court, would constitute a real gain to the cause of judicial administration. Without any disparagement to the high capabilities of the members of the Civil Service, it may be stated that lawyer judges as a rule prove more successful and more satisfactory on the Bench than civilian judges. Two strong reasons contribute to this result. In the first place, civilians lack the requisite legal training; and in the next place, the best, the most capable among civilians prefers the Executive Service. The Judicial Service is thus recruited mostly from civilians who do not give promise of brilliance in the sister service. There are of course many honourable exceptions, but this is the general rule. The evil is aggravated in the Central Provinces and Berar by the fact that the incentive of a healthy competition such as the presence on the Bench of a reasonable number of lawyer judges, who may sometimes be imported from other provinces in the case of a Chief Court, would ensure, is almost entirely absent. It is not in the highest Court of Appeal alone that the unfortunate results of this absence of all impetus to legal study and legal scholarship manifest themselves, but the practical limitation of recruitment to civil servants within the province makes all civilian judges in the districts indifferent to the higher study of law. The fact that only a few civilians serve in the districts as judges—nine in all—and have at least three prize appointments open to them, ensures the ultimate promotion of almost all of them to the Judicial Commissioner's Court. Moreover, the presence of a civilian judge at the top dispels all fears of supersession of the senior members of the Service on the occasion of a new appointment. Promotion to the Judicial Commissioner's Court thus has hardly to be earned by distinguished service in the subordinate ranks, but comes in the majority of cases as a matter of course. The quality of the work of the Chief Appellate Court must in such circumstances suffer. And the further fact, that at Nagpur the Bar, consisting of about 25 barristers and over 80 pleaders including advocates, is very strong, can only contribute to unsatisfactory results. A strong Bar without an equally strong, if not stronger, Bench is detrimental to the interests of justice; and a good deal of the proverbial 'law's delay' is attributable to such an unequal combination. The increase in the number of appeals involving complicated questions of the lex loci and commercial law, is another strong reason for liberalising the Court with a larger admission of trained lawyers as judges. The Central Provinces and Berar do not stand where they were in 1873, when the Judicial Commissioner's Court was established, and simple bond and rent suits have lost in importance before the suits of a complicated nature which a growing civilisation and industrial expansion have brought on.

"Sir, if I have so far based my arguments for a Chief Court upon the present unsatisfactory constitution of the Judicial Commissioner's Court, it is not for lack of other solid grounds. The limited powers of the Judicial Commissioner's Court are a source of great public inconvenience and public dissatisfaction. The Court has no jurisdiction in criminal proceedings against European British subjects and persons jointly charged with European British subjects, and all decrees nisi in divorce cases of the Subordinate Courts must be made absolute by the Bombay High Court. With a fairly large and growing European population in the province, both these limitations must cause public inconvenience; and the Hon'ble Home Member, whose knowledge of the province is unique, must know full well that a number of such cases which the Judicial Commissioner's Court is not competent to try have annually to be carried to the Bombay High Court for disposal. This arrangement, however necessary or satisfactory forty years ago, cannot fail to cause public dissatisfaction in these days of progressive enlightenment in the Central Provinces and Berar. The establishment of a Chief Court at Nagpur will remove all the present difficulties.

"Sir, it is a matter for consideration also that the growing sense of importance of the provincial people requires that a Chief Court should be established at Nagpur. The province has now got a Legislative Council, and no reason is apparent why a Chief Court, with a fixed minimum of Lawyer Judges and a Barrister as Chief Judge, which will undoubtedly command greater public confidence, should not replace the present Judicial Commissioner's Court. Besides, it is not consonant to the public ideas of dignity that lawyers, who by reason of their connection with the Local Legislative Council are Honourables, should appear in the highest Court before Judges who, so long as they are Judicial Commissioners, are not entitled to claim that distinction. This is a matter of sentiment, it is true, but sentiment has its importance in certain circumstances.

"Sir, the above reasons will have made it clear to Hon'ble members that the establishment of a Chief Court in the Central Provinces is a matter of necessity, and should engage the serious attention of Government. Now a few words about the number of Judges. I suggest that we should start with five, two of whom at least should be lawyers We have at present four, one of whom is a Barrister. The adoption of my proposal will therefore necessitate the appointment of another practising lawyer as Judge. The congested state of the Judicial Commissioner's file will supply ample justification for my suggestion. With years the business of the Court has increased enormously. In 1873 we started with 91 civil appeals, 17 civil rules, 246 miscellaneous appeals, 87 criminal appeals and 65 criminal revision cases; or a total of 354 civil cases and 150 criminal cases, and of this only 7 second appeals and 1 civil rule remained undisposed of at the end of the year. By 1895 the volume of business had outgrown the capacity of the Court. Of the total of 770 civil cases and 676 criminal cases so many as 543 civil cases and 12 criminal cases were pending hearing. In October, 1896, therefore an Additional Judicial Commissioner was appointed, who held office for five months. In March, 1904, again one Additional Commissioner was appointed, and on 1st September, 1905, a second Additional Judicial Commissioner was added. In 1910, there were altogether 1535 cases of a civil nature, and 741 cases of a criminal nature, and 559 of the former and 47 of the latter group of cases remained undisposed of at the end of that year. In 1911, out of 1,599 civil cases and 787 criminal cases before the Court, 777 civil and 47 criminal cases were carried over to 1912; and in 1913, the institutions of civil appeals alone rose to 1,321 against 1,253 in 1912, and 1,040 in 1911. The number of civil motions also increased from 396 in 1912 to 479 in 1913. The last Judicial Administration Report remarks:—

litigation, it will be impossible for the work to be done and the appointment of the fourth Judge originally sanctioned for one year a second year, will have to be made permanent'.

"But I am almost certain that the pending file cannot be kept down without detriment to the quality of the work unless there are at least five Judges. The Judicial Commissioner's time is partially taken up by heavy administrative work and by the trial of important original cases under the Probate and Administration Act. It is therefore essentially necessary that the Chief Court I recommend should have a minimum of five Judges. Provision must be made for normal growth in the volume of business.

"Sir, the question of cost now remains to be discussed, and in this connection three points arise for consideration, viz.—(1) what will be the additional cost required; (2) whether such additional cost should be incurred; and (3) whether the present is the most opportune time when the additional cost should be sanctioned by Government. Nothing definite can be said on the first point without a detailed examination of the extra needs of the suggested Chief Court. The increased salary of the Judges will undoubtedly involve some extra expenditure. The present rate of salary of the Judges of the Judicial Commissioner's Court is Rs. 3,000 a month with Rs. 500 more for the Judicial Commissioner, while a Chief Court Judgeship would probably carry a monthly salary of Rs. 4,000, with perhaps a thousand more for the Chief Judge. With a strength of five Judges, the change would thus entail an additional expenditure of Rs. 8,500 a month. This should be reduced by Rs. 3,000, the amount that will have to be spent sooner or later on a fourth Additional Judicial Commissioner, whether permanent or temporary. The increased expenditure thus would be Rs. 5,500 a month. It is difficult to estimate the cost of the extra ministerial establishment, but one thing is certain that we have already a fairly strong staff, which will have to be further strengthened immediately in consequence both of increased volume of business and the permanent retention of the third Additional Judicial Commissioner; and that should enable us to introduce the reform at a far less cost than it has been found practicable in other provinces. In the Punjab there was only one Judicial Commissioner when the Chief Court with two Judges was established. The extra monthly cost found necessary there for a more efficient ministerial staff was Rs. 1,363, as per Proceedings of the Government of India in the Financial Department, No. 977 of 28th February, 1866, and the letter of the Government of India, Home Department, to the Punjab Government, No. 400 of 28th April, 1866. In the Central Provinces the additional cost under this head should be much less. Roughly speaking, the total additional expenditure may be put at Rs. 10,000 a month on the assumption that a fourth Additional Judicial Commissioner will not be necessary, and Rs. 7,000 on the contrary supposition; or, with allowance for contingencies, say a lakh and a quarter a year at the outside This sum is not particularly burdensome. Even if it were, it would be well worth spending for the improvement of the judicial administration of the province.

"The decision on the second point does not admit of doubt. As a general proposition, all expenditure for improved administration of justice is justifiable. But it is a question certainly if Government should entertain proposals of increased expenditure at this crisis, especially when, according to the Financial Statement presented by the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer, the budgetted provincial deficit in 1915-16 of Rs. 5,65,000 will have to be made good by reducing the closing balance to Rs. 89,35,000 as against Rs. 95,00,000 in 1914-15 and Rs. 1,09,53,278 in 1913-14. My reason for pressing this reform now is twofold. Firstly, war or no war the administration must proceed on progressive lines; and secondly, if Government decides to establish a Chief Court in the Central Provinces, the scheme would not in all probability be introduced in the course of the year. So many preliminaries have to be got through. The additional expenditure will therefore be incurred in 1916-17, by which time it is expected the war will be over and normal conditions will be restored. Moreover, the estimated provincial deficit is abnormal in that increased expenditure synchronizes with a falling off in revenue. The provincial revenue is bound to recover with the restoration of normal conditions, and the Supreme Government will be in a better position to strengthen the provincial resources by a substantial grant. In spite of shortage in revenue from the Courts of Law of the Central Provinces of Rs. 35,000 in 1914-15 ccmpared to the budget estimate and a further estimated loss of Rs. 8,000 in 1915-16, the Provincial Government has budgetted for an additional expenditure of Rs. 1,27,000 in 1915-16 for Courts of Law, over and above the extra Rs 36,000 spent in 1914-15. The whole of this expenditure will presumably be required for giving partial effect to the scheme of reorganization of the subordinate judiciary sanctioned by Government at an estimated annual cost of Rs. 1,90,969-12-0. Now it would be awkward if the improvement in the subordinate judiciary be not correlated by an improvement in the highest Court of Appeal. With better times this Government will surely not hesitate to come to the relief of the Provincial Government, if necessary, for an object so laudable as judicial reform. Besides, the decline in revenue in this particular department is due to temporary causes, and we may fairly count upon an agreeable rebound in the near future. Probably by the time the scheme of reform I press upon the attention of this Council is given effect to the improved state of our finances, both Imperial and Provincial, will reduce the inconvenience of increased expenditure to a minimum. There is thus nothing wrong in our adopting the resolution now.

"Sir, one word more. In the scheme of judicial reform I advocate, it is furthest from my mind to disturb vested interests. There need not be any difficulty. In the Punjab there was none, and the Civilian Judicial Commissioner became the first Chief Judge of the Punjab Chief Court."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis:—"Sir, the Hon'ble Mover has dealt pretty fully and one might say exhaustively with the important aspects of the question now before the Council. His speech will have convinced Hon'ble Members of the necessity of the reform. There is a general desire among the local people for an advance in the machinery for the administration of justice in the Chief Court of the province with a view to cope expeditiously with the increased work on account of the development of the province. We have also to count with the new sense of dignity which they now have. It appears the Local Government has in hand a scheme of reorganization of the subordinate judiciary. I am not aware of the details, but it is hoped it will facilitate in the districts the institution and disposal of civil and criminal cases, both original and appellate. That scheme, however, leaves untouched the Judicial Commissioner's Court It is certainly desirable that the process of reform should reach that Court also and that the status of that Court should be raised. Both the Judicial Commissioner and the Chief Commissioner appear to be equally anxious with the people to make the dispensation of justice in the highest court expeditious and attractive alike. The Bench is to be further strengthened by the addition of a permanent third Additional Judicial Commissioner. A Barrister has also got a place on it. These facts indicate as much the necessity of reform as the determination of the local authorities to carry it through. The whole point for the consideration of Hon'ble Members is, whether the reforms already introduced, go far enough, and whether, instead of this piecemeal reform, an improvement corresponding to what exists in similarly developed provinces elsewhere would not be far better. I have not heard even one complaint about the quality of justice in my province in the Judicial Commissioner's Court, but the complaint in some quarters is that justice is not as expeditious as it ought to be. An increase in the number of Judges and the raising of the dignity of the Court will meet the requirements.

"Besides, every province which has attained to a reasonable degree of progress should be self-contained as regards its judicial administration. The Central Provinces and Berar are not, as the Hon'ble Mover has shown. The great advance the Province has made in every department should entitle it to have a court which would be fully competent to deal with any judicial matter arising within the local limits of its jurisdiction. A Chief Court would be an improvement upon the Judicial Commissioner's Court in this respect.

"At the same time that I support the proposal for the establishment of a Chief Court in the Central Provinces, I must accept the position that the additional expenditure involved should be incurred after the war is over I am glad the Hon'ble Mover has also proceeded upon this assumption.

"With these remarks I beg to support the resolution."

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock:—"Sir, the Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy, by the terms of his resolution desires this Council to state that in its opinion the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of the Central Provinces should be elevated into a Chief Court having the same status as the Chief Court of the Punjab or of Lower Burma, and that the Court so elevated should consist of five Judges. Mr. Dadabhoy is, I think, partly actuated by the very human tendency that we all share of always thinking that something that we have not got is a little better than something we have. And I feel myself exceedingly doubtful whether the mere alteration in the name and status of the Court is going to alter materially the nature of the justice administered by that Court. We have had very many eminent men among the Judges who have presided over that Court, some of whom, I have no doubt the Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy will readily admit, could have occupied with distinction and credit seats on any High Court in India. But, Sir, besides that feeling there is always a healthy provincial patriotism which desires that the institutions of the province shall be raised in status and be made equal to the institutions of other provinces. As an individual no one can accuse me of being at all slow in desiring the progress and development of the Province in which I have spent so many years, and speaking in that individual capacity, I sympathise entirely with what the Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy has said and with the aspirations of the Province that its status may grow as time goes on and as its circumstances develop.

"In point of fact there has been an extraordinary development in the judicial administration of the province, most of which has taken place within the period of my service in India. When I first came to the province, the courts were those of the Judicial Commissioner at the top—a single officer—and under him were the courts of Commissioners, then of Deputy Commissioners, then of Assistant Commissioners, and, at the bottom, the courts of Tehsildars. These courts dispensed the whole of the civil and criminal justice, besides carrying on their revenue and executive functions. Between that time and this no less than six new Courts Acts have been passed in the Imperial Council for developing judicial administration in the Central Provinces. That development has continued up to the present time. The permanent court now consists of a Judicial Commissioner, and two Additional Judicial Commissioners, and a third has been appointed temporarily since 1913. Proposals for turning that third appointment into a permanency are now before the Secretary of State, so that the permanent constitution of the court may in a very short time be expected to be four Judges.

"Mr. Dadabhoy, in order to justify his proposal, has cited some figures regarding pending files in the Judicial Commissioner's Court. Now I do not think it is the experience of any one in India that the pending files of any

[8TH MARCH, 1915.] [Sir Reginald Craddock; Mr. Dadabhoy; The Vice-President.]

High Court are determined by its status. I fancy that if we were to examine the pending files of the various High Courts of India, we might find that, after all, there was something to be said for a Judicial Commissioner's Court in the matter of the disposal of business; so that I do not think that the mere fact that the pending files of the Judicial Commissioner's Court in the Central Provinces are heavy is in itself an argument for increasing the status of that Court. As I have said, the Government of India have always been favourable to the development of judicial administration in the various provinces when the time comes to take each step forward. In the present instance, however, the Local Administration has not, up to the present, put forward a proposal to elevate the Judicial Commissioner's Court into a Chief Court, and, necessarily, from the point of view of the Government of India, the first authority to put forward this proposal should be the Local Administration. There is the question of the volume and complexity of litigation to be considered; there is the question of expense, and there is also the question of local opinion on the subject. All these have to be carefully examined and, so far as the Government of India are concerned, they preserve a perfectly open mind on the case. I hope that my Hon'ble friend Mr. Dadabhoy will be satisfied if the attention of the Local Administration is drawn to his resolution and an opportunity is given to the Local Administration to consult with their officers, with the Judges of the Judicial Commissioner's Court and with non-official opinion. When they have considered that question, if the change is recommended by the Local Administration and a case is considered by the Government of India to have been made out, no doubt the necessary action will be taken; but for the present, the Government of India preserve an open mind on this subject."

The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy:—"Sir, after the very sympathetic reply given by the Hon'ble the Home Member, it is not necessary for me to add anything further to what I have already said in my opening speech. The Hon'ble the Home Member has acknowledged the extraordinary development of the Province during the last few years, to which it is only fair to add, the Hon'ble Member himself has contributed a great deal by his personal exertions. It is only therefore in the fitness of things that that development should be carried a stage further, and that the present Judicial Commissioner's Court should be elevated to the dignity of a Chief Court. The Hon'ble the Home Member has stated that no proposal to this effect has come up from the Local Government or from the Judicial Commissioner. So far as the Judicial Commissioner's Court is concerned, there is a certain amount of delicacy in the matter, and the Judicial Commissioner's Court is not likely to move in the matter. But I am glad that the attention of the Provincial Government will be drawn to my resolution and local official and non-official opinion will be taken on the subject. I can confidently say to the Hon'ble the Home Member that there will be only one answer to that appeal, and that that answer will be 'let us have a Chief Court'."

The Vice-President:—"Does the Hon'ble Member wish to withdraw his resolution?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy:—"Practically the Hon'ble the Home Member has accepted my resolution."

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock:—"No, I have not accepted the resolution at all."

The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy:—"In the circumstances, I think it right to withdraw my resolution."

[The Vice-President.] [8TH MARCH, 1915.]

The Vice-President:—"The resolution is by permission withdrawn."

The Council adjourned to Tuesday, the 9th March, 1915.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 11th March 1915, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. A depression of the winter type entered northwest India on the 6th and was followed by another on the 9th. The combined disturbance gave unusually heavy rainfall over the whole of northwest and central India. At the beginning of the week widespread rain fell in Assam and Bengal.

2. Burma.—There were a few light falls of rain in Tenasserim and the extreme north of the province.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rainfall was nearly general on the 4th in Assam and Bengal, excluding the southeastern districts.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Nearly general rain fell on the 9th and 10th in the west of the Central Provinces, on the 9th in Central India East and on the 10th in the west of the United Provinces.

Northwest India.—There was nearly general rain in north Baluchistan on the 7th and 10th, in south Baluchistan and the North-West Frontier Province on the 9th, in Sind on the 10th, in the Punjab on the 9th and 10th, in east Rajputana on the 8th and over the whole of Rajputana on the 10th. A few falls also occurred in Gujarat.

The Peninsula.—There were only scattered falls of rain, chiefly in the northwestern district.

3. The chief amounts of rain were as follows :—

March 4th—Burdwan 1·78″, Bogra 1·01″ and Masulipatam 1·25″.
„ 8th—Parachinar 0·96″, Aurangabad 0·88″ and Ahmadnagar 0·75″.
„ 9th—Agra 1·36″, Hoshangabad 1·05″, Saugor 1·14″, Panjgur 1·78″, Murree 2·91″, and Simla 0·82″.
„ 10th—Mainpuri 1·26″, Meerut 1·21″, Dehra Dun 1·45″, Mussooree 2·93″, Mukteswar 0·94″, Delhi 2·45″, Hissar 1·10″, and Dwarka 1·00″.

4. The week's rainfall was normal in the United Provinces East and 20 per cent. or more in defect in the Bay Islands, Burma, Bihar and Orissa, Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province, the Central Provinces East, Hyderabad South, Mysore, Madras Southeast and the Madras Deccan. No rain fell in Central India West and the Konkan, but the absence of rain is a normal feature of the weather there at this time of year. In all the remaining divisions rainfall was 20 per cent. or more in excess.

The rainfall from the 4th December to date is 20 per cent. or more in excess in all divisions, except Orissa, Baluchistan and Sind, where it is 20 per cent. or more in defect; and in Assam, Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province, and the Punjab Southwest where it differed from the normal by less than 20 per cent.

Division.	Rainfall data for week ending on 11th March 1915.			Rainfall data from 4th December 1914 to 11th March 1915.			Percentage departure from normal.

NOTICE.

Sale of Andamans timber in 1915.

It is notified for general information that quarterly tenders will be invited during 1915 for shipments of padauk, and of pyinma (Lagerstræmia hypoleuca), a wood somewhat resembling jarool, and of koko or siris (Albizzia Lebbek), in the form of rough-hewn logs or 'squares' to be shipped ordinarily by the Port Blair mail steamer, or as opportunity may offer by other steamers.

It is expected that the following minima quantities will be available during the year:—

Padauk, good and off-coloured	2,600 tons.
Pyinma	500—1,000 „
Koko	500 „

Full particulars can be obtained on application to the Divisional Forest Officer, Andamans, Port Blair.

F. NOYCE,
Under Secretary to the Government of India.

SIMLA;

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

NOTICE.

License to extract and purchase timber from the North and Middle Andaman Islands.

1. Notice is hereby given that the Government of India are prepared to consider tenders for a license to extract and purchase padauk and other timbers from—

(i) The North Andaman with Interview, Bennett, and all other islands North of Austin Strait.

(ii) The Middle Andaman excepting that portion to the west of Yoljig and South of the main line cleared from the junction of the Chara-lung-ta and Bom-lung-ta streams westwards to Mount Oldham and on to the sea.

2. Sites for depots, sawmills, residences, and other purposes essential to the carrying out of the terms of the license will be made available at Pott Cornwallis, Stewart Sound, and Long Island at the discretion of the Chief Commissioner of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

3. Tenders may be submitted for either or both of the above areas. The license will be for 20 years from the 1st January 1916, or such later date within six months of the acceptance of the tender as may be agreed upon, with the option of renewal for another 20 years on terms to be notified by the Government of India hereafter; but those persons whose tenders have been accepted will be permitted to clear land for buildings, and other purposes connected with the license, and to start the erection of such buildings, as from the date on which the agreement is signed and the security money deposited.

4. The fellings will be regulated by the working plans sanctioned, or to be sanctioned, by the Government of India. The two areas mentioned in paragraph 1 above will each be divided into three sub-periodic blocks. Felling and extraction of timber and the payment of royalty thereon must be completed in sub-periodic block I by the end of the first seven years of the license, work being similarly completed in sub-periodic blocks II and III by the end of the 11th and 15th years, respectively. Throughout the period of the agreement the Secretary of State for India in Council will retain the right to extract from the licensed areas timber required for local (other than trade) purposes and for local public works, and in any sub-periodic block on the expiry of the period allotted for the working thereof to issue licenses or otherwise provide for the felling, extraction, and disposal of timber which the licensees have omitted or are not bound to extract.

5. The padauk trees to be felled will be marked previously by the Forest Department, and none but marked trees shall be felled. The first sub-periodic block in each area will be located in the neighbourhood of Stewart Sound.

6. The minimum annual outturn of padauk timber for the first fourteen years after which the present working-plan will be revised, is estimated as follows, but the accuracy of the estimate is not guaranteed :—

(i) From the North Andaman including Interview and Bennett Islands—

1,200 sound trees of and over 9 feet in girth,

1,000 exploitable unsound trees,

which may be expected to yield—

2,100 tons of first class logs.

1,400 tons of second class logs.

2,000 tons of third class logs.

(ii) From the Middle Andaman—

2,400 sound trees of and over 9 feet in girth,

2,000 exploitable unsound trees,

which may be expected to yield—

4,200 tons of first class logs.

2,800 tons of second class logs.

4,000 tons of third class logs.

The outturn for the last six years of the license will be determined by working plans to be drawn up hereafter.

7. In addition the licensees will be permitted to cut, subject to previous marking, should this in the opinion of the Forest Officer be considered desirable, and to such limits as to area and number as may be imposed by the Chief Commissioner of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands from time to time, other species as follows :—

Gurjan over 8 feet in girth, didu and pyinma over 7½ feet in girth, and koko, black hulgam, white chulgam, white bambwe, red bambwe, and taungpein over 6 feet in girth.

8. The timber will, in all cases, be measured in the round log either at the stump or at collecting depots as may be found convenient by the Forest Department. All felled timber will be held to be at the risk of the licensees and to be liable to the payment of royalty which must be paid before removal from the islands or conversion in a sawmill.

9. For the first three years of the license royalty will be payable at the rates agreed on and on the amount of timber felled : but thereafter minima annual royalties will be payable as follows :—

(i) For the North Andaman, Rs. 1,00,000 per annum.

(ii) For the Middle Andaman, Rs. 1,00,000 per annum.

(iii) In case of a combined license for both islands Rs. 2,00,000 per annum.

10. Except with the special permission of the Divisional Forest Officer all padauk trees, sound or unsound, which have been marked by the forest officers as in their opinion worth conversion, must be felled and royalty paid on them.

11. Should the licensees desire to exploit any form of minor produce or any timber other than those species mentioned above they may be permitted to do so on terms to be settled hereafter by the Chief Commissioner of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

12. The licensees will be subject to such restrictions as the Government of India may prescribe to prevent communication between their employés and the convict population in the Andamans.

13. Subject to the general control of the Chief Commissioner of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands the cultivation of field crops solely for the support of the labour force will be permitted free of taxation.

14. Facilities will be provided at Stewart Sound for wireless telegraphy, and as far as may be possible for a weekly steamer or launch connection for postal purposes between this place and Port Blair.

15. Such padauk timber as may be available from departmental working in the areas not included in the first paragraph of this notice, or in sub-periodic blocks in which felling and extraction of timber has been completed by the licensees in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 4 above and as may not be required for local consumption in the islands or for issue to State-worked Railways or other Government departments in India and Burma, will be sold either by public auction or by public tender, provided that the quantity to be so sold annually, commencing from the first of January 1917, shall not exceed 500 tons of squares and 1,000 tons of scantlings. There will be no limit to the quantity of timber other than padauk which may be extracted from the areas under reference, and no restriction as to its disposal.

16. The Inspector-General of Forests, Simla, will answer calls for further information.

17. Tenders must be submitted on forms to be obtained from the Secretary to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture, and must be accompanied by a receipt for the payment into any Government Treasury of a sum of Rs. 1,500 in cash or in Government securities. This deposit will be returned to unsuccessful tenderers, but in the case of persons whose tenders have been accepted will be subject to forfeiture in the event of their failure to execute, within the time specified, the agreement referred to below.

18. All persons whose tenders have been accepted will be required to execute an agreement in a form approved by the Government of India, copies of which can be obtained on application to the Secretary to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture, Simla. This agreement must be signed within three months of the acceptance of the tender.

19. Tenders, marked "Tender for Andamans Timber License," should be submitted so as to reach the Secretary to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture, Simla, on or before the 1st September 1915. The Government of India do not undertake to accept the highest or any tender either for padauk or for other timbers, or to assign any reasons for the refusal or acceptance of any tender.

20. Without the written sanction of the Government of India no transfer, assignment or sub-letting of their license by the licensees will be valid.

SIMLA ;
The 10th February 1915.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 6th March 1915.

Burma.—Rain is reported from the districts on the Tenasserim coast, from the northern districts of Upper Burma, from the northern Shan States and from the Chin Hills. Threshing and winnowing of winter rice have been almost completed in Upper Burma. Cultivation of spring rice and miscellaneous crops is proceeding satisfactorily. Standing crops are in good condition. Cattle are generally healthy. The price of unhusked rice at Rangoon is falling gradually and is much below normal.

Assam.—The weather was seasonable and favourable for agricultural operations Slight rain has fallen in all districts. Transplantation of spring rice in Sylhet has been finished. Harvesting of mustard and rapeseed has been nearly completed. Hoeing and pruning of tea and pressing of sugarcane still continue. Ploughing of land for rice and jute is in progress and sowing is going on in places. The price of common rice is stationary. Cattle disease is reported from four districts.

Bengal.—Light to moderate rain fell throughout the Province. It has considerably improved the prospects of the standing boro paddy and has much facilitated the ploughing operations for the autumn crops. Sowing of jute and autumn paddy has commenced in parts of eastern Bengal. Harvesting of spring crops is nearing completion. Pressing of sugarcane continues. Standing crops are in fair condition. Cattle disease is reported from fifteen districts. The average price of common rice has risen slightly as compared with that of the previous week.

Bihar and Orissa.—Light to moderate rain was general over Orissa and Chota Nagpur. In Bihar the rainfall was light and scattered. Preparation of lands for the next season's crops, pressing of sugarcane and harvesting of spring crops continue. Planting of sugarcane for the next season has commenced. Standing spring crops are, on the whole, doing well. The price of common rice has remained almost stationary as compared with that of the previous week. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from fourteen districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is good.

United Provinces.—Light rain fell in the Central and Lower Doab, Southern Oudh, South Eastern and Bundelkhand districts and in the Benares State. More rain is needed in the Tehri State. A few districts report slight damage to crops mostly due to rain or hail but they are on the whole, doing well and prospects are favourable. Pressing of sugarcane and sowing of extra crops have been almost completed. Sowing of maize, tobacco, sugarcane and sawan, irrigation of extra crops, threshing, reaping and harvesting of spring crops, weeding of poppy, extraction of opium and preparation of lands for autumn crops and cotton continue. The condition of agricultural stock is good but cattle disease still prevails in twelve districts. Fodder and water are sufficient. Stocks continue low in Mainpuri and Hardoi. Wheat has run short in Benares. Prices of food grains are still high but have a tendency to fall in places.

Punjab.—The weather is cloudy. Rain is badly wanted in the western districts where crops are, suffering from drought. Elsewhere the condition and prospects of standing wheat and other spring crops are good both on irrigated and unirrigated lands. Ploughing for and sowing of the extra spring crops are in progress and are normal. Pressing of sugarcane has been completed except in a few districts with yield average to good. Cattle are generally healthy and fodder and water for drinking and irrigation are sufficient. Prices are falling slightly but still approximate to scarcity rates.

North-West Frontier Province.—Slight rain fell during the week in Peshawar. Rain is wanted in Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan. The weather is moderate. Standing crops are generally in good condition but are below normal on unirrigated areas in Bannu owing to the absence of rain. Harvesting of sugarcane in Bannu and its pr[illegible]ar in Peshawar continue. Sowing of the extra spring crops is in progress in P[illegible]d Bannu. The condition of cattle is generally good. Fodder and water are proc[illegible]rices are high but are falling in Peshawar and are rising in the case of gram in Dera I[illegible]han.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 8 to 13 and maize from 10 to 22 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is good. Cattle disease of a mild type prevails in the Jasmirgarh tahsil. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—Good rain fell in Anantnag and none elsewhere. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices are slightly rising in Baramulla and are normal elsewhere. Fodder and water are sufficient.

Rajputana.—Slight showers are reported in parts of Dungarpur, Bharatpur, Kotah and Jaipur. The weather is cool and clear. Irrigation and harvesting continue. Standing crops are in good condition and their prospects are fair to good generally. The condition of cattle is good except in parts of Dungarpur and Mewar where cattle disease is prevalent. Fodder and water are sufficient. Prices are stationary but are rising in a few places.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was general in Gwalior, Indore, Bhopal and the Southern States, partial in Baghelkhand and nil elsewhere. Harvesting of spring crops is in progress. Crops are generally in good condition and their outturn is expected to be good. Crops have been damaged for want of rain in the Garrauli State of Bundelkhand. Cattle disease prevails in the Sanwer, Kannod, Kantaphor, and Garot perganas of Indore and in the Nagod State of Baghelkhand. The condition of cattle is generally good. The fodder supply is sufficient throughout. Prices are high in Gwalior, Bhopal and Baghelkhand, are falling in Barwani, are fluctuating in the Mehidpur and Rampura-Bhanpura districts of Indore, and are stationary elsewhere. Poppy is being weeded and irrigated in Gwalior and is in good condition in Indore

Central Provinces.—The weather has been cool and occasionally cloudy. Light to moderate rain was received throughout the Provinces, nowhere exceeding 2¼ inches. It was accompanied by hail in Betul, Buldana and Yeotmal. Reaping of spring crops continues. It has been retarded somewhat owing to rain in Seoni, Betul, Chhindwara and Buldana. Preparation of lands for the ensuing season's crops is in progress in seven districts. Rain, hail and insects have slightly damaged crops in parts of Jubbulpore, Mandla, Betul, Chanda and Buldana, otherwise the prospects of spring crops are generally fair to good. The supply of fodder and water is adequate. Agricultural stock is in good condition. Variations in prices are unimportant.

Feudatory States.—Nine States received light showers of rain. Harvesting of spring crops continues and prospects are favourable. Prices remained steady or fluctuated slightly.

Bombay.—Rain fell in all districts of the Presidency proper except two, in West Khandesh and in five talukas of Bijapur and two talukas of Belgaum. Crops have been damaged slightly by frost and wind in Sukkur; by frost, insects and wind in the Upper Sind Frontier; by frost in four talukas of Nawabshah and by rats in one State of Rewa Kantha. Slight damage to crops is also reported from four talukas of Hyderabad by insects and frost, from two talukas by insects and from two other talukas by want of moisture. Cotton picking is progressing in Gujarat, Satara, the Karnatak, Kathiawar, Baroda, Cutch and Kolhapur. Harvesting of spring crops generally continues. The fodder supply is sufficient except in the parts affected by floods and in the hilly tracts of Karachi, two talukas of Thar and Parkar and one taluka of Nawabshah. Cattle are in good condition Agricultural stock is sufficient except in Ahmednagar and Poona. Drinking water is adequate. Water for irrigation is generally sufficient. Prices show a tendency to fall.

Hyderabad.—General rain fell during the week, the average fall being 2 inches 3 cents. The highest falls were 6 inches 88 cents in Siddipet and 6 inches 19 cents in Parbhani. The rainfall has damaged the standing crops especially the spring crops. Late rice is being weeded and irrigated in parts. Crops are fair to good. Cattle disease prevails in seven talukas. Prices of grains are almost constant. The highest price in districts is jwar 10½ seers per rupee in Warangal and the lowest 24 seers in Adilabad.

Mysore.—Good rain fell in Bangalore, Kolar and Tumkur and light to fair elsewhere. The price of ragi has fallen in Kolar, Mysore and Hassan. Markets are well supplied. The outturn of the harvested ragi and sugarcane is good and that of wheat, paddy, coffee and cotton is fair. Ploughing operations are in progress. Sugarcane and paddy are being sown in parts. Standing crops are in good condition. Prospects of the season are generally good. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

[redacted]ring the week. Prices of food grains are high. The public [redacted]der for cattle are sufficient.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was light in Ganjam, the Vizagapatam littoral and Sandur, heavy in Guntur, Nellore and Chittoor and fair to good elsewhere except in South Canara where no rain was received. Standing crops are fair to good but are withering or require rain in parts of four districts. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is proceeding with outturn fair to normal generally. Sowing of sugarcane, paddy and dry crops is proceeding normally. The condition of cattle is generally good. The water supply is sufficient except in parts of Ganjam, Godavari, the Deccan, Nellore and South Arcot and in parts of the central and southern districts except Tanjore. Pasture is sufficient except in Guntur, Kurnool, Anantapur and in parts of eight other districts. Fodder is generally sufficient. Prices are steady.

Nepal.—Report for the quarter ending 15th January 1915.—The rainfall for the period was ·9 inch against 1·96 inches for the corresponding period of last year. Rain is wanted in the Nepal Valley.

October and November 1914.—Pepper was gathered and the outturn was normal. Autumn rice was harvested with good results. Oranges began to ripen.

December 1914.—The orange crop was plucked and was a good one. Lands were prepared for the sowing of spring crops. The first crop of potatoes was dug up and the outturn was normal. Sowing of winter vegetables was begun in the Nepal Valley.

January 1915.—The wheat crop is backward for want of rain. Lands are being prepared for the second crop of potatoes.

With the exception of cattle disease which is prevalent in some places in the Valley the health of the live stock is reported to be good. The market is well stocked and the price of food grains continues normal.

THE PATENT OFFICE.

PATENTS and DESIGNS.

Calcutta, the 18th March 1915.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 24th February, 1915 :—

No. 4 of 1915.

A Bill to extend the powers of the Governor General in Council during the continuance of the present war to make rules under the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911.

II of 1911.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary Rules) Act, 1915.

Short title, extent, etc.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India including British Baluchistan and the Santhal Parganas.

(3) This Act and the rules made thereunder shall be in force during the continuance of the present war and for a period of six months thereafter.

2. In this Act the expression 'subject of any State at war with His Majesty' includes-

Definitions.

(i) any person resident and carrying on business in the territory of a State at war with His Majesty; and

(ii) with reference to a company, any company the business whereof is managed or controlled by such subjects, or is carried on wholly or mainly for the benefit or on behalf of such subjects, notwithstanding that the company may be registered within His Majesty's dominions.

3. (1) The power of the Governor General in Council under section 77 of the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, to make rules shall include power to make rules—

Power to make rules.

(a) for avoiding or suspending in whole or in part any patent or licence, the person entitled to the benefit of which is the subject of any State at war with His Majesty;

(b) for avoiding or suspending the registration, and all or any rights conferred by the registration, of any design the proprietor whereof is a subject as aforesaid;

(c) for avoiding or suspending any application made by any such person under the said Act;

(d) for enabling the grant, in favour of persons other than such persons as aforesaid, on such terms and conditions, and either for the whole term of the patent or registration or for such less period, as may be thought fit, of licences to make, use, exercise, or vend, patented inventions and registered designs so liable to avoidance or suspension as aforesaid; and

(e) for extending the time within which any act or thing may be or is required to be done under the said Act.

(2) If the rules made under this Act so provide, the rules or any of them shall have effect from the passing of this Act.

(3) All rules made under this Act shall be published in the Gazette of India, and on such publication shall have effect as if enacted in this Act.

4. The power to make rules conferred by section 3 (1) (a) and (d) of this Act shall be exercisable in respect of any exclusive privilege acquired under the Inventions and Designs Act, 1888, as if such exclusive privilege had been a patent granted under the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911.

Power in case of exclusive privileges under Act V of 1888.

V of 1888.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It is considered desirable, during the present hostilities, that power should be taken to refuse to receive applications for the grant of patents or registration of designs from persons who are subjects of a State at war with His Majesty, and to order the avoidance or suspension of patents or designs held or registered by or for the benefit of such subjects, and to enable the grant of compulsory licences to persons other than such subjects. The Bill empowers the Governor General in Council to make rules for the purpose of carrying out the above objects.

2. The Bill is on the same lines as the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks (Temporary Rules) Act, 1914 (4 and 5 Geo. 5, c 27), as amended by the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Temporary Rules (Amendment) Act (4 and 5 Geo., c. 73).

NOTICES.

THE PATENT OFFICE, 1, COUNCIL HOUSE STREET, CALCUTTA.

Public room, open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

1. All communications relating to applications for patents and for registration of designs under the Indian Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), or in continuation of applications under the Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888) should be addressed to the Controller of Patents and Designs, 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. Documents sent by post should be carefully packed.

2. Directions for the guidance of inventors and others are given in the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911 (price 10 annas), and in the Indian Patents and Designs Rules, 1912 (price 2 annas). These should be consulted before an application is made to the Controller.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs nor their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. Applications for patents in countries other than India should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

4. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

5. Trade and property marks and names are not registered and medicines are not patented under the Indian Patents and Designs Act. There is no provision of Law in British India for their registration.

6. Printed Specifications of applications, which have been accepted, are published within about three weeks after acceptance has been notified in the Gazette of India. These specifications can be purchased at the Patent Office at a uniform price of 8 annas per copy; and may be seen free of charge, together with other publications of the Patent Office, at the following places:—

Controller of Patents and Designs.

HISTORICAL RECORD OF THE IMPERIAL VISIT TO INDIA, 1911.

This book, which has been compiled by the Government of India from the official records, contains a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911, including lists of the persons taking part in all the various celebrations and ceremonies at which Their Imperial Majesties were present, as well as a large number of illustrations, portraits of Ruling Princes and others, coloured Persian and Sanscrit texts, maps, plans, etc.

The book has been published by Mr. John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, W., and copies are now procurable from all the principal booksellers.

There are two editions—a popular one in a cloth binding, price Rs. 7-8-0, and a very limited edition de luxe, price Rs. 250, which has been subscribed for. As the popular edition is strictly limited, and a considerable portion of it has been absorbed in requisitions already received and in the requirements of libraries, schools, etc., it will probably be exhausted very soon after publication. Those who have not yet ordered copies but require them are therefore advised to order at an early date. Application should be made to the Superintendent, Government Printing, India, Calcutta.

CHIEF COMMISSIONER, DELHI.

NOTIFICATION.

Delhi, the 27th February 1915.

No. 1349-Home.—The following draft rules which the Chief Commissioner proposes to make in exercise of the powers conferred by section 11 of the Indian Motor Vehicles Act, VIII of 1914, to be brought into force if and when such Act is extended to the Delhi Province, are published for general information, and notice is hereby given that the said draft rules will be taken into consideration on or after the 1st April 1915, and any objections or suggestions received by that date will be duly considered :—

DRAFT RULES UNDER SECTION 11 OF ACT VIII OF 1914, REGARDING THE GRANT OF CERTIFICATES OF REGISTRATION AND OF DRIVING LICENSES AND FOR THE REGULATION OF THE USE OF MOTOR VEHICLES IN THE PROVINCE OF DELHI.

I.—Driving Licenses for Motor Vehicles.

1. Save as provided in rules made under sections 14 and 15 of the Act no person shall drive a motor vehicle within the limits of Delhi Province unless he has first obtained—

(a) a license from the District Magistrate, Delhi, or

(b) a license from the Commissioner of Police in a Presidency Town or Rangoon or from the District Magistrate of a district in British India outside the province of Delhi.

2. Licenses to drive a motor vehicle may be obtained by drivers of over the age of 18 by application to the District Magistrate, Delhi ; they will be required to give proof of their competence to drive in the manner laid down in Schedule II annexed to these rules. Such licenses will not have effect for a longer period than one year and will in all cases expire on the 31st March next, following the date on which the license is granted.

The charge for each license will be Rs. 2.

The license will be in form A I attached to these rules.

3. The application for license should be made in the first instance to the Superintendent of Police.

4. Drivers are bound by the provisions of Act VIII of 1914, and by the rules issued from time to time by the Chief Commissioner under section 11 of that Act.

5. Drivers of hired motor vehicles will be required to be in possession of a driving license from the District Magistrate, Delhi, and to obtain in addition the special certificate of competency for driving a hired motor vehicle laid down in Part IV of these rules.

II.—Certificates of Registration for Motor Vehicles.

6. No motor vehicle shall be used within the province of Delhi unless the owner shall have first obtained—

(a) a certificate of registration from the District Magistrate, Delhi ; or

(b) a certificate of registration from the Commissioner of Police in a Presidency Town or Rangoon, or from the District Magistrate of a district in British India outside the province of Delhi.

7. A certificate of registration may be obtained from the District Magistrate of Delhi. Applications should be directed in the first instance to the Superintendent of Police, before whom the motor vehicles to be registered shall be produced. Evidence will be required that the car meets with the requirements enumerated in Schedule I attached.

The charge for each original certificate will be Rs. 4 in the case of a motor bicycle and Rs. 16 in the case of a motor car. Sums previously paid for registration in Delhi may be deducted from payments under this rule.

The certificate will be in form A II attached to these rules.

8. Owners in possession of the certificates referred to in rule 6 (b) shall register their identification number at the office of the Superintendent of Police.

9. In the case of vehicles registered in Delhi, the Superintendent of Police will assign to the owner on production of the certificate of registration an identification number which shall consist of the letter D with a serial number following. The owner shall present his certificate immediately after registration for this purpose, and registration shall not be considered as completed until a number has been assigned.

10. Numbers and letters assigned to motor vehicles shall be shown in large black figures on a white ground, and shall be of the following dimensions painted on a plate which shall be rigidly affixed in a conspicuous place on the front and back of the motor :—

Provided that in the case of motor cycles the plate fixed on the front part of the cycle shall have duplicate faces and be fixed so that from whichever side the cycle is viewed the letters and figures on one or other face are easily distinguishable; and further that the size of the letters and figures may be proportionately reduced to a height of 1¾ inches.

(b) No number shall in any way be obscured, or rendered or allowed to become not easily discernable at a reasonable distance.

11. Every transfer of ownership of a motor vehicle registered under these rules must forthwith be reported to the Superintendent of Police by the registered owner and by the transferee jointly. No charge will be made for recording a transfer of ownership.

12. The Superintendent of Police may assign a manufacturer of, or a dealer in, motor vehicles, on payment of an annual fee of Rs. 20, a general provincial identification number which shall be affixed to any motor vehicle belonging to the said manufacturer or dealer when on trial after completion or by an intending purchaser. Such motor vehicles shall only ply within the limits of the Province of Delhi, and shall not ply for hire.

13. In addition to a certificate of registration a special permit is required in the case of motor vehicles which it is desired to ply for hire in Delhi Province. The rules regulating the grant of such permits will be found in Part IV of these rules.

14. The owner of a motor vehicle is bound by the provisions of Act VIII of 1914 and by the rules issued from time to time by the Chief Commissioner under section 11 of that Act.

III.—General.

15. A motor vehicle shall be driven in accordance with the rules of the road, which require a vehicle to keep on the left of the road except when passing horses and other vehicles going in the same direction, which shall be passed on the right; provided that it shall ordinarily pass a tram car on the left or near side whether it be going in the same or the contrary direction.

16. With regard to section 6 of the Act a person may receive instruction in driving a motor vehicle between the hours of 6 and 9 A.M. and 11 A.M. and 4 P.M. in a public place provided he is accompanied by a licensed driver.

17. In regard to section 5 of the Act a person shall be considered to have committed an offence under section 5 of the Act if he exceeds a speed of 15 miles within the limts of Delhi Municipality, Cantonment and Notified Area or in localities of special danger where notices are posted further restricting the speed of motor vehicles, if he exceeds the speed so fixed.

18. A motor vehicle shall not be driven in any footway nor in any road or public place where such traffic may, for the time being, be prohibited by the licensing authority.

19. The request referred to in sections 4 (a), (b) and (c) of the Act may be made by such police officer or person by putting up his hand as a signal.

20. Every person driving a motor vehicle shall have ready and available for immediate use a deep-toned horn or other instrument capable of giving audible and sufficient warning of his approach or position, and shall sound the same whenever expedient to prevent danger to any of the public.

The Superintendent of Police shall have authority to prohibit the use of instruments of a type which are likely to cause inconvenience or annoyance to the public.

21. No person shall drive a motor vehicle during the period commencing half an hour after sunset and ending half an hour before sunrise unless such vehicle is provided with light as follows:—

(1) In the case of vehicles other than motor cycles—
  (a) one lamp showing a white light in front affixed on each side of the front portion of the vehicle;
  (b) one lamp showing a red light at the rear and showing a white light at the side affixed at the back of the vehicle in such manner as to illuminate with the white light and render easily distinguishable the signs and number on the plates.

(2) In the case of motor cycles—
  (a) one lamp showing a white light in front affixed to the motor cycle.

(3) In all cases—
  (a) the lamps shall be of suitable character and illumination;
  (b) the lamps shall be kept properly alight;
  (c) where acetylene or electric lamps or lamps of any description giving a powerful and intense light are used, the same shall be properly hooded or screened to the satisfaction of the registering authority.

N. B.—The lighting up time as advertised by the Police on notice boards shall be considered to be half an hour after sunset.

22. No motor vehicle shall be allowed to stand in any street or public place unattended by a person licensed under rule 1 above, unless all reasonable precautions have been taken to ensure that it cannot be put in motion in the absence of the driver.

23. No person shall leave a motor vehicle or keep it standing in a street at night without at least one lighted lamp of suitable character and illumination at front and back.

24. All motor vehicles shall be provided with a silencer which shall not be disconnected from the engine while the engine is running. No person shall cause or permit the emission of smoke or visible vapour from a motor car in such quantity as to cause annoyance or danger to the public.

25. A manufacturer of, or dealer in, motor vehicles shall keep a register in such forms as the registering authority may direct showing the description of the vehicle used, the name of the driver, and the hours and dates on which he was in charge of the vehicle. Such register shall be open to inspection on the demand of any police officer of or above the rank of Sub-Inspector.

26. In the event of the registered owner of a car being called upon by a Magistrate or police officer to disclose the name or whereabouts of the driver of his motor vehicle on any particular occasion, he shall be legally bound to furnish such information.

IV.—Permits to Vehicles to ply for hire.

27. Permits to ply for hire, in Delhi Province, will be granted by the Superintendent of Police, Delhi, to motor vehicles with certificates of registration in accordance with the following regulations. Permits will be in Form A III attached to these rules. Such certificates will require to be renewed every year.

28. Every driver, attendant, licensee or owner of a motor vehicle plying for hire shall be subject to the provisions of Act VIII of 1914, and to the rules made thereunder, and in addition shall observe the following additional rules and be bound by the following conditions.

29. The permit granted shall remain in force from the date thereof till the 31st March next following, unless suspended or cancelled in the meantime by the order of the Superintendent of Police.

30. The permit shall not be transferred to any other person without sanction duly endorsed thereon by the Superintendent of Police.

31. The vehicle shall not under any circumstances be driven by any person other than a driver holding a special certificate for competency for driving a motor vehicle plying for hire, in Form A IV, signed by the Superintendent of Police, Delhi.

32. The certificate of competency shall be produced whenever demanded by a police officer, and shall be liable to be suspended or cancelled at the discretion of the Superintendent of Police if he has reason to believe that the driver is incompetent or has been guilty of rash or negligent driving or has infringed any condition of the permit of which the Superintendent of Police shall be the sole judge.

33. The applicant for a certificate of competency must be produced by the owner of the car before the Superintendent of Police. He will undergo an examination and satisfy the Superintendent of Police that—

(a) he is a competent and careful driver;

(b) he possesses a general knowledge of the car which he intends driving;

(c) he has a knowledge of the law affecting motor vehicles as well as a knowledge of the rules of the road.

(d) he has acquaintance with the principal places and roads of Delhi.

34. When a driver's certificate is suspended or cancelled, or when he enters the service of an owner of a private motor vehicle his competency certificate must be surrendered to the Superintendent of Police, and it is the duty of the owner of the public motor vehicle to see that such license is surrendered.

35. The driver shall at all times when on duty with the public motor vehicle wear a metal badge which shall be supplied to him by the Superintendent of Police and shall surrender the same, if his certificate is suspended or cancelled, to the Superintendent of Police.

36. The owner of the vehicle plying for hire shall maintain regularly such register in such form as the Superintendent of Police may direct, showing the name of the driver and the hours and dates on which he was in charge of the vehicle.

37. Every motor vehicle plying under this permit shall be fitted with a taximeter.

38. Every motor vehicle intended to be licensed to ply for hire shall be brought to the office of the Superintendent of Police at such time as he may direct for the purpose of examination of the taximeter.

39. The Superintendent of Police will submit each taximeter to a practical test. If it is found by him to be correct the whole of the fittings shall then be sealed to the cabs in such a manner that they cannot be removed or tampered with without taking off the seals.

40. Every vehicle shall be brought to the Superintendent of Police for a fresh taximeter test each time the meter or transmission gearing is removed or repaired.

41. No taximeter shall be affixed to a motor vehicle plying for hire unless the seal or mark approved by the Superintendent of Police has been fixed thereto. The permit of any car not having the said seal or mark intact shall be liable to revocation by the District Magistrate. Any owner, attendant, licensee, driver or any other person, who shall break or tamper with the seal or mark attached to the taximeter or who shall, with intent to deceive, tamper with the taximeter shall be deemed to have committed a breach of this rule.

42. The driver of every motor vehicle plying for hire shall, as soon as he is hired and no sooner, set the taximeter in motion, and upon the termination of the hiring shall immediately stop the same. If he neglect or fail to do so, he shall be deemed to have committed a breach of this rule.

43. The brakes should, as far as possible, be so affixed as to be capable of easy adjustment, and at least one must be so made as to be applicable by the foot of the driver. No two brakes which operate on the same part shall be considered as independent, and at least one should act directly upon the road wheels without any connection with the propelling gears.

44. All brakes and steering connections secured with bolts must have the bolts secured with nuts, the same to be locked or pinned.

45. The machinery shall be so constructed that no undue noise or vibration is caused.

46. Carburettors must not be placed in close proximity to magnetos or to connections of wires carrying electric current, unless they are suitably encased or screened.

47. All wires carrying electric current must be properly insulated and protected from injury and so placed that they cannot be the cause of danger.

48. Tanks for petrol or liquid fuel must be sufficiently strongly constructed. The inlet for fuel should be so placed as to prevent the ready ignition of any overflow.

49. Vehicles must be capable of being readily steered and able to turn on each lock and proceed in a contrary direction within a roadway 30 feet wide from kerb to kerb. The Superintendent of Police may at his discretion in special cases increase this limit.

50. Vehicles must have a light so fixed as to illuminate the taximeter at night.

51. Where acetylene or other gas is used to light the carriage, the vessels which contain the gas in which it is generated must be fixed outside in such a position as to be removed as far as possible from the danger of accidental ignition.

52. The floors must be covered with mats of suitable material.

53. No printed matter to be carried by way of advertisement shall appear on the inside or outside of the vehicle.

54. The doors, windows, seats, roof or hood, springs, cushions, wheels, linings, panels, etc., and all furniture and appointments of the motor vehicles must be maintained in proper order and repair, and the inside of the vehicle must be kept clean.

55. The vehicle shall be liable to examination at such times as the Superintendent of Police may prescribe, and the permit may be suspended or cancelled under the orders of the Superintendent of Police if the machinery or brakes are defective or if the lights, numbers or any accessory are not in accordance with the regulations binding in virtue of this permit.

56. A fee of Rs. 5 shall be paid for the permit.

57. The following rates for the fare or hire of motor vehicles fitted with a taximeter and in possession of a permit is fixed for Delhi Province whether the vehicle is used by three or any less number of passengers.

1st Tariff.—Between 6-30 A.M., and 10 P.M, within the boundaries of Delhi Municipality and Notified Area as defined in Punjab Government Notification No. 831, dated the 6th November 1884, No. 713, dated the 24th September 1888, and No. 69, dated the 6th February 1892, and Chief Commissioner, Delhi's Notification No. 521, dated the 16th January 1913.

	Rs.	A.	P.

SCHEDULE I.

Every motor car must comply with the following requirements :—

(1) The machinery must be so designed as to prevent as far as possible all danger of fire or explosion; so as not to frighten by its noise any animals whether ridden or driven; so as not to give rise to any other cause of danger to traffic or seriously to inconvenience by the emission of smoke or vapour, persons using the road.

(2) The car must be provided with the following :—

(a) a strong steering apparatus which will allow the car to be turned readily and with certainty;

(b) two brakes each independent of the other and adequate for the purpose; one at least of these brakes must be capable of acting rapidly and directly upon the wheels or upon brake drums immoveably fixed thereto;

(c) a mechanism which is capable of preventing even on steep gradients any backward movement, if one of the brakes is not sufficient for the purpose.

(3) Every car whose weight unladen exceeds 770 lbs. must be so constructed that the driver can from his seat reverse the movement of the car by means of the driving power;

(4) all the driving and steering apparatus must be so arrranged that the driver can manipulate it with certainty and at the same time have a clear view for the road.

SCHEDULE II.

Persons wishing to apply to the District Magistrate for a driving license should present their application in the first instance to the Superintendent of Police. The Superintendent of Police may require any such person to undergo an examination and satisfy the examiner—

(i) that he is a competent and careful driver by driving the car under the examiner's observation.

(ii) that he possesses a general knowledge of the car he intends driving;

(iii) that he has a knowledge of the law affecting motor vehicles as well as a knowledge of the rules of the road.

After being satisfied of the results of the examination or having otherwise satisfied himself that the applicant is a competent driver, the Superintendent of Police shall endorse his application to the District Magistrate for the grant of a driving license.
